Lehigh members vote to dissolve, form new co-op

BY VIVIAN PAUL
Staff Correspondent

LANCASTER — Common stockholders of Lehigh Valley Cooperative Farmers voted overwhelmingly last week to dissolve the 47-year old organization and sell its assets to a new company, Atlantic Processing, Inc.

The vote — 455 in favor and 82 against — had been expected by the management and board of the dairy.

At thier annual meeting at the Host Farm resort, dairy farmers also heard details on the formation of a new agricultural cooperative which they will be asked to join. It will be known as Lehigh Valley Farmers.

Both moves had been recommended as a solution to Lehigh's long standing financial problems which include long term bank debt and a preferred stock issue valued at nearly $12 million, but long considered worthless.

The vote to dissolve was the highlight of a meeting that included a report on the previous year's activities at the dairy.

The organization had profits of $869,800 on sales of $144,5 million, compared to profits of $335,636 on sales of $118.1 million for the same period a year earlier. The earnings were the highest in the last five years.

The dairy processed 853 million pounds of milk last year, an increase of 72 million over the previous year.

Despite the growth, current shipper-members who are holders of common stock, voted for the sale which will transfer all the assets and liabilities to Atlantic Processing, Inc. This includes $20 million in long and short term debt owned to the Baltimore Bank for Cooperatives.

The new cooperative, Lehigh Valley Farms, will be strictly a bargaining unit. It will own no plants, property or equipment.

It will contract to sell all of its members' milk to Atlantic Processing.

Dairylea told to show why PMMB shouldn't revoke license

BY CURT HARLER

HARRISBURG — The Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board has told Dairylea Cooperative to show reason why the Board should not suspend or revoke its license to sell milk in Pennsylvania.

The PMMB citation alleges violation of the state milk marketing law in connection with Dairylea's agreement with A&P to sell processing and packaging of milk from Dairylea's Scranton plant.

According to PMMB Executive Secretary Earl Fink, an informal hearing will be held on the matter May 15.

Unless Dairylea pleads guilty to the charges, which is unlikely, a date will be set for a formal hearing. The formal hearing is likely to take place within 15 to 30 days of the May 15 hearing.

PMMB routinely issues such notices to show cause to parties alleged to be in violation of the state Milk Marketing Law.

Dairylea is charged with violation of Section 807 of the Milk Marketing Law.

That section makes it illegal to sell a product or service below the cost of production.

Specifically, Dairylea is charged with selling services from its Scranton plant to A&P under cost.

Should Dairylea plead guilty on May 15 or be found

Goats no longer qualify as dairy animals

BY PAT KAUFFMAN

LITITZ — A new wrinkle has been added to the Dairy Princess Pageant rules this year, and the Lancaster County committee has been the first to protest.

For the first year, official rules disqualify any Dairy Princess applicant who owns goats, not cows. The rules read, "the contestant must be the owner of more than one dairy animal prior to May 1, 1980. (Dairy goats do not qualify.)" Why would such a delineation be made?

Robert Morris, director of special programs for PA Holstein Association and a member of the state committee explains. "In past years, girls who owned dairy goats were entering pageants on a local level, and cow farmers were calling in to complain. They did not want to take the chance of having someone who did not own cows win the pageant."

The pageant Morris stated, is part of the milk promotion campaign, and funds for it are provided by Atlantic Dairy Association from funds received by them and other organizations through the milk checkoff fund. Morris stated that the reason the committee chose to clarify the rules this year was two fold. First, both Maryland and New York have similar restrictions, and second, dairy goat raisers do not participate in the milk checkoff system which largely provides the funds for the pageant.

While daughters of milk juggers who are not required to participate in the milk checkoff system are eligible to participate, Morris states that many juggers contribute voluntarily. In addition, he stated, they do advertise for dairy products, even if it is only promoting their own line of dairy goods at their store.

However, any girl who owns two dairy animals qualifies, and that would include confirmed Morris, any girl who owned two nonlactating heifers as 4-H projects. She too would

Apple referendum passes by 20 votes

HARRISBURG — The question of whether to continue or discontinue the Pennsylvania Apple Marketing Board was decided by 20 votes in a recent referendum.

Apple growers voted between April 11 and April 24 to keep AMB. When the ballots were tallied on April 25, the needed two-thirds in favor of the referendum held a slim margin of 20 'yes' votes.

Paul Pitzer, Biglerville, Adams County; Stanley Brown, Loganville, York, County; and Joseph Strite, Harrisburg, Dauphin County, served on the teller committee for the referendum. They counted 178 votes in favor of the AMB and 59 against, according to

Truck limits may kill market for 400 northeast dairymen

WALLINGTON, N.J. — On Monday David Goldman paid separate fines of $1600 and $600 on two of the milk trucks hauling to his Farmland Dairy plant in Wallington, N.J.

That's peanuts compared to the $60,000 the Farmland owner shelled out in fines last year and the $20,000 he had paid since January 1, 1980.

The constant payout of fines may close the door on a milk outlet for 400 northeastern Pennsylvania dairymen.

The problem is that Pennsylvania has a weight limit of 73,280 pounds on trucks. But federal uniform regulations have raised gross weight limits to 80,000 pounds.

Farmland buys milk in New Jersey, New York, and Pennsylvania.

As Goldman's trucks come across federal highways, like I-80 and I-84 in northeastern Pennsylvania, state troopers weigh them and fine them for overweight. New York and New Jersey allow an 80,000 pound maximum gross weight.

The result may be that Farmland will drop 400 shippers in Pennsylvania, Goldman said Thursday.

"One morning I'll wake up madder than hell about the whole situation and it'll be all over," Goldman said.

There are between 700 and 800 Pennsylvanians shipping to Farmland Dairy. About half of their milk goes to processing plants in Pennsylvania. The rest goes to the Wallington plant which Going that extra mile for better milk yields.

When your cows need feed, they need feed. They need it right away. And in the right combination. That's why the Pennfield delivery fleet packs so much versatility for its size. Compartmentalized trucks deliver feed from any of our four plants where more than 22,000 tons of grain and other ingredients are kept on hand ... ready for mixing at all times. By going this extra mile to deliver the right feed at the right time we can assure you that the Pennfield Computerized Total Ration Service is helping you to better milk yields. Here's how the service works: 1. We collect samples of your forage. 2. Then we evaluate the quality of your forages. We determine the total digestible nutrients. The fiber content. The protein content. The amount of carbohydrates. 3. The computer quickly spots any nutrients lacking in the forage. For your milking cows. And for your dry cows. It immediately points out the overfeeding of nutrients. Underfeeding, too. Both, of course, may be different at different times of the year. And the printout will tell you what you need. And when. 4. Your Penn Pro Professional advises you on the quantity and type of nutrients that should be added, to balance your total feeding program to your cows nutritional requirements.

Try the Pennfield Computerized Total Ration Service. For better milk yields. For better profits. There's no cost or obligation. Just phone us today at Pennfield Feeds. Local calls: Lancaster 299-2561, Red Lion 244-4511. In 717 and 215 areas dial toll-free 800-732-0467. Pennfield Feeds, Rohrerstown Road, Lancaster, PA 17604.

THE OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC

MAY 5-11, 1980

Skies are clear, then blackflies appear.

Two-thirds of U S tornadoes occur this month Nixon impeachment hearings began May 9, 1974 Last quarter of the moon May 7 . . Average length of days for the week, 14 hours, 24 minutes Sub-orbital space flight by Alan Shepard May 5, 1961 Better ask twice than lose your way once

Ask the Old Farmer: I have always taken it for granted that the authorized American spread eagle could be used facing either to the right or left Recently I have heard this is not so — that eagles always face left Is this right? J L , Atlanta.

Our understanding is that the eagle always faces toward the olive branch — on the Great Seal of the United States — which is the military right

OLD FARMER'S WEATHER FORECASTS

New England: Clear and hot for most of week, weekend brings showers, heavy north and west, and cool temperatures.

Greater New York-New Jersey: Clear and warm throughout most of week, then seasonal, with light rain for weekend.

Middle Atlantic Coastal: Week begins clear and pleasant; then showers south, rain north for weekend

Piedmont & Southeast Coastal: Sunny and warm, showers south, until end of week, weekend brings scattered showers, continued warm

Report supplied by USDA

Midweek prices on slaughter steers were 25-50 higher. Heifers closed firm to 25 higher. Cows were 1.50-2.00 lower and bulls firm to 1.00 higher but closing dull.

Four Day Receipts 13,500; Last Week 12,200; A Year Ago 13,600.

Slaughter steer and heifer prices advanced slightly under a generally good demand, with usually mild day-to-day price variations. One major buying interest returned after being out of operation for three weeks with labor difficulties, and there was a continued good demand for cattle to be slaughtered outside the immediate Omaha area. Marketings were moderately expanded over the previous week despite pressing field work, but were well distributed over the trading period; slaughter under federal inspection was also larger than a week earlier. The overall finish of the steer and heifer supply was quite attractive with a liberal percentage choice, although many consignments were Mixed 3-4 yield grade. Slaughter steers made up approximately 46 pct and heifers 31 pct. Cows comprised 12 pct. and feeders 8 pct.

Lancaster Farming says...

Can farmers afford farmland?

There's an old saw in farm real estate circles that good farmland is cheap no matter how expensive it is and poor farmland is too expensive no matter how cheap it is.

Soil Stewardship Week this coming May 11 to 17 reminds us of the need to husband our fine soils.

The race to buy that good farmland has driven the price of the average acre of Pennsylvania ground up from $373 per acre in 1970 to $1245 by the end of the decade. That's 270 percent.

Earlier USDA estimates that farm real estate values would increase by five percent or more at the start of the 1980s now seem trivial compared to the expected value of good land once the country pulls out of its recession.

Experts say land prices may triple in the next 10 years. Pressure comes because there is no more new land, but plenty of new people; and most of our best farmland already is in production.

Returns to match the average 27 percent jump over 10 years an investor could have gotten in farmland during the 1970s make stocks, futures markets, and the Swiss franc look like poor investments.

The question "is farmland being priced out of farming" is being considered seriously by a number of economists.

Penn State Farm Management Specialist Virgil Crowley says no single group is responsible for current farm real estate values. That includes nonfarm buyers.

Everyone contributes simply because there is a large group of prospective buyers bidding for a limited supply and because farmland is a commodity which is in demand as an alternative to investment in other areas.

Nationwide, farmers buy about two-thirds of the farmland sold. Of that, 63 percent goes to farmers enlarging their operation. About a quarter of the purchases are complete units, and another 11 percent goes to part-timers.

However, in the Northeast, purchase of farmland for enlargement accounts for only 38 percent of the transfers.

This may be because dairy and vegetable operations don't profit as much from big acreage increases as the Midwestern grain units.

Some observers maintain the current prices of land pose some serious problems for farmers and agriculture unless there are adjustments either in the price of farmland or the prices farmers receive for their production.

But farmers don't seem to agree. Their purchases of land indicate faith that they can handle the debt load.

While high farmland values give an established operator the credit base he needs to borrow to go more deeply in debt, they also can lure the young, struggling operator into selling his high-priced land.

A whole series of costs, debt loads, and potential returns gives a whole series of break-even points for the farmer.

But Crowley, as handy as any economist with a computer, reached a somewhat surprising conclusion.

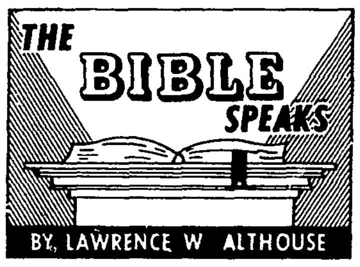
"The ability of farmers to supplement income from purchased farmland with income from other farm enterprises rests primarily on their managment ability," he says.

Management: difficult to define, elusive to put a number on, easy to see in the final analysis.

The bottom line, Penn State says, is not the cost of the land nor high interest rates. The bottom line, for both the established and beginning farmer when net cash income from the land fails to meet cash flow demands, will be management.

If only it could be entered into our checkbooks.

Prayer, too, may help . . . it seems many of our rural churches have forgotten to celebrate Soil Stewardship week. The freshly turned-over ground should remind preachers this week that a good sermon for the next service will be land — its management and care entrusted to mankind.



ON "GETTING IT RIGHT"

Lesson for May 4, 1980

Background Scripture:
1 John 3: 1-18; 4:7
through 5:21
Devotional Reading:
1 John 3:11-18

If I had my way — which I don't — I would make the reading of 1 John mandatory in each and every church every Sunday morning — until as Christians we "get it right!"

Why 1 John? Because this epistle puts the very essence of being a Christian in the clearest, most uncompromising language. Of course, we "know" that God is love and that, as followers of Christ, we are to love one another as he loved us. But many of us are like the little boy who was disciplined by his teacher to writing on the chalkboard 100 times: "I will not throw spitballs in class." He "knew" he wasn't supposed to disrupt the class, but his "knowing" did not keep him from doing it. By the time he finished writing this affirmation on the board, I think we can assume that he "knew" it a lot better than before.

By This We Know

In a similar manner we also "know" about Christian love, but we don't frequently enough give the appearance of having "gotten it right." This is why 1 John is so challenging to us. What is the central "message" of the Gospel which John's readers have received "from the beginning?" That "we should love another" (3:11). What are the yardsticks by which Christ measures our love for him?

"Anyone who hates his brother is a murderer..." (3:15).

"...if any one has the world's goods and sees his brother in need yet closes his heart against him..." (4:18).

"...he who fears is not perfected in love..." (4:18).

I don't know about you, but I don't do too well with that checklist. I may avoid the word, "hate, for example, but there are some people to whom I respond with a hateful attitude. To be sure, these people are usually "safe" objects of my hostility: welfare chiselers, violent criminals, dishonest politicians (usually of the other party), nations and peoples who treat the USA with disdain or contempt, department store clerks — there's really quite a list. But the writer of 1 John makes it so painfully clear that, in reality — God's reality — none of them are "safe" for me to hate. For, "If any one says, 'I love God', and hates his brother, he is a liar" (4:20).

In Deed And Truth

1 John also helps us to realize that what God in Christ wants from us to is not necessarily loving feelings and declarations, but loving deeds. The test of Christ's love was "that he laid down his life for us," and the test of our love is, not how we feel about those infuriating Communists and disturbing John Birchers (our angry feelings are more than justified), but how we act toward them. For the test of our love is the same as our Lord's: "We caught to lay down our lives for the brethren" (3:16).

TO PLAN GASOLINE NEEDS

Despite the absence of a gasoline shortage in Pennsylvania this spring, gasoline continues to be on an allocation basis for farmers. Farmers are to be guaranteed 100 percent of their base period gasoline purchases; this base period was from November 1977 through October 1978. If crop acreages have been increased, or if there has been a change in the type of crops grown, gasoline allocations can be changed. Also, it is strongly suggested that farmers maintain their current suppliers. We are informed that the Department of Energy will not transfer base period allocations from one supplier to another. If needs are not being satisfied, or if changes are to be made, farmers may contact the local ASC office, or in Pennsylvania contact the Governor's Energy Council at Harrisburg, 717/783-1650. Plan ahead for gasoline needs in order to prevent costly delays.

TO BE CAREFUL WITH WEED KILLERS

Many property owners and farmers will be doing considerable herbicide spraying in the coming months. All weed killers are approved for certain weeds in a stated amount, and to be applied at definite times. These regulations should be closely followed. However, most weed killers will also kill other shrubs and desirable plants. This is where the trouble begins. Spray applicators should keep in mind the danger of drift of the sprays, and the danger of vapors from the herbicide in hot weather. Any of these can cause damage to nearby crops and plants. Farmers operating in sub-urban areas should be extremely careful with wind direction at the time of spraying. Many shrubs and trees can be damaged because of reckless applications.

TO BECOME PESTICIDE RE-CERTIFIED

If you were too busy to attend a farm meeting this past winter, you may have missed your chance to become pesticide re-certified by this summer; this was done at most of our Extension meetings held since January. However, I'm informed that the State Department of Agriculture has extended the deadline until January 1, 1981 to become re-certified; the original deadline was September 30, 1980. This will permit applicators more time to attend an educational meeting to become eligible for re-certification. In addition, most farmers and gardeners can make the needed purchases for this season by September 30. The need to

Pseudorabies infects 6 herds

LANCASTER — Two more Lancaster County swine herds were found to be infected with pseudorabies during the past week, bringing the total number of infected herds in southeastern Pennsylvania to six.

The infected herds now include four in Lancaster County and one each in Dauphin and Lebanon counties. The Lancaster County herds are located in the northern and eastern sections, primarily the Denver and East Earl areas.

The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's investigation is continuing, according to Dr. John Cable, Chief of the Swine Health Division, Bureau of Animal Industry.

Sixteen herds had been under quaratine, according to Dr. Cable, including precautionary measures taken with herds who had come into contact with infected herds. The quaratine has been released from five such herds, bringing the total number under quarantine presently to 11.

1979 wool payments estimated at $34 million

WASHINGTON - Sheep producers will receive about $34 million in federal incentive payments on their 1979 marketings of shorn wool compared with $34.8 million last year, according to Ray Fitzgerald, administrator of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service. Fitzgerald said payments will be made soon through ASCS county offices.

Current legislation provides for a shorn wool support price of $1.15 per pound. The 1979 national average market price for shorn wool was 86.3 cents a pound, 28.7 cents under the support price. Therefore, the payment rate for 1979 marketings of shorn wool—the amount required to bring the average price up to the incentive price—will be 33.3 percent, compared to 45.0 percent in 1978.

Fitzgerald said the wool program is intended to encourage a producer to improve the quality of wool. A grower's incentive payment is determined by multiplying the payment rate times the net dollar return received from the sale of wool.

Fitzgerald also said the payment rate will be $1.15 per hundredweight on unshorn lambs sold or slaughtered in 1979. This payment is to compensate growers for wool in live lambs they market. The payment is based on the shorn wool payment rate, the average weight of wool per hundredweight of lambs and the price of lamb's wool relative to the national average price for shorn wool.

Deductions of 2-½ cents a pound from 1979 shorn wool payments and 12-½ cents per hundred pounds of liveweight from 1979 lamb payments will be made to finance advertising, sales promotion and related market development activities. These deductions were approved by a 75.3 percent favorable vote by sheep producers voting in an August 1978 referendum.

No payments will be required on 1979 marketings of mohair as the average of $5.10 a pound received by growers was above the announced support level of $1.94 a pound.

Sheepmen sought for new directory

ALLENTOWN — Sheep producers from several southeastern Pennsylvania counties are cooperating to develop a regional sheep directory.

Through listings and advertisements, the publication will promote sheep sales and help breeders locate foundation and replacement animals. Listings will include each breeder's name, address, phone number, sheep breed (s) and categories of sale items, including rams, ewes, club or feeder lambs, market lambs and wool. Breeders and sheep-related businesses may buy additional space in the directory for advertisements.

If you are a Southeastern Pennsylvania sheep producer who has not already received directory information from your wool pool of County Extension Office, please call your County Agent for more details.

NFU calls for hearings on embargo relief

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The Board of Directors of the National Farmers Union Friday called for immediate congressional oversight hearings on the effectiveness of the Carter Administration's embargo relief measures.

The board said they would like to see the U.S. Senate and House Agriculture committees focus on two statements made by U.S. Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland on January 5, 1980.

In a statement made at the time of the embargo, Bergland said: "The President has directed that actions be taken to assure that the burden of the suspension of agriculture export deliveries to the Soviet Union will not fall unfairly on farmers."

Bergland also said: "The Secretary of Agriculture will use existing authorities to remove feed grains and wheat from the market and to offset the expected decline in market prices."

In telegrams to chairman Talmadge of the U.S. Agriculture Committee and chairman Tom Foley of the U.S. House Agriculture Committee, the National Farmers Union board said, "We are in the middle of a tragic crisis in American Agriculture. We have a disastrously low farm price situation that has not been resolved by price support measures promised by the administration. The administration's purchases, for example, have fallen short of its commitment to the nation's grain producers."

Pennsylvania board representative, Forney Longenecker, Lititz, pointed out that farmers are "taking their worst beating since the dust bowl years" because of a combination of low farm prices, inflation, soaring farm costs and high interest rates.

"We want to see the Carter Administration held accountable for its promises to farmers when it slapped on the January 4 embargo," Longenecker said.

The National Farmers Union board concluded, "The only way farmers are going to survive this crisis is to focus national attention on the situation and to get emergency action from the White House and the Congress.

"There is no way we can live with record-high interest rates, soaring farm costs and extremely low prices for farm commodities."

White Rose Dairy 4-H sees demonstrations

YORK — The April meeting of the White Rose Dairy Club was held at the extension office.

Guest speaker was Tom Boyer. Boyer talked on showing and fitting.

Two demonstrations were given. Todd Rutter gave his demonstration on fitting, and Jim Rexroth one on dehorning.

The next meeting will be held May 13 at the Blessing Farm. Reported by Lorie Kessler.

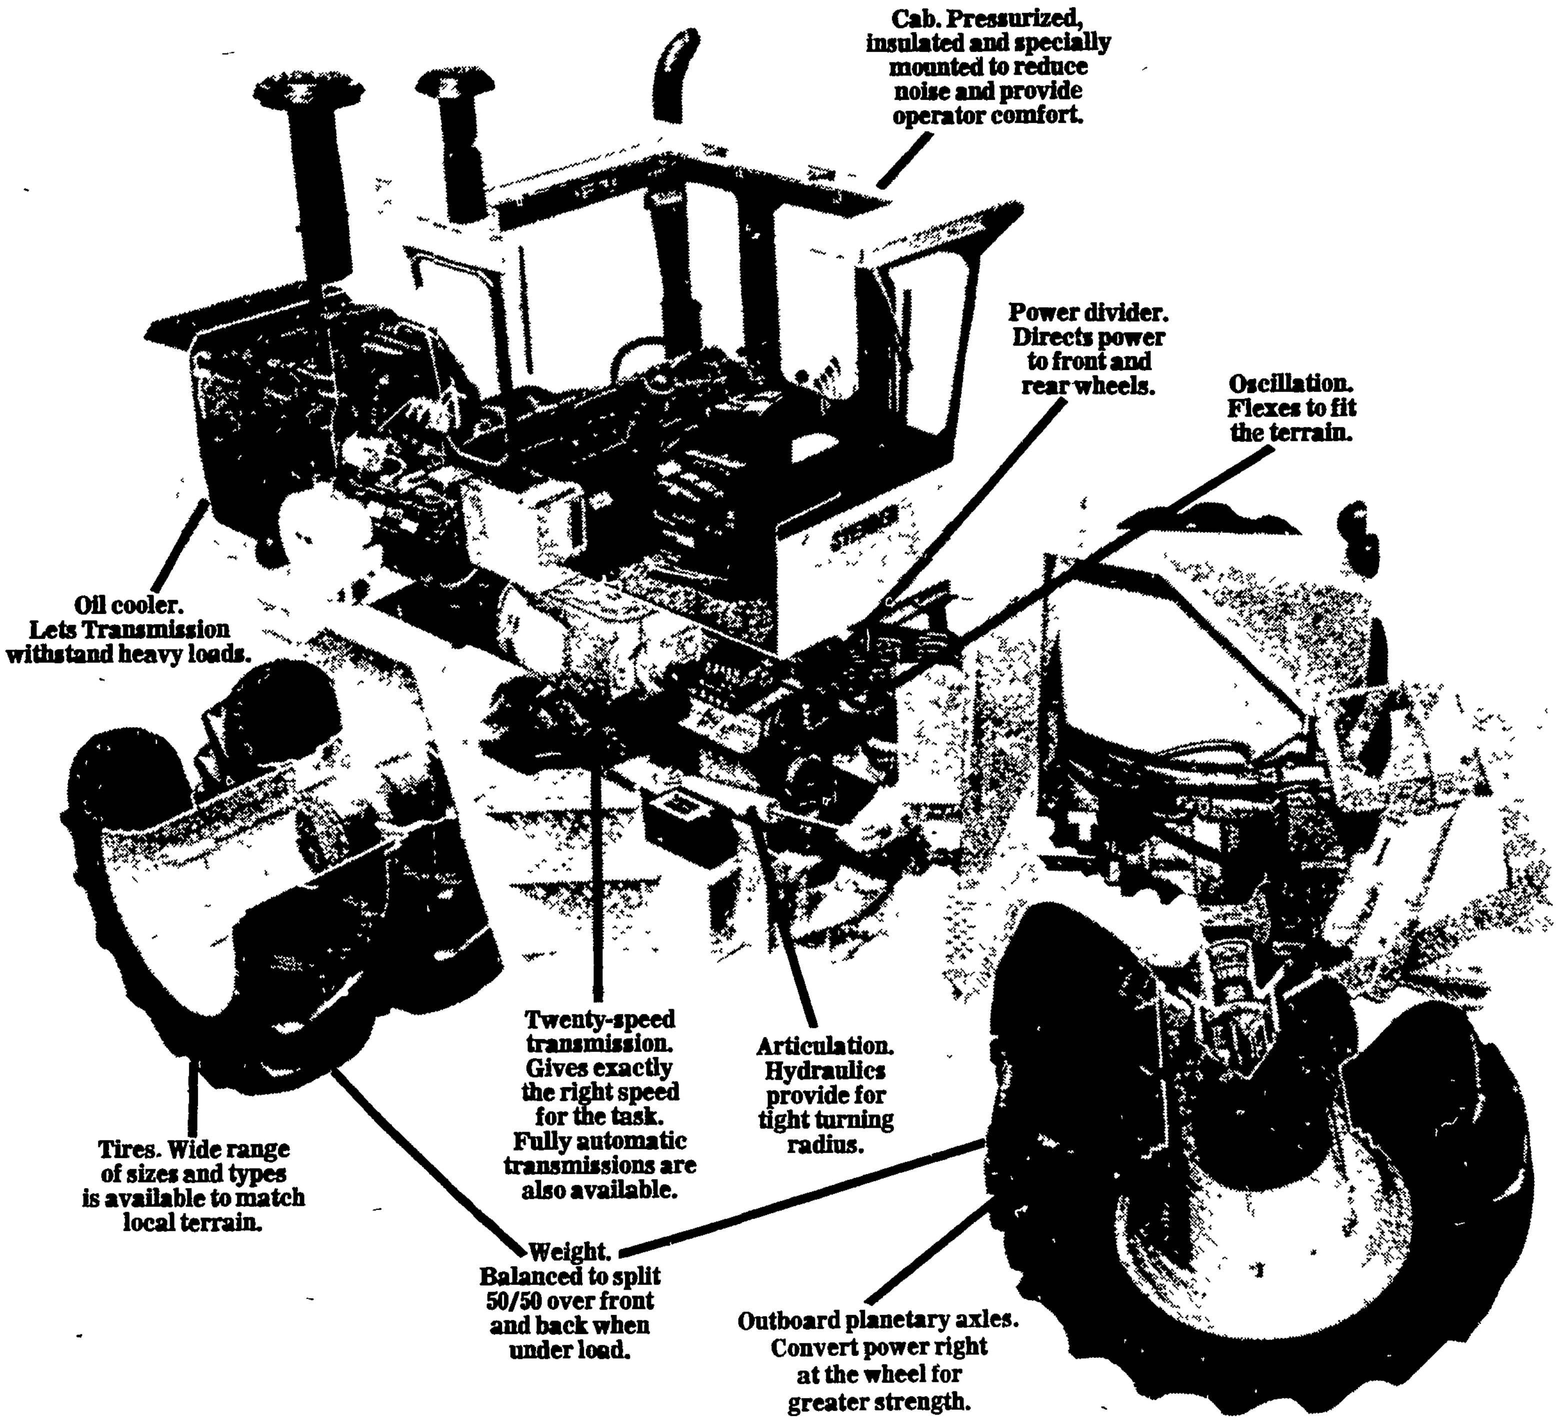
BIG FARM POWER AND EQUIPMENT

WHAT TO LOOK FOR IN A FOUR-WHEEL DRIVE

COMPARE STEIGER:



Cab. Pressurized, insulated and specially mounted to reduce noise and provide operator comfort.
Power divider. Directs power to front and rear wheels.
Oscillation. Flexes to fit the terrain.
Oil cooler. Lets Transmission withstand heavy loads.
Twenty-speed transmission. Gives exactly the right speed for the task. Fully automatic transmissions are also available.
Articulation. Hydraulics provide for tight turning radius.
Tires. Wide range of sizes and types is available to match local terrain.
Weight. Balanced to split 50/50 over front and back when under load.

THE KEYS TO COMPARING 4WD TRACTORS.

Drawbar horsepower. The most basic criterion is how much can it pull, as measured in horsepower at the drawbar This is more important than engine horsepower because the drawbar is the working end of the tractor

Cost per drawbar horsepower. This is the real way to measure what you're getting for the money Just divide the cost by the tested drawbar horsepower and you've got a figure you can use to compare all makes and types of tractors

Fuel consumption How much work can the machine squeeze out of a gallon of diesel fuel? While many people gauge fuel efficiency by gallons per hour this is not the the best measurement The best way amount of work per gallon or more scientifically horsepower hours/gallon

Drive train ratio. Divide the drawbar horsepower by engine horsepower The result, expressed as a percentage, indicates how much power is actually available to do work at the drawbar

Weight to horsepower. Generally speaking the higher the weight to horsepower ratio the more power the tractor will ultimately deliver You might ask why doesn't everyone build them real heavy? The answer the cost of steel But like in everything else you can find quality if you look for it

Noise All manufacturers have a decibel rating on their cabs One Steiger four-wheel-drive has been proven to be as quiet as 75 5 decibels under full power and load That's about as quiet as a pick-up truck A quiet tractor reduces operator fatigue improves productivity

Farmers, legislators meet, discuss pending issues

HARRISBURG — Farmers from Lancaster County and across Pennsylvania met with their legislators Tuesday in Harrisburg.

The all-day meeting, sponsored by Pennsylvania Farmers' Association, started with lobbying on Capitol Hill and ended with the traditional legislative banquet Tuesday evening in Camp Hill.

In his talk to legislators, PFA Vice President D. Eugene Gayman covered farmers' requests for exemption from the one percent capital stock tax on farm corporations, the need for energy priority for farm operations, milk security legislation, and asked legislators to enact laws to give farmers say in bargaining.

About 470 people were present at the banquet including an estimated 70 state representatives and senators.

PFA President Eugene Thompson told the legislators that some 400 northeast Pennsylvania farmers could lose at least $32 million annually because of the current truck weight limit of 73,280 on Pennsylvania highways.

He noted only six states east of the Mississippi have not raised their weight limitation to 80,000 pounds as favored by PFA.

Thompson called the lower weight limit "a major trade barrier" and said neglect by the lawmakers to raise the limit "surely will eliminate some of those dairymen from the farming business."

The Indiana County dairyman earlier in the day called on Governor Richard Thornburgh to seek a quick solution to the problems involved in the safe removal of krypton gas from containment at Three Mile Island.

"We are concerned that further delay could result in possible deterioration of the containment building and cause uncontrolled venting," Thompson said.

"The agricultural community in Pennsylvania could not withstand the economic loss that would follow uncontrolled venting," he added.

In his evening address at the banquet, Gayman pointed out that farmers are this nation's largest consumer. He told legislators that the average farmer has over $250,000 invested in his operation.

"Preservation of the family farm is a vital concern," Gayman continued. "Almost everything has to do with farmers jumping economic hurdles."

He said the number one farm imput is land and said PFA sees a need to protect the farmer's property rights.

In particular, Gayman called for legislation which would allow land taken through eminent domain to be resold to the owner at the original price up to 10 years after condemnation.

Present law eliminates return of such land after three years and is blamed for getting government into land speculation.

The Franklin County dairyman said farmers need an exemption from the capital stock tax for closely held family farms.

He said the best way to assure a farm can be passed on to one's heirs is to incorporate it, but added that present corporate tax bills of $2500 to $7500 a year make it prohibitive for farmers to take this route.

Gayman spoke of the need for sufficient fuel for tillage, guilty at the formal hearing, the Co-op faces two potential consequences: it could have its Pennsylvania license completely revoked, or it could have the license suspended for a given number of days.

Dairylea

In similar cases in the past, suspension has been the typical verdict.

The state's Milk Marketing Law allows any dealer to buy back its suspension at the rate of $50 a day. The funds from the fine go to the Milk Marketing Board fund.

If the Co-op should be found guilty and should elect to buy back its suspension, the action should not have any effect on Dairylea members other than the revenue loss. Dairylea would not be forced to give up its contract with A&P.

In a separate case evolving from the Dairylea-A&P Scranton deal, arguments were heard Monday in Commonwealth Court on charges leveled against Dairylea by Lehigh Valley Farms February 13, 1980 that Dairylea was involved in illegal tolling.

The charges alleged violation of PMMB's Regulation 141.4 which prohibits such action.

Dairylea has denied the charges and said it is in full compliance with PMMB regulations.

The parties involved in the court action are waiting for the judge to render a decision. That decision probably will not be handed down for two weeks.

Poultry industry, economy to be featured June 26

LANCASTER — The "State of the Economy" and "State of the Poultry Industry" will headline the 1980 Pennsylvania Poultry Conference on Thursday, June 26, 1980, at the Host Corral in Lancaster.

The all-day meeting also features separate broiler, egg, and turkey conferences with prominent speakers from throughout the United States and Canada.

Speaking to the "State of the Economy" will be distinguished economic columnist, Robert Metz. Metz is the author of the daily column, the "Market Place" for the New York Times and best selling books, How to Shake the Money Tree, CBS Reflections in a Bloodshot Eye and The Today Show. Metz holds a B.A. degree in economics from Denison University and a law degree from Case Reserve University.

Speaking about the State of the Poultry Industry will be distinguished publisher, John Yarbrough. Yarbrough is publisher of the "Poultry Times," the weekly newspaper of the poultry industry which also features a weekly editorial, "Letter to the Folks", by Yarbrough.

All attendees to the conference will gather together prior to lunch to hear Metz and again at the end of the day to hear Yarbrough.

The remainder of the day is devoted to separate conferences for the broiler, egg and turkey industries covering production, processing and marketing topics.

The educational conference begins at 9:30 a.m. and concludes at 4 p.m.

The Pennsylvania Poultry Federation, which sponsors the conference, holds its Annual Banquet in the evening where selection for the Broiler, Egg, and Turkey Industryman of the Year are announced. The Conference and Banquet is open to any interested persons. Registration fee for the conference is $15 and banquet tickets are $13. Luncheon tickets are available for $7.

For further information or registration forms, contact the Pennsylvania Poultry Federation, 500 N. Progress Avenue, Harrisburg, PA 17109 or call that office at 717/652-7530.

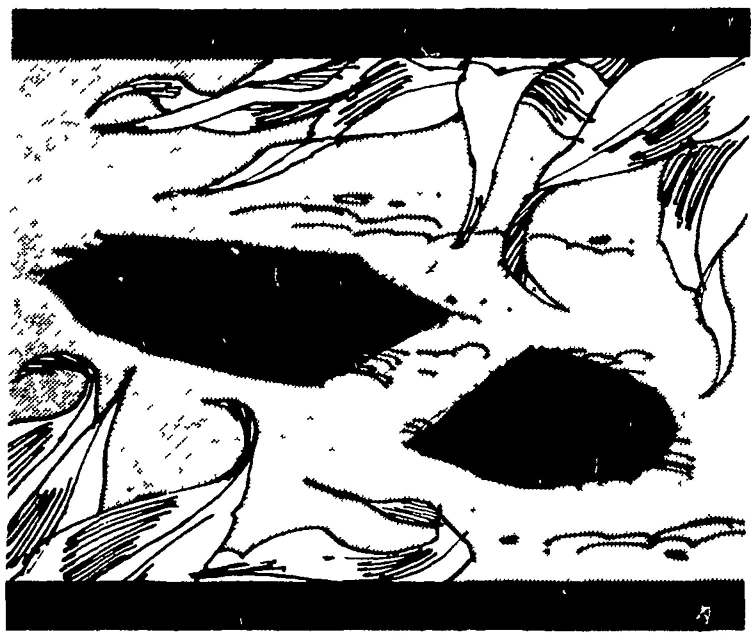
Solanco 4-H

QUARRYVILLE — The Solanco Community 4-H Club will hold its second registration night, Friday, May 9 from 7:30-9:00 p.m. at the Solanco Fair Building.

This meeting will be the last chance to enroll in the project club of your choice. For further information call 717/786-2531 or 717/529-2460.

Pre-emergence tank-mix combination controls both grassy and broadleaf weeds

Banvel®+ Lasso®*



a giant first step toward total weed control in field corn

Successful on millions of acres where corn is the major crop, the Banvel + Lasso herbicide combination can give you "near perfect" (90-100 percent) control of a wide spectrum of grassy and broadleaf weeds, when used according to label directions.

Banvel + Lasso herbicide is compatible with most fluid fertilizers. It needs no incorporation. There is no carryover.

Take a giant step toward total weed control. Call about the Banvel + Lasso combination. Remember, the "near perfect" herbicide is the one you build...starting with Banvel herbicide...from Velsicol.

*The combination is effective on all major soil types except light-sandy soils Lasso is a registered trademark of Monsanto Company

Berks FFA honors Greist and Imes

BY LAUREL SCHAEFFER
Staff Correspondent

KUTZTOWN — Members of the Berks County FFA Chapter, representing the six local chapters of the county gathered recently at the Kutztown Grange Hall here for their annual banuqet.

Highlighting the evening was the presentation of awards to members achieving success in county competition throughout the year. But perhaps the most meaningful awards presented were the County Star Farmer and Star Agribusinessman Degrees.

Receiving these honors were the County President, Howard Greist of Twin Valley FFA - County Star Farmer, and the County Vice-President, Steven Imes of Oley FFA - County Star Agribusinessman.

Greist also received awards in the form of trophies for County Agronomy and first place in extemporaneous speaking in the county contest, edging out his rival, in the latter competition, Bruce Latshaw.

Imes also received a trophy for public speaking. He was first in the county contest for general speaking.

Other star awards were presented as follows: Star Chapter Farmers - Henry Noss, Conrad Weiser; Allan Rohrbach, Hamburg; Dean Bruno, Kutztown; Scott Hauseman, Oley; and Penny Bicksler, Tulpehocken.

Star Chapter Agribusinessman - Debbie Miller, Conrad Weiser; Keith Flicker, Kutztown; Barry Zeigler, Tuplehocken; and Thomas Kirk, Twin Valley.

Star Chapter Greenhands were: Scott Troutman, Conrad Weiser; Todd Miller, Hamburg; Mark Latshaw, Kutztown; Phillip LeVan, Oley; William Lesher, Tulpehocken; and Pam Trostle, Twin Valley.

Other trophy recipients included the following: small engines - team-Kutztown - Dean Bruno and Keith Flicker; individuals, Dean Bruno. Salesmanship - Henry Noss, Conrad Weiser; Interview - Larry Shrawder, Kutztown; Land Judging - 1. Larry Grumbine, Tulephocken; 2. Ernest Gelsinger, Conrad Weiser; 3. David Schaeffer, Conrad Weiser; land judging team - Conrad Weiser; forestry - David Kramer, Conrad Weiser; swine show-fitting - Henry Noss; showmanship - Scott Stoltzfus, Twin Valley; reserve champion - Marjorie Faust, Kutztown; grand champion - Tim Stoltzfus, Twin Valley.

County Greenhand contest - Joe Gingrich, Conrad Weiser; Chapter Farmer contest - Mike Mertz, Kutztown; wildlife - Martin Miller, Twin Valley; orienteering - Marc Leinbach, Conrad Weiser; corn yield - Roger Stoltzfus, Twin Valley; corn quality - George Sattazahn, Tulpehocken; corn silage - Eric Wright - Twin Valley; wheat - Ernest Gelsinger; alfalfa hay - Chris Bear, Kutztown; dairy judging - 1. Scott Hauseman, Oley; 2. Tim Kurtz, Twin Valley; 3. Steve Snyder, Twin Valley; agronomy - Gerald Haas, Kutztown; pleasure horse - Linda Robinson, Twin Valley; dairy foods - Don Kercher, Twin Valley; meats - Donna Devine, Twin Valley; agriculture mechanics - Dean Bruno; basketball - senior team, Kutztown; junior team, Conrad Weiser; volley ball - senior team, Conrad Weiser; junior team, Conrad Weiser; scrapbook - Twin Valley.

Awards for county project books went as follows: poultry - Kutztown FFA; rabbits - Marlowe Greis, Kutztown; dairy calf - Steven Kearns, Twin Valley; dairy herd - Kevin Sattazahn, Conrad Weiser; beef finishing - Ellen Kamp, Kutztown; swine breeding - Brian Schaeffer, Conrad Weiser; field corn - Brian LeVan, Oley; horses - Linda Robinson; garden - Doug Zimmerman, Conrad Weiser; swine finishing - Tim Stoltzfus; wildlife - Michael Eshenour, Oley; 2 enterprise - Mark Bruno, Kutztown; 3 enterprise - Ted Kleinsmith, Kutztown; 4 enterprise - Dean Bruno; 5 and 6 enterprise - Daryl Kunkel, Kutztown; work Experience (0-400 hours) Tom McDermott, Twin Valley; (600-1,000 hours) Deborah Miller, Conrad Weiser; 1,000-1,500 hours - Ronald Swope, Tulpehocken; 1,500-2,000 hours - Tom Kearns; Twin Valley; over 2,000 hours - Tom Kirk, Twin Valley.

Public Speaking awards, other than the two previously mentioned included: general - 2. Deborah Miller; 3. Michael Mertz; extemporaneous - 2. Bruce Latshaw, Kutztown; 3. Richard Hershberger, Kutztown; conservation - 1. Steven Kearns, 2 . Bruce Latshaw, 3. Roger Stoltzfus

The top county parlimentary procedures team was Twin Valley. Debbie Miller of Conrad Weiser was chosen as the Berks County FFA Princess, she will participate in the state FFA contest held later this year.

Honorary Degrees were bestowed upon: Kenneth Heimbach, and Stephen Miller, vocational agriculture teachers; Duane Pysher, ASCS; and Heindel Farms, owned by George and Glenn Seidel, Robesonia, by the county officers.

Receiving letters of appreciation were; Mary Ann Rimby of Berks County Conservation District, Mr. and Mrs. David Steigerwald, and Mr. and Mrs. Lester Gelsinger.

Charles Suloff for Berks-Lehigh Production Credit presented awards sponsored by his association to two FFA members keeping good records. Receiving the County award was Ernest Gelsinger, while the Regional Award was presented to Dean Bruno.

Gelsinger was cited placing second in the state land judging contest held last June at Penn State. He along with his advisor, Stephen Miller will be participating in the national contest being held this week in Oklahoma City, Oklahoma, as a member of the Pennsylvania FFA land judging team. Miller is serving as the team coach.

New Holland Baby Beef Club sees slides

NEW HOLLAND — The New Holland 4-H Baby Beef Club met last Friday at the Terre Hill Silo Co.

Roll call was answered by each member giving a report on their steer.

Speaker for the evening was Leon Weaver, a veterinarian from California who was a former 4-H member. He showed slides on California scenery and farms.

The club's next meeting will be held Friday, May 16. Reported by Stephanie Yost.

Land preservation moves ahead in Md.

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — As the Maryland Agricultural Land-Preservation program approaches its first anniversary some eight counties now have voluntary preservation districts established, totaling 10,500 acres of productive farm land.

The 41 districts established so far are in Anne Arundel, Caroline, Carroll, Dorchester, Frederick, Harford, Howard, and St. Marys Counties.

Petitions requesting the establishment of additional districts are now in the works in Baltimore, Calvert Charles, Garrett, Montgomery, Talbot, and Washington Counties. (These additional districts, if all approved on the local and state level, would increase the acreage in the program to as much as 18,000 acres.)

Carroll County is the leading county for district establishment with districts now formed comprising 3,350 acres.

The Maryland Agricultural Land Preservation Foundation, which administers the program on the state level, has now begun to acquire development rights easements; some initial option contracts have been signed, and by June the Foundation should have acquired, or be moving toward settlements for development rights on 15 of the 16 farms for which develoment right easement sale offers have been tendered upon request of the owners.

The Foundation, part of the Maryland Department of Agriculture, has received easement funding from the General Assembly totaling $5 million. The latest funding appropriations were allocated by action of the 1980 session of the legislature and totaled $3 million coming from the state's open space program. Earlier sessions of the legislature had provided $2 million in easement purchase funding.

In addition, local governments have tentatively committed more than $2.5 million in matching funds for easement acquisition in the coming year.

Broiler placements rise

HARRISBURG — Placements of broiler chicks in the Commonwealth during the week ending April 19 were 2,314,000, according to the Pennsylvania Crop Reporting Service.

The placements were one percent above both the previous week and the corresponding week a year earlier. Average placements during the past nine weeks were four percent above a year earlier.

Placements in the 21 key poultry producing states were 83,373,000, two percent above the previous week, but about the same as a year earlier. Average placements during the past nine weeks were three percent above a year ago.

Broiler-fryers slaughtered in Pennsylvania under federal inspection during the week ending April 9 totaled 1,959,000, with an average liveweight of 4.21 pounds.

planting, harvesting, refrigerating crops, and transporting them to market.

He said farmers need high priority for fuel in times of shortage.

He also called for more research in energy.

Labeling current milk bonding laws "a disruptive element in the industry," Gayman told legislators the present Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board bond is totally inadequate.

He said PFA supports full coverage of milk payment lost due to a dealer's bankrupcy, and said that PFA sees a two cent dealer contribution rate as "necessary."

He said current legislation written with a one cent dealer contribution is insufficient. He said the fund could be bankrupt before it ever got cff the ground.

"A two cent contribution is necessary," he concluded.

Gayman also asked for enhanced marketing and bargaining legislation.

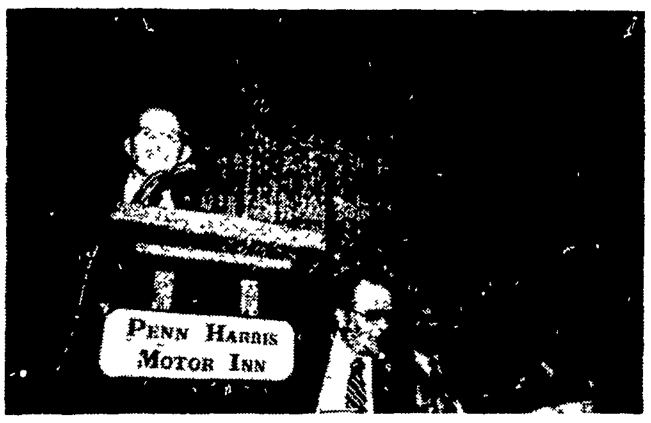
"Farmers need to be given the opportunity to sit down with the handler to negotiate terms and prices for the commodity that they're selling," Gayman said.

In addition to the speaches, farmers had the chance to talk one-on-one with their legislators at the Capital and express positions on issues of local and state-wide concern.

In addition to representatives of predominantly rural districts, at least two Philadelphia lawmakers were present to hear the farmer's story.

The topics addressed by Thompson and Gayman were among the most common discussed. But local concerns, including spraying of municipal waste on farm land in Montgomery County; a proposed landfill in Bradford County; and land preservation in Lancaster County also were discussed.—CH

With Senator Richard Snyder, far left, were Bud Dean, Strasburg; Representative Noah Wenger, Stevens; Aaron Stauffer, Ephrata; Don Ranck, Paradise; and Gerald Erb, Mt. Joy.



PFA Vice President Eugene Gayman addressed about 470 people at the banquet as PFA President Eugene Thompson, Dick Newpher, Secretary of Agriculture Penrose Hallowell, and Legislative Affairs Director Al Myers listened.

Cattle on feed drops slightly

HARRISBURG — Pennsylvania cattle feeders had 68,000 cattle and calves on feed April 1, 1980 for slaughter market, down six percent from last year, according to the Pennsylvania Crop Reporting Service.

Marketings of fed cattle during the January-March quarter of 21,000 were down 19 percent from the same quarter a year earlier. Placements of cattle and calves on feed during the January-March quarter totaled 12,000, 29 percent less than the same quarter last year.

Expected marketings during the April-June quarter, if realized at 30,000, would be three percent more than were marketed during the same period a year ago.

Cattle and calves on feed for slaughter market in the 23 states on April 1, 1980 totaled 10.2 million head. This number was down eight percent from the same date in 1979 and is 13 percent less than two years ago.

Placements during January-March were 5.22 million, 11 percent fewer than in the corresponding quarter in 1979 and 20 percent less than the first quarter of 1978.

Other disappearance of 572,000 leaves net placements of 4.65 million.

Marketings of fed cattle for slaughter during January-March totaled 6.16 million, down nine percent from the same period in both 1979 and 1978.

Cattle feeders expect to market 5.91 million head during the April-June quarter of 1980. This would be four percent less than second quarter marketings in 1979 and 11 percent below the same period in 1978.

Johnston is 63rd Little I's best showman

BY SHEILA MILLER

UNIVERSITY PARK — Each year students at Penn State compete in a livestock show known as the Little International.

The show, sponsored by the Block and Bridle Club at the university, gathers students from just about every curriculum for several weeks of fun, painfully hard work, and sometimes heartbreak.

At the beginning of Spring term, students take pot luck and draw an entry in classes of either sheep, beef, swine, or horses.

Armed with brushes and enthusiam, they groom their entries until they think they're arms will fall off. They also practice their showmanship skills, sometimes on animals that don't have the least intentions of cooperating in the effort.

Shrugging off the bumps, bruises, and aching muscles and donning their clean boots and jeans, the students prepare for the big show day.

Most of the students watch the sun rise on Saturday morning. They know they must have their animals ready for the starting time of 8 a.m.

Parents, friends and faculty watch as the students give their best performance in the show ring — eyeing-up the bright silver tray and purple ribbons reserved for the grand champion showman.

This year the honor went to Lee Johnston, of New Alexandria. The reserve grand champion showman was Don Wilson, Summerhill.

Johnston proved he was the top showman by not only winning the championship in the swine division, but by doing the best job showing a horse, beef, and sheep.

Other winners of the day were: Dale Rains, Mercer, champion beef showman and fitter; Tracey Higgins, Chadds Ford, reserve champion beef showman and fitter; Gail Snyder, New Tripoli, champion sheep fitter; Gabriella Geiger, Doylestown, reserve champion sheep showman and fitter; Ken Brockett, Lewistown, reserve champion swine showman; Susan Hoyt, Williamsport,

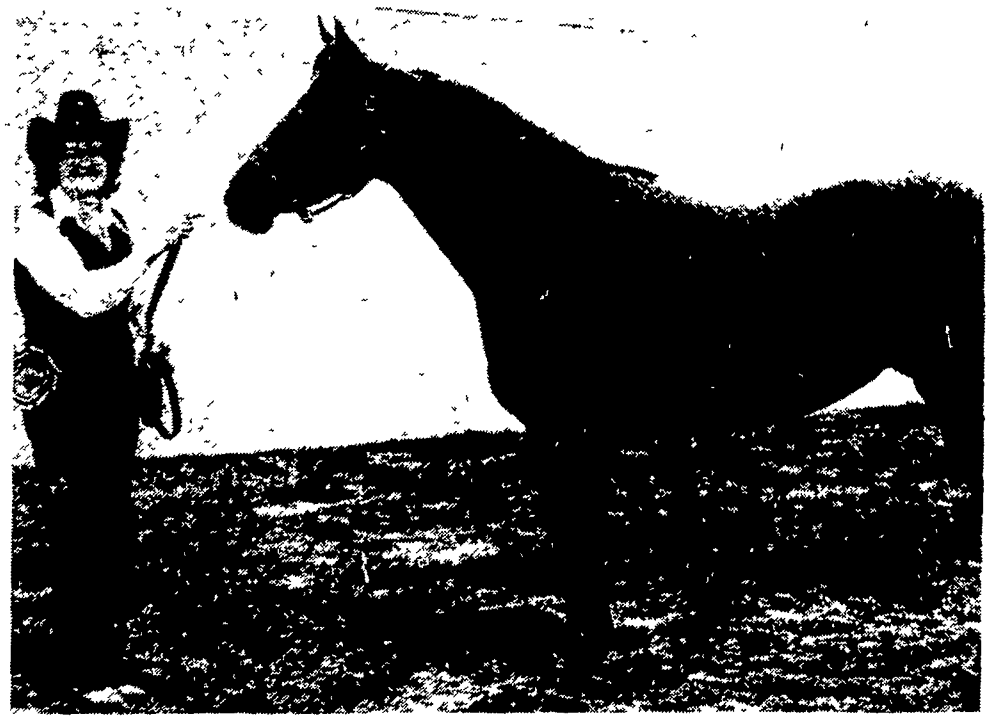
Students swap books for brushes

The 63rd Little International, sponsored by the Block and Bridle Club, was held for the second consecutive year in the new Beef and Sheep Barn at Penn State. The two year old facility was filled to overflowing with faculty, students, parents and friends, not to mention the livestock. This annual event was the finale for over 150 students who spent many long, tiresome hours leading, washing, brushing, and clipping their entries.

Not every contestant was able to take home a ribbon, but they were all winners, learning patience and hard work from the animals and sportsmanship in the show ring.



Martha Gregory, Lititz, showed her entry Fiesta Skip to a win in the horse showmanship competition, beating 20 other contestants.

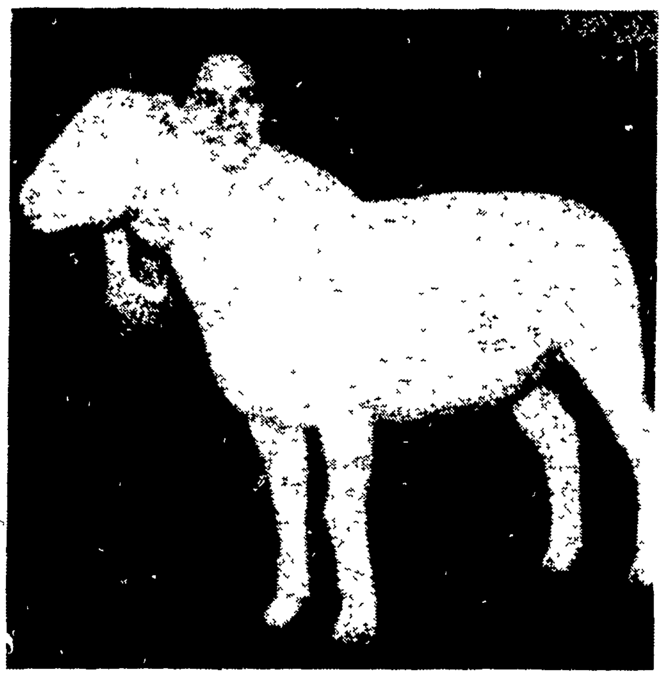
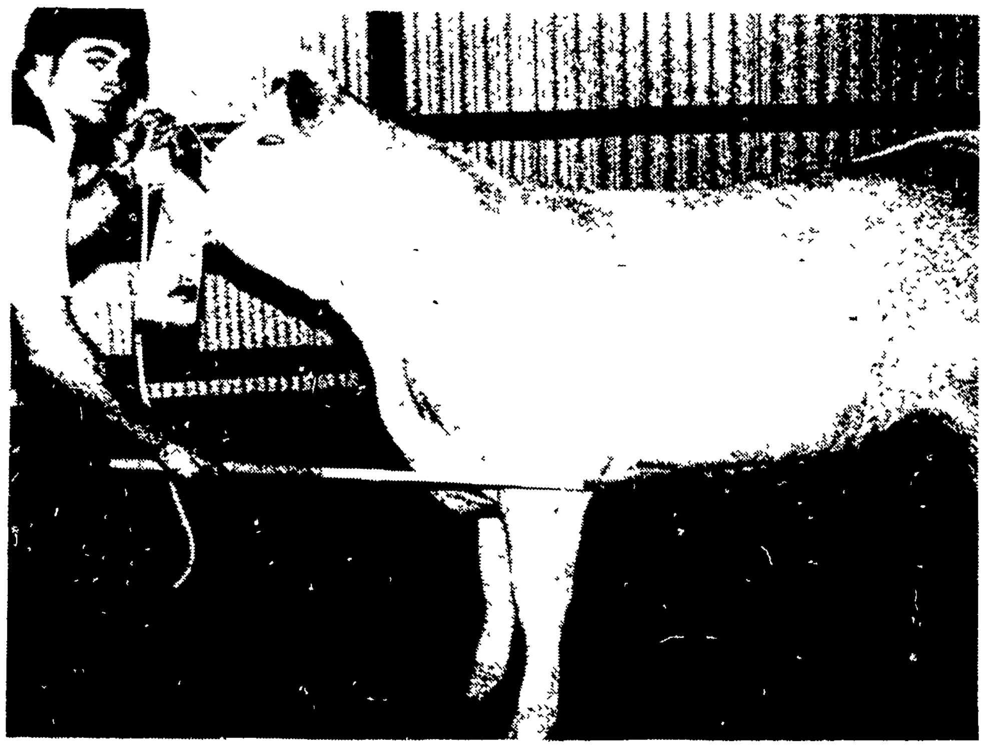
Jeff Bylerly, a junior dairy production major and member of the Block and Bridle Club, received this year's Glenn R. Kean Award for leadership.



Gail Snyder, New Tripoli, took champion honors in sheep fitting.



Dale Rains cleaned up the honors in the beef division, capturing the championships tor fitting and showmanship.

Horsepowers fight to finish at Strasburg

STRASBURG — Interested in watching a race between a four-legged horse and an iron one?

Horsemen and locomotive enthusiasts will be out in droves to watch horseflesh pitted against steam power in a great race between the Strasburg engine and a stagecoach.

According to Don Denlinger, of Strasburg, the event to be held on May 10 at 2:30 p.m., will be a re-enactment of a similar race that took place 150 years ago. "If you miss this one," he said, "you'll have to wait another 50 years to see it again."

Denlinger explained that 150 years ago, people did not believe that a steam engine, or a 'tea kettle on four wheels' could pull itself, let alone passengers and freight.

But, he added, a locomotive called the Friend of Charleston, was gaining the reputation of breaking all speed records at an incredible 35 mph.

This new era in transportation threatened the stage coaches — the only method of mass-transit at the time. And in 1830, a challenge for a race was heralded from the horseman to the boiler-makers.

The steam engine 'John Bull' didn't fair too well in the original race, noted Denlinger. "The belt blew off the blower so there was nothing to keep the draft on the fire and the engine lost its pressure."

The horses won the first race, but that was the only one, Denlinger said. After its defeat, the steam engine was revamped — converted to chain drive. This turned the tables in the rematch, giving victory to the iron horse.

The May 10 race will be for a quarter mile between a stagecoach driven by Circle M Ranch's Tom Ricks and Fred Germer and the Strasburg steam engine. The winner will go on to race the Stanley Steamers.

Denlinger said it took some looking to find a stagecoach for the race. "People who had the stagecoaches didn't want us to hook horses to them. Mitchell Hill Carriage Museum finally located one in North Carolina.

"It was actually manufactured in Concord, New Hampshire. We had to completely restore the coach — put on a new tongue, straighten the undercarriage."

In the original race, the coach was pulled by one horse as depicted in a photo drawing that Denlinger had on hand. But, this time, there will be two horses pulling the coach, and there will be four passengers — women from the Mary Faree Society, Paradise, wearing costumes from the period.

Denlinger said the horses that Circle M will be driving are Hanover Downs harness race horses. "We tried them out last week and they didn't like the screaming whistle. They were up on their hind feet ... hopefully by Saturday's race they will be down on all fours."—SM

Circle M Ranch's Tom Ricks, right, and horse-trainer Fred Germer will be driving the stagecoach in the great race between horseflesh and the Strasburg locomotive on May 10th.

Sheep and lamb sale slated

MERCER — The County Sheep and Wool Growers Associations of Northwest Pennsylvania will be holding their sixth annual sheep and lamb sale on Saturday, May 10.

Over 400 lots will be consigned at the Mercer County 4-H Park. The sale is slated to begin at 7 p.m.

Thirty-six lots of registered yearling ewes are entered for the sale, consisting of Hampshire, Suffolk, Merino, Rambouillet, Southdown, Oxford, Corriedale, Shropshire, Dorset and Polled Dorset sheep.

There will be eighteen lots of non-registered yearling ewes.

Sixty-six of the lots offered for sale will be registered ewe lambs, with seventy-three lots of non-registered lambs.

Over 50 yearling and lamb rams will be offered for sale, along with more than 130 wethers.

Auctioneer for the sale will be Lloyd Braham, Grove City.

New Bolton Center dedicates new addition

KENNETT SQUARE — An addition to the large animal clinic at the New Bolton Center, the rural campus for the University of Pennsylvania's School of Veterinary Medicine, officially opens on Monday, May 12, 1980.

The new facility, made possible by a gift from the George Dunton Widener Estate, and the existing New Bolton Center large animal clinic, will be renamed the George D. Widener Hospital during dedication ceremonies which will take place at 3 p.m. on the 12th.

Fitz Eugene Dixon, trustee of the George D. Widener estate, made the gift in honor of his late uncle and will participate in the dedication ceremonies.

"The gift was made because of my uncle's great interest in Thoroughbred horse racing," says Mr. Dixon. "During his lifetime, many of his horses received expert care and treatment at the New Bolton Center. And he was very active in promoting research pertaining to large animals."

The new facility will make possible improved services for patient admission and consultation and provide for better patient care, according to Dr. Richard M. McFeely, Associate Dean, New Bolton Center. Also, the addition of a teaching laboratory and lecture hall will alleviate overcrowded conditions thereby enabling the hospital to function more efficiently.

Located near Kennett Square in Chester County, the New Bolton Center occupies close to 1000 acres with over 50 buildings and a staff of 250 people.

One of the main features of the Center is the large animal hospital which provided medical care to about 3600 horses and over 500 food/fiber animals in 1979. In addition, over 5000 calls to attend sick animals were made to local farms by clinicians assigned to the health delivery service.

At New Bolton Center, third and fourth year University of Pennsylvania veterinary students have the opportunity to put into practice much of the knowledge acquired in the classroom.

In addition to the large animal hospital there are extensive research facilities where a wide variety of research projects are carried out as scientists try to find answers to problems such as mastitis, infertility, milk fever, digestive disorders and world hunger.

"We belive that our School is on the threshold of its most productive era," says Dr. McFeely. "We must continue to take broad responsibility for matters relating to the health and welfare of animals and man."

Tewksbury to retire from Eastern

MESHOPPEN — Arden Tewksbury will be retiring this month as President of Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative.

Arden Tewksbury

At the same time, Tewksbury will be completing his final term as an Eastern director. Tewksbury served the Co-op as a district 9 director.

A testimonial dinner is scheduled in his honor. Distinguished leaders in government and agriculture are expected to be among those in attendance to pay tribute to the retiring president of the Syracuse based Cooperative.

The dinner will be held Friday, May 23, at the Windy Mill Inn on Route 6 at Black Walnut, Pa.

The Inn is located between Meshoppen and Laceyville.

The affair is scheduled to begin at 7 p.m. with a social hour, to be followed by dinner at 8 p.m. and dancing after the dinner.

Forestry camp

CARLISLE — Each year the wood-using industries of Pennsylvania, together with the agricultural extension service, sponsor a Forestry Training Camp of one week at Stone Valley, in Centre County.

The 27th Annual Camp for both boys and girls will be held from August 10 to August 16, 1980.

Persons interested in being sponsored by Glatfelter should write to: The Glatfelter Pulp Wood Company, 25 S. Hanover Street, Carlisle, Pa. 17013.

The applicant should include in the letter his or her name, address, age, and phone number.

In addition, the following information: (1) Why the applicant would like to attend the camp, (2) To what use the training will be put, (3) Forestry projects completed, and (4) Anything else which would demonstrate his interest in forestry. The deadline for application is May 19, 1980.

Shorthorn sale nets $28,840

FREDERICK — The three top selling animals at the Eastern Invitational Shorthorn Sale, held on April 26 at the Frederick Fairgrounds brought $1400.
$1400.

Winholme Royal Robin 758 was the top selling bull, consigned by Windholme Farm, Orange, Virginia. He was purchased by George Gould, Stanley, Virginia.

One of the two top selling females was a bred heifer also consigned by Windholme Farm. Windholme Princess May 888 sold to J & T Valley Farm, Rickman, Tennessee.

T.H. Snethen of Dewittville, New York sold his bred heifer, Sangamon Prairie Sun to Windholme Farm for $1400, too.

A Pennsylvania consignor, Woodside Farm, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Bradley Eisiminger of Waynesburg, sold their bull, Woodside Champagne III to Holly Hill Farms, Ijamsville, Maryland for $1150.

The sale average for the seven bulls sold was $969; the twenty-nine females brought an average of $760 a piece; the total sale average of the thirty-six head was $801. Total sale income was $28,840.

Thirteen farms from eight states consigned cattle at this year's sale.

The sale was managed by Keith Moore, Decatur, Ohio.

Md. Angus sale good for Pa. cattlemen

FREDERICK — Pennsylvania consignors had the top selling females at the Maryland Angus Spring Quality Sale held recently at the Frederick Fairgrounds.

Logan Spring Farm, Bellwood, had the top selling heifer. She sold for $825 to Stonylonesome Farm, Stahlstown.

Stonylonesome Farm also bought the second high selling heifer for $800. They helped to pay for these new additions to their herd by selling the top cow at the sale. This $1000 cow, with a March heifer calf at her side, sold to Prospect Hill Farm, New Wilmington.

Although Pennsylvania cattlemen dominated the high selling and buying in the female department, the bulls were another story.

The top bull, a two year old son of Linebacker of Wye, brought $1750 for his consignor, Rocky Forge Farm, Hagerstown, Maryland. This bull sold to Harford Hill Farm, Fallston.

The second high selling bull was another Linebacker son consigned by Elceed Farm, Westover. He sold to Ned Dykes of Princess Anne, Maryland for $1500.

There were a total of 47 lots sold at the April sale, averaging $750. The 11 bulls averaged $921; 14 heifer calves averaged $606; and 22 cows averaged $756.

Volume buyers at the sale were: Harford Hill Farm; Jack Corwell, Clear Spring, Maryland; James A. Shade, Martinsburg, West Virginia; and Dawnrose Farm.

Managing the sale was Dean Considine, with Mike Jones as auctioneer.

In minimum till corn...
"Banvel® does a better job."

Wayne McGinnis, White Hall, MD

"Since we started using Banvel* herbicides six or seven years ago, we hardly ever see morningglory anymore. We get very good control of thistle Compared to 2,4-D, Banvel does a better job It gives a broader range of control of some of the more resistant broadleaves." . . Wayne McGinnis, White Hall, MD 600-700 acres of corn

"Go in with a half-pint of Banvel and a half-pint of 2,4-D With Banvel, control has been excellent Since we started this program, we just don't see weeds at harvest" . Fred Duncan, Broad Run, VA 1000 acres of corn

"Old 2,4-D has been a standby for years. But Banvel herbicide with 2,4-D gives much better control with Banvel herbicide and 2,4-D we're getting weeds we did not get with 2,4-D alone Banvel herbicide looks like the most economical way to control problem weeds" John 'Buddy' Burner, Luray, VA 150-200 acres of corn

"Canada thistle is our biggest problem . . we went to Banvel herbicide because we got twisted corn with 2,4-D. You have more tolerance with the weather. Banvel is a lot safer than the old 2,4-D" . . Breck Debnam, Chestertown, MD 2400 acres in corn

Successful minimum-till corn producers depend on Banvel* herbicide to stop tough, resistant, late emerging broadleaf weeds such as seedling Canada thistle, morningglory, pigweed and lambsquarter Tank-mixed with atrazine, Banvel knocks out horsenettle or combined with 2,4-D, it will stop velvetleaf, Canada thistle and many more.

Follow the lead of other successful Banvel users who have learned that Banvel herbicide is a much needed "success" ingredient for higher minimum-till corn yields.

Tops off Kountry Kitchen tour

Ladies Day Out luncheon held in Strasburg

Helen Wivell, left, receives a farm safety plaque from Doris Thomas at the Ladies Day Out Luncheon. While Helen received her award in earlier ceremonies, the plaque was a late arrival.

STRASBURG — The long calico dresses and white pinafores worn by the waitresses swirled quickly around the room serving a warming menu of Turkey Divan and continuing the Kountry Kitchen theme through luncheon at the PFA Ladies Day Out.

The event held Wednesday at Historic Strasburg topped off a rainy morning of touring 5 kitchens and 1 mill. But it was evident from the full house that the rain had not dampened anyone's spirits.Both the luncheon and the tour which preceded it were part of the PFA Ladies Day Out celebration of Farm City Day.

Among the distinguished guests present were: Mrs. Kenneth Brandt, Mrs. Clarence Manbeck, Mrs. Earl Smith and Mrs. Noah Wenger. Senator Ralph Hess was also on hand and served as pinch-hitter for regional organizational director Ed Taczanowsky in handing out appreciation gifts to the hostesses from the tour.

Hostesses honored for opening their homes on the tour were: Svea Hoover, Esther Landis, Evelyn Rohrer, Joy Haas, Joyce Hershey and Sue Groff.

Earl Newcomer, county association president commented he was glad for the rain. Without it, he stated, he'd be planting corn. He urged the group to get their husbands involved in policy development. And he poked fun at Senator Hess for his stand on the milk security fund.

Speaker for the gathering was Lettie Schedler. She outlined for the group where families are spending their food dollars and who is getting that dollar.

Lettie used statistics like $239 billion dollars on retail food spent last year up $27 billion from the previous year to impress upon the group the scope of the expenditure. Of this $239 billion she stated, $76.8 billion represents payment to the farmer, and $162 billion represents marketing costs. In addition, of the $27 billion increase over the year before, roughly two-thirds was from marketing costs. Only one-third was an increase in payments to the farmer.

She outlined briefly for the group marketing tactics used to persuade the families to use more processed food and eat away from home more often. Already, she noted, American families eat away from home for one-third of all meals. Fast food commercials aimed at kids by the major chain food services are geared to raise the younger generation to a life of fast food existence. 35 percent of the food dollar is eaten away from home now with the increase in families where two people are working constantly pushing that figure upward.

"One of the best things you can do for both your sons and daughters is to teach them to make things from scratch,"she stated. "Many people feel that this is rapidly becoming a lost art."

Additionally, she cautioned the group to keep an eye always to energy costs in food handling. Armed with statistics stating that the average family shops 150 times per year for food or roughly 3 times per week, she noted that convenience stores must charge more for convenience and that gas costs make organizing the family shopping even more critical. Freezing she noted may be less desirable in terms of energy costs than home canning.

Coupon clipping and refunding have reached epidemic proportions, Lettie noted. She stated, "Families caught in the rising costs of goods are looking for ways to offset fixed monthly bills such as energy costs. Therefore they're clipping more coupons then ever before."

One bright spot in the food marketing picture she noted was the emergence of tailgate markets. She noted that at one such market surveyed recently, the growers were receiving 33-45 percent more for their goods then they normally would and the consumers were getting fresher goods for an average of 29 percent less money. The gardening boom she noted has created a taste in the consumer for fresh produce.

The dried flower centerpieces for the luncheon were presented to ladies with specially marked programs.

Potatoes in storage drop

HARRISBURG — Potatoes held in storage by growers, local dealers and processors on April 1 were estimated at 1,200,000 cwt., down 23 percent from April 1, 1979 estimates, according to the Pennsylvania Crop Reporting Service.

Disappearance during March this year totaled 450,000 cwt. compared with 650,000 cwt. disappearance in the same period last year.

The seven eastern potato producing states had 14.6 million cwt. on hand. This was 29 percent above a year ago and 16 percent higher than the 1978 figure.

Nationally, an estimated 96.8 million cwt. of fall potatoes for all uses were held on April 1, 1980 by growers, dealers and processors in the fall producing areas. This was three percent less than the record holdings last year, but nine percent above the stocks held on April 1, 1978.

Disappearance of the 1979 fall crop to April 1, 1980 totaled 200 million cwt.

TO CONTROL WEEDS IN NEW ALFALFA SEEDINGS

Farmers who were fortunate enough to get their new alfalfa seeding made by this time should be giving some attention to weed control. Straight seedings of alfalfa are very popular and are giving excellent stands; however, the weeds must be controlled. If a herbicide was not applied before the seeding was made, then spraying with a weed killer such as 2,4-DB is suggested; this should be done when the plants are only one to two inches high. If the weeds are not controlled when small, they will be difficult to kill without harming the small alfalfa plants. Alfalfa is an excellent forage crop; well planned seedings cost money; we urge that proper weed control be an important part in getting the stand started.

Schuylkill Countians build solar water heater

MARLIN — Christopher Fried, Energy Consultant, demonstrated how to build a low-cost yet high-quality solar hot water heater to 50 participants who attended the two-day workshop held this past weekend at the south Vo-Tech building in Marlin.

All 50 people actually assisted in the construction of three solar hot water heaters. The system utilizes a 6 foot by 8 foot modular collector with copper absorber plates and fiberglass glazing.

The tank has a 50 gallon capacity and copper heat exchanger. The system is designed to provide approximately 50 percent of the hot-water needs of a family of four.

A fractional horsepower pump circulates pure water through the collector, and is automatically controlled by a differential thermostat.

When heat is sensed at the collector, the pump is activiated, and at the end of the day, when clouds are heavy, the pump shuts off. When off, all water from the collector drains into the storage tank, thus allowing nothing to freeze.

The installed material cost is roughly $600.

The workshop was not only designed to show the people how to build a solar hot water system; but also to encourage the utilization of other renewable-energy devices, convince people to carefully examine the ways in which they consume and waste energy and provide guidelines so that people can establish priorities among energy producing and conserving investments or actions.

The workshop was not only highly educational, but also brought people together with varied backgrounds and skills in a friendly atmosphere. The workshop was organized in cooperation with the Schuylkill County extension service.

Christopher Fried, energy consultant, explains the steps involved in constructing a solar collector to a capacity crowd in Schuylkill County.

Horse workshop to be held

HARRISBURG — The third workshop in a series of youth horse clinics and adult leader workshops, sponsored by the American Quarter Horse Association and the American Junior Quarter Horse Association, will be held May 10 and 11 in cooperation with the Pennsylvania Cooperative Extension Service and Pennsylvania State University, according to James P. Gallagher, Penn State animal Extension specialist.

Horse Sense III will feature demonstrations and training sessions regarding competition in several AQHA youth events, such as Showmanship at Halter, Western Horsemanship, Hunt Seat Equitation, etc.

Horse health care and proper nutrition will also be presented, and educational and job opportunities within the horse industry will be discussed. Young people as well as adult should find the program interesting and informative.

The first clinic, Horse Sense '79, held September 22 and 23 at the University of Illinois at Champaign, proved to be extremely successful, as 250 people from nine states attended. Louisiana State University at Baton Rouge hosted the second clinic January 5 and 6 which welcomed 400 horse enthusiasts. Both clinics focused on horsemenship and management skills.

The series of workshops to be conducted across the United States will provide educational opportunities to youth, regardless of their background or breed affiliation, and will serve to strengthen the understanding of the principles of horsemanship and equine management.

Anyone interested in horse is encouraged to attend.

Registration will begin at 8 a.m. Saturday, May 10 at the Pennsylvania Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg. A $3 fee will be assessed each youth, and $5 each adult. For more information contact Nancy M. Kadwill, County Agent, 400 Markley Street, Norristown, Pennsylvania 19401.

Eminent domain bill moves to joint committee

HARRISBURG — SB 985 and SB 986 Wednesday were referred to a senate-house conference committee.

The two bills would allow private property taken by eminent domain to be turned back to the original property owner if the condemning agency had not used the land within a limited period of time.

The bills are being promoted by Senator Edwin G. Holl, Lansdale; and Representative Roosevelt Polite, Hatfield.

The Senate voted to non-concur with the two bills because the legislation as written applies only to the Howard Knapp family of Montgomery County.

The Knapp land was condemned over 10 years ago by the North Penn School District. The district now wants to sell the land to a shopping center, and incidently stands to reap huge profits in the bargain.

State Grange Master Charles Wismer, who has been shepherding the legislation through the Capital, said the move to non-concur was a good sign for the two bills.

The constitutionality of the measures has been questioned since they would apply to only the Knapp family.

In the conference committee, the bills can be reworked to apply to anyone who is in a similar situation.

Both the Philadelphia and Pittsburgh school districts have objected to SB 985 and SB 986 because they have sizable holdings within their respective cities. They don't like the impact of the bills since they might have to offer the land back to its original owners at its original price.

The conference committee is expected to rewrite the legislation so it applies only to Class II school districts. Most farmers are not too concerned about city schools since there is no sizable body of farmland in the city, anyway.

"We want to make sure this bill will win the day for the Knapps," Wismer said.

At present the bill would need to have an 11 year life to assure the Knapps of getting their property returned.

Present law eliminates return of land after three years.

Pennsylvania Farmers' Association also supports legislative action to lengthen the time period.

Wismer pointed out that the bill could move with an 11 year period written in to protect the Knapps and then be ammended later to a shorter period.

Action on the two bills could be swift. The school district, unable to sell its land until the question is decided, wants a prompt resolution of the problem.

The Knapps and their supporters, too, want speedy action.

The Senate had acted on the legislation within a day or two of the time it was received. Once the committee reaches accord, it should move swiftly.

Another bill which is moving is HB 2406, the Scenic Rivers Act. This bill would include provisions for a pastoral district—one which would define farmland as a natural use of rural land.

HB 2406 also would restrict eminent domain provisions for Scenic Rivers.

The bill has been reported out of the House Conservation Committee by unanimous vote. Observers say it should move within the next two weeks.

This week the Senate did not move on the milk security fund legislation, SB 1287. Since PFA held its legislative tour this week, the Senate seemed reluctant to take any action.

PFA has demanded a two cent contribution rate as required by its policy. All of the other involved parties agreed to a one cent contribution by dealers.

The conflict within ag circles has confused some non-farm and farm lawmakers, but Senate Ag Committee Chairman Patrick Stapleton has indicated he will entertain no ammendments except technical ammendments on the bill as written, including the one cent rate.

Look for action on SB 1287 next week.—CH

PFA farm-city festival held

MOUNT JOY — "Farm life is good, worthwhile and satisfying. Let's hang on to it and not let it disappear."

This combined description and appeal by a Clearfield County farm wife was given at a Farm-City Festival Wednesday attended by Pennsylvania Cabinet members' wives and Ginny Thornburgh, wife of Gov. Dick Thornburgh.

The festival luncheon program, whose purpose is to help foster better understanding between farm and non-farm people, was held at the Lancaster County dairy farm of Elvin and Marion Brenneman, R1 Mount Joy.

The role of the farm wife and appeal for farm life preservation was outlined by Joyce Sankey, Clearfield County, before the combined audience of state government and PFA farm wives.

"The future will not be decided by what we think, know or say," Mrs. Sankey explained, "but by what we do."

She defined farming "as a family working together not only to produce food and fibre, but a way of life."

"It is joy and sorrow, work and play, happiness and despair and the raising of grain, animals, fruits and vegetables. But our best crop is our kids."

She called the family farm the most efficient agricultural operation in the world that is being phased out of existence. Urging better understanding, she cited the need for continued involvement in affairs and activities affecting the future of the family farm.

Ginny Thornburgh briefly discussed the role of the wife of state governmental leaders, explaining her task was mainly one of learning at the meeting.

"It's really no different than that of any other wife," she said.

"When we were married, we took an important pledge to stand by that person and be as supportive as we can. Each of us made this same commitment.

"The press and public may look into our lives more closely than yours. Sometimes, this may be painful but it is a wonderful growth time."

Similar meetings to encourage better understanding were held at county and state levels in the nationwide program.

Attending cabinet wives were Irene Baran, wife of the secretary of general services; Isabel Dunn, wife of state police commissioner; Anne Muller, wife of secretary of health; Flo Scott, wife of adjutant general; Beth Bartle, wife of insurance commissioner; Charlotte Scanlon, wife of secretary of education; Elizabeth Biester, wife of attorney general; and Trish Hallowell, wife of secretary of agriculture.

PFA farm wives attending included Nellie Crawford, Juniata County, women's commitee chairman; Martha Rhoades, Clarion County, vice chairman; Betty Weaver, Snyder County; Marion Brenneman, Lancaster County; Gloria Christman, Berks County; Frances Fetterolf, Centre County; Helen Jackson, Lawrence County; Cindi Kunz, Crawford County; Frances Lichtenwolner, Lehigh County; Miriam Long, Westmoreland County; Mildred Musselman, Adams County; Dorothy Replogle, Bedford County; Joyce Sankey, Clearfield County; Arlene Summers, Susquehanna County; Jean Tiffany, Bradford County; and LaVern Shafer, Schuylkill County.—DA

Top Brown Swiss to be sold May 17

LITITZ — Over 50 head of registered Brown Swiss cattle from more than ten states have been consigned to sell in the 1980 Kentucky National Show and Sale to be held in Louisville, Kentucky.

To take place Saturday, May 17, at the New Market Hall, Kentucky Fair and Expositions Center, the sale is scheduled to begin at 1 p.m. It will be preceded by a show of the sale cattle at 9:30 a.m., Saturday morning.

The 18th Annual Show and Sale series is cooperatively sponsored by the Kentucky Department of Agriculture and the Kentucky Brown Swiss Association. It is managed by Brown Swiss Enterprises, Inc., the marketing arm of the National Brown Swiss Cattle Breeders' Association.

The Kentucky Department of Agriculture established a livestock show and sale series in the early sixties. The Kentucky National Brown Swiss Show and Sale is one of five such purebred dairy cattle shows sponsored annually by the various breed associations and the Kentucky Department of Agriculture.

They are designed to promote the nation's dairy cattle business through recognition of the industry's finest animals. The Brown Swiss Show and Sale is the oldest of the five, the first being held in 1962.

All of the Brown Swiss cattle selling on May 17 have met above national breed average standards for both production and type. Selling in this outstanding group will be cows, bred heifers, open yearling heifers and junior and senior calves. The young calves were chosen with 4-H and FFA project work in mind.

This auction will include two very promising young bulls with depth of pedigree, backed by Proven Plus Superior sires and outstanding records of production and classification.

Brown Swiss, probably the oldest of all the present-day breeds of dairy cattle, were first introduced into the United States over 100 years ago. According to Marvin L. Kruse, Executive Vice President of the National Association, the Big Brown Cow is being sought worldwide because she has proven her ability to produce and reproduce under a wide range of conditions.

Until recently, Green Pastures Rayetta 529870, a cow which sold at the 1969 Kentucky National Brown Swiss Show and Sale, held the breed highest 305 day and 365 day records of 31,000 pounds milk, 4.3 percent 1401 pounds fat and 36,160 pounds milk 4.5 percent 1,611 pounds fat, respectively.

A daughter of the cow that set the new breed record for both milk and butterfat production will sell at Louisville on May 17.

Her dam is the Century Acres Liz C cow with an official 356 day DHIR record of 38,440 pounds milk 4.4 percent 1695 pounds butterfat. Her sire is a Superior sire and she is carrying the service of a Superior sire.

This year's Kentucky National Brown Swiss Show and Sale is one of the activities being held this year to celebrate the Centennial Year of the Brown Swiss Association.

The Association's National Secretary-Treasurer, Evans E. Wright, reports that the 100th National Annual Meeting of the Brown Swiss Association will take place in Springfield, Massachusetts on July 10 with a number of other breed related activities. Another Centennial Year activity will be an International Brown Swiss Conference, October 1 to 4, at the World Dairy Expo in Madison, Wisconsin.

Nearly 1000 foreign visitors including breeders and staff members are expected to participate.

Sheep and Wool Festival

KEYMAR, Md. — New events and a new location will add spice to the annual Sheep and Wool Festival on May 3-4, starting at 9 a.m. at Howard County Fairgrounds, West Friendship, Maryland.

The new location, just off I-70, will provide for better placement of exhibits and room for expanded activities.

Various breeds of sheep and wool-related crafts will be displayed, with most exhibitors demonstrating their work.

A natural colored sheep show will be held for the first time, slated for 10:30 a.m. Saturday, May 3. Feeder lambs will be shown at 9 a.m. Saturday, followed by an auction at 1:30 p.m.

A sheep shearing contest will get underway at 12 noon, and nine teams will compete in a sheep to shawl contest, beginning at 11 a.m.

Each team consists of one shearer, three spinners and one weaver. Sheep will be shorn and the wool given to the teams to fashion a shawl while the crowd watches. This will be followed at 3 p.m. by a fashion show and auction of the shawls.

This year a new dimension has been added in the form of a fleece competition. Fleeces entered will be judged and a champion white and champion natural colored will be selected, with an over-all grand champion.

A highlight of Sunday's activities, will be selection and crowning of Maryland's Lamb and Wool Queen, at 12 noon. The young woman chosen will represent Maryland Sheep Breeders' Assoc. for the year, appearing at various fairs and functions.

A popular event is the sheep dog demonstration. The dogs, Border Collies under the guidance of a trainer, demonstrate their ability to herd sheep on command.

The seventh annual event is sponsored by the Maryland Sheep Breeders' Assoc. with Charlotte Gardner serving as president and festival chairman.

Leon Riegel Tim Trayer Edgar Sheaffer

Help keep my heifer from coffin.

A reader asks:

One of our heifers has developed a hacking cough. She coughs when she runs, eats, and is just standing still. But, she doesn't have a runny nose. Could this be worms? Any other thoughts - - she eats everything in sight and isn't running fever.

Dr. Trayer comments:

Hacking coughs can be a real problem in cattle.

Since the age of the animal was not given, I will assume that the heifer was older than six months.

In this case, it will be hard to differentiate whether the cough is being set up by worms or a young calf pneumonia which has left residual damage to the lung tissue. This damage will create a situation where the animal does not have the full lung capacity that it would normally have.

Concerning worms, there are only two species that could possibly be giving the heifer the hacking cough.

The ascarid, or round worm (Toxocara vitulorum) migrates through the intestine, liver, and lungs is usually seen in animals less than six months of age.

The other worm that can be an adult-type lung parasite is Dictyocaulus viviparus, commonly called the lung worm. This worm is primarily a problem in high rainfall areas with moderate temperatures, subtropical climates. In Pennsylvania, there is not a high level of diagnoses of lung worm infestations. But, it is a possibility especially when there are high moisture conditions with a high density of animals where there would be a continual build-up of the parasite. •

However, where considering the coughing heifer, I have to keep in mind all worms because their presence in the animal lowers her natural resistance and depletes her body protein.

Dairymen and livestock owners need to ask their veterinarians whether they need to switch worming medicines in their parasite control program.

With reports coming from Ohio indicating increased resistance of different species of worms to thiabendazole, I recommend going to the levamisole products. There has been no research to date documenting any resistance to this group of wormers.

The worming program in most cattle operations needs to be reviewed. I recommend initiating it earlier in the life of heifers and bulls, starting with a levamisole product at six to eight weeks, reworming when the animal goes to pasture, and again after being on pasture for three to six weeks.

Most worm damage to young stock occurs soon after exposure to a contaminated pasture or feed lot area. If a dairyman or livestock breeder only has a limited amount of dollars to invest into a worming, or anthelmintic, program, it should be spent on the younger animal versus spending it on the mature cow.

There is still too much question in the research data whether a breeder gains anything by worming the adult animal, where there will be definite gains when the younger animals are treated. Worming young cattle is generally overlooked due to lack of handling facilities, but it should be looked into more carefully by producers and initiated.

If you believe you do have a lung worm infestation in the herd the only way to get a positive diagnosis is by postmortem findings — submitting an animal to the state diagnostic laboratory and having the results sent to your veterinarian for interpretation.

In case of positive test results for lung worm, the only wormer that has been proven effective is the levamisole group of wormers, and their efficacy in preventing the disease is questionable.

I don't consider a hacking cough to always be worms. However, in this situation, where the heifers is said to be eating everything in sight, there may be a chronic worm problem that may be predisposing her to a cough and lung problems.

If it is worms, the cough is the result of the migration of the parasite up the throat, causing a tickling effect. The animal then hacks, trying to cough up the migrating parasite.

Keep in mind, this is not a common diagnosis in central Pennsylvania.

I am more concerned with the animal that had pneumonia at a young age, recovered but was left with scar tissue in the lungs. Perhaps there is an old abcess that is causing chronic irritation. And when the heifer exercises, she over exceeds her ability to ventillate her lungs and begins to cough.

I have been called out on cases of coughing stock an on observation have found that those cattle that are coughing are the unfortunate ones that somehow managed to hang on after pneumonia. They can look forward to only a moderately productive life.

Before getting hung up on an exotic worm diagnosis, there seems to be a need to take a closer look at the calf raising facilities. Keep records of those calves that had pneumonia, as they mature and enter the milking or breeding herd. Often times, these animals, during the stress of summer heat and high humidity, are the first ones to contract viral pneumonia, go off feed, and run a high temperature before recovering.

Recently, I have made several diagnoses of fungal infections in herds that have been bedded on corn stalks or fodder. My recommendations are for the young stock not to be exposed to these conditions because of the potential for mold and the abnormal pneumonia that sets up.

Young calves should be bedded on clean straw, and the moisture concentration and air circulation in calf barns and heifer pens controlled, along with ammonia level build-ups.

If you have a question you would like answered by the team from Valley Animal Hospital, send it to Ask the VMD, Box 366, Lititz, Pa. 17543. Questions will be kept anonymous on request.

New farmland map

HARRISBURG — Work on Dauphin County's Important Farmland Map has been completed, announced Joel Myers, District Conservationist, Conservation Soil Service, Dauphin County.

Myers added the map was submitted for printing.

"This map will be a step forward in the land use decision-making processes of Dauphin County," he said.

"One of the most difficult land use decisions we face as a nation is when to allow prime farmland to be converted to other uses. These kinds of decisions must be made on a local basis."

Haverstick outlines ag plan for Fulton Grangers

OAKRYN — Fulton Grange No. 65, meeting in regular session, also held open house Monday evening at 7:30 p.m. at Oakryn, Lancaster County.

The lecturer, Mrs. Howard W. Miller, Jr., introduced Kenneth McCauley of Drumore, who in turn introduced the speaker, H. H. Haverstick Jr. of Manor Township. He spoke on "A Simple Plan To Save Our Farmland" which offers some incentive to preserve our good farmland and keep it in production.

Realizing that three million acres of productive farmland are now being lost to residential and industrial development a year in the United States, and that present cost of land and the tax structure make it prohibitive to keep it in farmland Haverstick has come up with a feasible six point program:

Through township and county agricultural preservation committees designate the prime agriculture areas to be preserved, keeping in mind that urban areas where in most cases sewer, water, roads, etc. are already in place.

These areas to be preserved for farmland should be designated as Agriculture Preservation Districts. Any farm not included in such a district should have the privilege of applying for inclusion in this district even though the land may not be contigous to the district.

Eliminate the capital gains tax when farms in these districts are sold with deed restrictions limiting future use to agriculture.

Eliminate all inheritance taxes when Agriculture District farms are given or sold by the owners estate to others who by deed restrictions must continue farming.

Eliminate all state inheritance taxes on farms transferred with proper deed restrictions.

Eliminate state real estate transfer taxes where by deed restrictions future use must be farming.

The Master, Thomas C. Galbreath, gave a talk on "What The Grange Is And What We Do."

Stating that Fulton Grange has been in existence 106 years and has always been a forceful voice for the betterment of farm and all rural people of the area as well as the state and nation. He enumerated their many past accomplishments and activities as well as present activities for all ages. Legislation continues to be a dominant force for social reform and Fulton Grange has been a leader in this field.

Mrs. Miller concluded the program by reading a poem "A Farmer's Prayer."

The Master concluded the business session when the Grange voted to give $25 awards again to the top 1980 Solanco graduating students in agriculture and home economics.

The Master announced that Fulton Grange's bowling team will participate in the State Grange's roll-off in Center County May 18.

The following coming events are listed: May 3, 8 p.m., Region H Grange visitation meeting at Fulton Grange Hall when Montgomery County will fill officers' chairs and Chester-Delaware and Bucks County Pomona Granges will present the program.

Fremont Grange will visit Fulton Grange May 12, 8 p.m. and present the program. Mushroom farming will be theme for the program at the regular meeting May 26.

Apple referendum

the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture. Two-thirds of the vote, or 158, had to be in favor of the referendum in order for it to pass.

Sixty percent of the 400 eligible voters cast their ballots, said PDA. To be eligible to vote, a grower had to have 500 or more apple trees.

What does AMB do for the apple growers? It uses the mass media, point of purchase materials, leaflets, recipe books and teaching kits to promote apple use. AMB also employs a full-time marketing representative who works with produce buyers, wholesale produce firms and other organizations.

The recent referendum, held every five years, allowed apple growers to vote whether or not to keep AMB working for them. And, it also allowed them to decide not to increase their assessment rate. It will stay at the current five cents per bushel for fresh market apples and two cents per hundredweight on processing apples.

Second in a series on state Farm Women officers

Marie Baughman serves Farm Women as 1st vice-president

BY JOYCE BUPP
Staff Correspondent

SHIPPENSBURG — Although local members of the Society of Farm Women in Franklin County had invited her several times to join, Marie Baughman had never been able to find time during those early years of marriage. Today she's second in leadership command as first vice-president of the Society's several thousand member women.

Like most young farm wives, Marie was busy with her four small children and helping with farm chores on the Shippensburg R3 dairy operation of her husband Merle and his father. But after being dairy operators for 17 years, the Baughman's faced some tough decisions that had to be made. New dairy regulations demanded modernizing or getting out of the milk shipping business. Eventually, the farm went up for sale, but Marie and Merle kept an acre off the corner where they would build a new home for the family.

Not long after the cows left, the Baughman's youngest child also departed, for his first day in elementary school. With the children all in school, Marie's household schedule eased a bit and she felt free-to find some outside interests.

While working at a nearby orchard packing house, Marie responded to the enthusiasm of the orchard owner's wife, who had just been installed as president of the Franklin County Farm Women. At her urging, Marie agreed to host a meeting of potential members and by the end of the session found herself as the charter president of Franklin County's Group 7.

Before long, Marie had been elected the county treasurer and later held the office of county president. When she passed the gavel to the succeeding president, another job beckoned; and Marie found herself heading up the sole fund-raising activity of the county group, a booming french-fry stand at the Shippensburg Area Fair.

"We sell huge amounts of french fries," she relates. "Working with the ladies, you get to know them better than meeting with them in a social setting." The project began many years ago from a temporary stand, later graduating to a sturdy portable booth designed and built by the carpenter-husband of a former chairman.

Marie's leadership in such county activities soon spilled over onto the state level. Next came an invitation to serve in the capacity of treasurer. "When I looked at those books, I wondered why in the world I had let them talk me into it. But it really wasn't as bad as I first thought, and it gives a new perspective on the Society along with the chance to get to know many more people."

A major task assigned to Marie was the chairmanship of the group's annual Spring Rally, hosted by Franklin County and held at the Gettysburg Sheridan Inn during the 1976 national bicentennial celebration. She remembers that it was "an ideal time to chair a program since the television premiere of the single show Roots had just interested everyone in searching more for their own roots."

The idea that farm women could be proud of their roots both in America and in agriculture came to form the theme for that program. Under Marie's planning, the program included a local author as speaker on the life of the colonial woman and theme entertainment by a red-white-and-blue-garbed choral group.

When she was invited to speak on the Farm Women's history to the Washington County convention, Marie did some more "roots" sleuthing. Her presentation was so successful that she was asked to share it with her home Franklin County members and the special events of several local groups.

Marie Baughman has served her way through various responsibilities in the Farm Women. Among them are: county treasurer, county president, state treasurer and chairmanship of the Spring Rally.

"From that research I really learned to appreciate the Farm Women," Marie recalls. "We too, were searching for roots. When Flora Black founded the Society, women were wives and mothers; children were to be seen and not heard, and I guess women were probably in about the same position. Mrs. Black was very interested in seeing farm children have a better education and perhaps she saw their potential. Perhaps that's why she chose as the farm women's theme the song "Brighten The Corner Where You Are."

"It's a little hard to tell where farm women might go from here," she predicts. "More and more of them consider themselves as full partners with their husbands, who consult them more today on farm decisions. And farm women are more informed today than in the past."

As a group, Marie sees the Farm Women as possibly getting a bit more involved in legislative activities someday. "Perhaps we're not doing quite as much of that as in the past, when we had a resolutions committee and were sometimes asked to write to legislators on various issues. Also, the feeling might be that local groups can be more effective working on a local level. A lot of it all comes back to those individual issues."

Marie has remained active in her local Group 7 and is helping them prepare their fair exhibit for summer. Part of that display will show some quilting samples, a hobby she's learned just during the past few months. It's a group interest, shared with a few other members of her Sunday School class.

"We really didn't know much about it - except that you ended up with a beautiful quilt when you were finished," confides Marie. So the ladies formed an every-Wednesday quilting session, fitting their fan-design creation into a frame tht had once belonged to Marie's grandmother-in-law.

"I often sat by that frame and thought about the ladies-who sat beside it before us. With a life filled with so many things to do and places to go, I really wondered if I'd like just sitting there doing that tiny, slow stitching, but it's very relaxing. I wonder if those earlier quilters found it just as relaxing, with all the hard work they had to do."

Using her stitching talents, Marie created a very special dress during her busy bicentennial year, supporting the state farm women's project of sewing a special commemorative dress. Created in the Dolly Madison style, with full ruffled sleeves and an overskirt, she's worn it many times, but remembers best the July 4 parade in Chambersburg, "when it almost seemed as if time had been turned back."

For many years, Marie has also been actively associated with Church Women United of the Shippensburg area, serving for a period as their president and heading up World Activities Day. On that special set-aside day, garments are collected and sent for distribution to needy around the globe through the Brethren Volunteer Center at New Windsor, Maryland.

The life of a state Farm Women officer can be hectic and time-consuming. Marie is quick to credit her husband for his undivided support of her state duties. Merle is now Franklin County's executive director of the Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service and often crosses paths with the same ag-industry people his wife meets through the Farm Women.

"When we moved off the farm, we had four small children, so we put in a large garden and a small lawn to keep them busy. Each year lify even though neither nor her family participated in the checkoff system. He was quick to note that only a few years back the stipulation was that only the daughter of a dairy farmer could participate.

Barb Stauffer, chairman of the local committee states, "The minute entry blanks were passed out, comments were made about the wording." The committee while large, she stated was comprised of approximately 15 people at the April meeting where the letter questioning the clause was drawn up. While Barb declined to disclose either the contents of the letter from the local committee, or the response they received from Morris, she stated that both would be made known at the next meeting of the committee this Monday evening, at 8 p.m. in the basement of the Farm and Home Center.

Morris stated that in past years splinter groups pulling funding out of Atlantic Dairy Association for one reason or another to establish their own advertising has been a problem. "This means that non-brand advertising for dairy products gets that much less funding. It doesn't take much for a splinter group to pull their money out of the fund. Therefore, we try to walk a middle line."

While each county is different, most he said audition the girls with questions or a judge's interview. While this could rule out unqualified contestants, Morris stated his callers felt that the dairy princess must do TV, radio and school classroom promotion as well as other public promotion for the product. "Children ask questions about the amount of feed consumed and the weight of the animals and the housing, and a girl who owns dairy goats would not be equipped to answer questions on the six dairy breeds we recognize. Let's face it," he said, "there's a lot of difference between a goat and a cow, and there's a lot of difference in the way they are raised and milked."

"Those on the committee had the idea that it would be more beneficial to dairy goat owners if they run their own contest and market their product separately," he continued. He stated that the general feeling is that dairy goat owner are in direct competition with the cow people in trying to convert people to owning their own goat for a milk supply, thereby freeing them from the commercial milk market.

The dairy goat industry has no local contest. Each year a small group of girls competes at the national convention for the title of Miss American Dairy Goat Association. For the average girl, there is very little chance to enter the competition.

Mrs. Edward Watson, West Chester, whose daughter, Josephine was Miss ADGA stated. "Dairy goats owners do not think of themselves as competition to the dairy cow industry. Rather, we would like to think that we are complementary. We offer an intelligent alternative to cows' milk when the person can not tolerate cows milk or has no access to it.

She also commented that no one has ever asked the dairy goat industry in Pennsylvania to participate in the milk checkoff plan, and that if such a plan were offered and the dairy cow and dairy goat industry in the state could unite in a marketing plan recognizing the special advantages of both milk products, she feels there would be an overwhelming acceptance. "We do not participate," she stated "because we have not been asked."

"If the wanted to include goat milk promotion in milk marketing for those who can not temporarily digest cow's milk, we would be happy to participate," she stated.

While Barb Stauffer declined to comment on the content of the letters or committee feelings before the schedule Monday meeting, she stated that after reading the letter, she still has mixed feelings. "I would tend to drop it (the dairy goat clause)," she stated.

Morris could not give any idea how many protests were received, he stated they originated from the Sun area, Northumberland, Mountour Counties and the Western part of the state near Ohio. The calls he stated were long before the pageants in late 1978 and early 1979. By that time he noted it was too late to do anything about it in 1979 because the programs were already printed.

Questions still remain however. Why did the state committee feel it necessary to disqualify goat owners? If a girl is knowledgeable enough about the dairy industry to survive the questions or dairy presentation necessary for pageant competition, would it matter if she owned cows or goats? And if a dairy goat owner could not pass the scrutiny of the cow dairy judges, wouldn't she be disqualified on her lack of merits, without any form of prior disqualification.

Should the dairy cow and goat industry remain separate? What is a dairy animal? And if both goats and cows are indeed legitimate dairy animals, should the contest clause be dropped, or perhaps the pageant renamed to the Dairy Cow Princess Contest. And will any other county committees join the Lancaster committee in protesting the new wording? Is the source of funding an issue? Or due to the huge size of the cow dairy industry does it deserve to be recognized as "the" dairy industry. These and other questions remain to be answered.

York's Central Dairy Club nails down plans

Not all cows and cow talk were the thoughts of the Central 4-H Dairy Club members when they met in April at the Roy Thompson farm. Here Debbie Wolf of Abbottstown puts the finishing touches on her show box.

Each 4-H member was busy putting the finishing touches on their very own show box. The boxes were made from ½" plywood. Some will double up and use the completed show box for a handyman project in the 4-H fair in August. The group traveled to New Bolton's recent open house. A committee was selected to present a program for June dairy month to the Thomasville club. Reported by Roy Thompson.

Marie Baughman

we got a smaller garden — and a bigger lawn. Now they're all grown, but we still have a garden pretty large for the two of us," she laughs. It's a hobby the Baughman's can share, and one that helps keep the freezer and shelves filled with lots of menu materials. And while Marie plants, she also plans. There's next year's state convention program she must organize — and then a couple of years as state president — and Marie Baughman isn't going to run out of things to do for a while.

Why one Ephrata Twp. farmer wants to preserve farmland

BY DICK ANGLESTEIN

EPHRATA — Slowly, ever so slowly, he sinks to one knee.

Reaching down, he scoops a handful of soil into his right hand.

Gently, almost caressingly, he feels the soil with a light rubbing motion. A small clump breaks open in his palm and gradually dribbles between his fingers.

At 78, Ivan G. Martin hasn't worked the soil on his Ephrata Township farm for a decade and a half.

But he's as close to it today as he was throughout the more than 40 years that he did farm the land.

Now, he wants to make certain that this land continues to taste only the steely slice of the plow or disc and not the more brutal bite of the bulldozer or the backhoe.

Owner of 123 acres in Ephrata Township, he wants to be among the first farmers to join the fledgling movement to preserve prime Lancaster County farmland.

"I'm ready to sign up now and encourage my neighbors to sign up, too," Martin said.

This slightly built steward of the soil, who had to give up the life he loved in the mid-1960's due to arthritis, was in attendance when the Lancaster County Agricultural Preservation Board formally proposed to help Ephrata Township officials form the county's first farmland preservation districts. Under the program, use of prime agricultural land would be reserved for farming under 25-year deed restrictions.

"This is top-notch farmland," Martin said.

"It just goes against my grain to have it used for anything else.

"A lot of people don't understand. They think that land is just land and all of it is the same. But it certainly isn't.

"I remember once at a family reunion, we started talking crops like farmers do when they get together.

"Two of my wife's brothers said they had one of the poorest oat crops they ever had. Well, we had a full oat crop at the same time.

"But it had been a wet spring and their sandstone soil didn't drain. Our limestone soil here drained easily and we had a good crop."

Martin just can't understand selling off good farmland for development purposes.

"Good land is valued so high now for agriculture," he said.

"Why must it be sold off for development just to get some extra money?"

"Money must be awfully important to do that."

He looks at farmland preservation from another economic point of view, too.

"A farmer must make such a large investment in a crop now," he said.

"There's seed, fertilizer, herbicides, insecticides, equipment, machinery and other costs. With such an expense, it's more important than ever that he get a good crop. And for a good crop, you need good land."

Martin has had experience with soils in other parts of the country.

His own personal first crop was some pumpkins grown shortly after the turn of the century when his parents farmed in northwest Iowa.

"I hadn't even gone to school yet when I put in those pumpkins," he recalled.

"Ever since then, farming has been my only work. I never considered doing anything else. I helped an uncle once for about a week during a winter to build a barn and that's the only time I worked off the farm."

He remembers that Iowa soil, too.

"It was so sticky, you had to clean the plow every night," he said.

"If you weren't going to plow the next day, you had to oil the plow to keep it from rusting. Or else, it wouldn't scour."

Moving from Iowa to Michigan, the Martins came "back" to Lancaster County in 1923 when Ivan was 21 years old. His ancestors earlier had been part of the Mennonite migration to Canada following the Revolution.

From the Fall of 1923 until the Spring of 1966 he worked the 123-acre farm located in the area of Sunnyside and Hackman roads in Ephrata Township. Now, the land is tenant farmed.

Methods of farming changed quite a bit over those years. He recalls that haying was one of the toughest jobs on the farm. He remembers one day in particular.

"We always had a hay loader," he said.

"Working on the wagon in front of the loader was just as hard as pitching the hay.

"The hay just kept coming and you really had to work to spread it around the wagon.

"We usually had two men on the wagon and more than once someone got stuck with a pitchfork.

"One day, I stuck the fellow I was working with in the calf of the leg. I just yanked it out and we kept on working.

"That night, he went to the doctor and when he probed the wound, he found the fork had gone completely through his calf.

"But it never even became infected. We were back haying the next day.

"It's things like this that show the work wasn't the easiest, but once farming gets into your blood, you just don't even consider anything else."

Martin believes in proper care of the soil.

"Our land was so phosphorus hungry when we first came here, you could notice in the wheat in spring just where the fertilizer hopper on the drill ran dry," he said.

"We always believed in fertilization though and the yields proved its value.

"If you treat the soil right, it will treat you right."

Today, fruit trees and a large vegetable garden literally serve to keep Martin's hands in the soil.

But his thoughts are always back on the farm and the land he wants to stay in farming even if he can't farm it.

"Even more than today, this land is going to be needed for the use it was intended – the production of food," he said.

"I think it should be natural with people to see things preserved rather than always just consumed."

The agricultural heritage of Ivan G. Martin is as deeply rooted in the soil of Ephrata Township as the crops he grew there over a span of more than four decades.

"I think it should be natural with people to see things preserved rather than always just consumed," explains Ivan G. Martin as his personal belief concerning farmland preservation.

"This is top-notch farmland and it goes against my grain to see it used for anything else," says Ivan G. Martin, of Ephrata Township.

processes 1.5 million pounds per day.

The milk which stays within Pennsylvania has not been a problem as far as shipping weights. It's the interstate milk shipments which are collecting Goldman a basketful of fines.

The question of truck size, as Goldman sees it, is simply one of economic efficiency.

He points out that most dairy cooperatives take a sizable deduction, 40 to 50 cents, from a farmer's milk check for hauling.

"I can't deduct. I get no kick-in from farmers. The law won't allow it.

"I have to be efficient," he says. And efficiency in hauling means larger trucks hauling bigger loads.

Goldman has drawn strong support from a number of farmer groups, including Pennsylvania Farmers' Association which lobbied strongly Tuesday at its legislative banquet for higher truck limits.

PFA President Eugene Thompson called the 73,820 pound limit "a major trade barrier."

He said the barrier must be eliminated not just for agriculture but for all industries in Pennsylvania.

Fenton Murphy, treasurer of NEDCO and a member of the State Grange's dairy committee, has spoken out forcefully for higher truck weight limits.

Grange policy currently supports raising the weight limit on trucks to conform with that of surrounding 80,000 pound states. Only six states east of the Mississippi have not raised their truck limits.

"I get calls from senators, congressmen, farmers, farmers organizations, and they all say they are fighting for me," Goldman said. "But I'm the one on the hot seat."

Goldman said he also is irritated at the Pennsylvania state police department's use of portable scales to weigh his tankers.

He said the police are stopping his big trucks only on the federal highways and not on state roads.

He questioned how the state police figure they can get an accurate weight on portable scales of a tanker with its milk sloshing back and forth in the tank.

Goldman pointed out they use platform scales at his processing plant and even then it is difficult to get accurate weights until about a half hour after a truck has been parked and the load has settled.

He said weight readings often will vary by a couple of thousand pounds on the same load.

"I'll bet if I fought it in the courts I'd be able to beat it," he says, but so far he has taken no action against the portable scales.

Most of the hope with in-state farmers seems to rest with getting the legislature to move to increase the gross vehicle limit in the state to 80,000 pounds.

PFA figures state farmers could lose at least $32 million a year in milk sales if Goldman does cut off his Pennsylvania shippers.

Whether the state takes any action to save the farmers, Goldman, and other industries, remains to be seen.

What those 400 northeastern Pennsylvania dairymen are hoping fervently is that Goldman doesn't wake up one morning and decide to call it quits.—CH

March egg production up 15%

HARRISBURG — March 1980 egg production in Pennsylvania totaled 369 million, according to the Pennsylvania Crop Reporting Service. The March production was 15 percent above the 322 million eggs produced in March 1979.

The March average of 16.5 million layers was 11 percent higher than a year ago. Egg production per 100 layers was 2,240 compared with 2,158 in March 1979.

The nation's laying flocks produced 5.95 billion eggs during March 1980, one percent more than a year ago. The number of layers during March averaged 28[illegible] million compared with 289 million a year earlier.

Egg production per 100 layers during the month was 2078 compared with 2042 a year ago.

Pennfield plant produces millionth ton of feed

LANCASTER — Pennfield Corporation's Feed Division marked a milestone on Friday when its computerized mill in Hempfield Industrial Park turned out the millionth ton of feed produced since the mill was constructed in October 1977.

Company officials awarded the ton of poultry feed to Robert C. and Mildred Groff, R4 Quarryville, Pennfield customers with a 180-acre poultry and dairy operation.

The Groff's operation is a real family venture, including son-in-law and daughter, Dale and Sharon Enck, son Charles and daughter-in-law Carol, and a daughter, Suzanne. The surprise feed delivery will be used to feed the 60,000 layers that occupy new poultry houses added recently to the Groff farm.

Pennfield's automated mill currently produces 1600 tons daily, with an annual capacity for 400,000 tons. Last October, ingredient storage capacity was increased by more than 11,000 tons, with the construction of five new silos, the largest standing 110 feet high. The additional production capability makes Pennfield one of the largest feed milling operations in the East.

In addition to this high volume mill, Pennfield also operates other mills in Rohrerstown, York, Red Lion, and Palmyra.

Pennfield Corporation was formed in 1971 by the consolidation of two century-old companies, Miller and Bushong, Inc. of Rohrerstown, and the D. E. Horn Company, Inc. of York. The corporation is active in all phases of feed, egg and poultry production, processing and marketing. Nearly 100 types of poultry and livestock feeds are manufactured and sold by the firm.

Aside from its milling operations, Pennfield Corporation includes Pennfield Farms, Grimes Poultry Processing, Beachley-Hardy Seed Company, J. Brame Witmer fuel oil distributors, and an Allied Product Division.

HORSEBACK RIDING FOR THE HANDICAPPED

Red meat production drops eight percent

HARRISBURG — Commercial red meat production in Pennsylvania during March totaled 80.1 million pounds, down eight percent from March 1979, according to the Pennsylvania Crop Reporting Service.

Cattle slaughter at 51,000 head was down 24 percent while calf slaughter at 21,800 head was ten percent less than last year.

Hog slaughter at 290,200 head increased seven percent from a year ago.

The number of sheep and lambs slaughtered totaled 14,700, up 30 percent from March 1979.

Nationally, commercial red meat production during March totaled 3.10 billion pounds, an increase of less than one percent from March 1979.

Beef production at 1.65 billion pounds was down seven percent while veal production at 30 million pounds declined 21 percent.

Pork production totaled 1.39 billion pounds, up 11 percent from March 1979. Lamb and mutton production increased four percent to 28 million pounds.

Lehigh dissolves

Farmers results from a personal committment of $20,000 by the current board of the dairy and restructuring of loans, which ultimately will be repaid by Atlantic Processing to the Baltimore Bank.

The residue, currently estimated at $1.8 million, will be distributed to preferred stockholders after pending litigation is resolved. That will amount to about 15 cents on the dollar to the 4000 preferred stockholders.

Common stockholders will receive nothing.

Under a voting trust agreement that is part of the plan, the new cooperative, and all other shipping to Atlantic Processing, will have the option to purchase the new company within 10 years.

Atlantic Processing will be managed by the current officers and staff of Lehigh Valley Cooperative Farmers and will continue with the marketing programs under the Lehigh Valley Farms label.

Preceeding the vote, dairy president Robert P. Barry and attorney Robert Tallman explained details of the proposal and accepted questions from stockholders. No discussion or statements on the proposal were permitted.

The loudest audience response came from a question by a holder of both common and preferred stock who asked, "Why dissolve the organization now — after our best year?"

"It should have been done before," replied Barry, "But we were absorbed with saving the business."

After the vote, Alpheus L. Ruth, chairman of the board said members had provided the board "with new tools for the future.

"You have taken bold new steps needed to meet the challenge of the new decade. The new organization will be able to attract new members. It will be able to attract new capital," Ruth said.

"You have put more stability into the marketplace. We will continue to be the balance wheel of the dairy industry in this part of the country. And you have assured yourselves of a market for your milk at good prices," he said.

Members also elected Roy Hetrick as director-at-large.

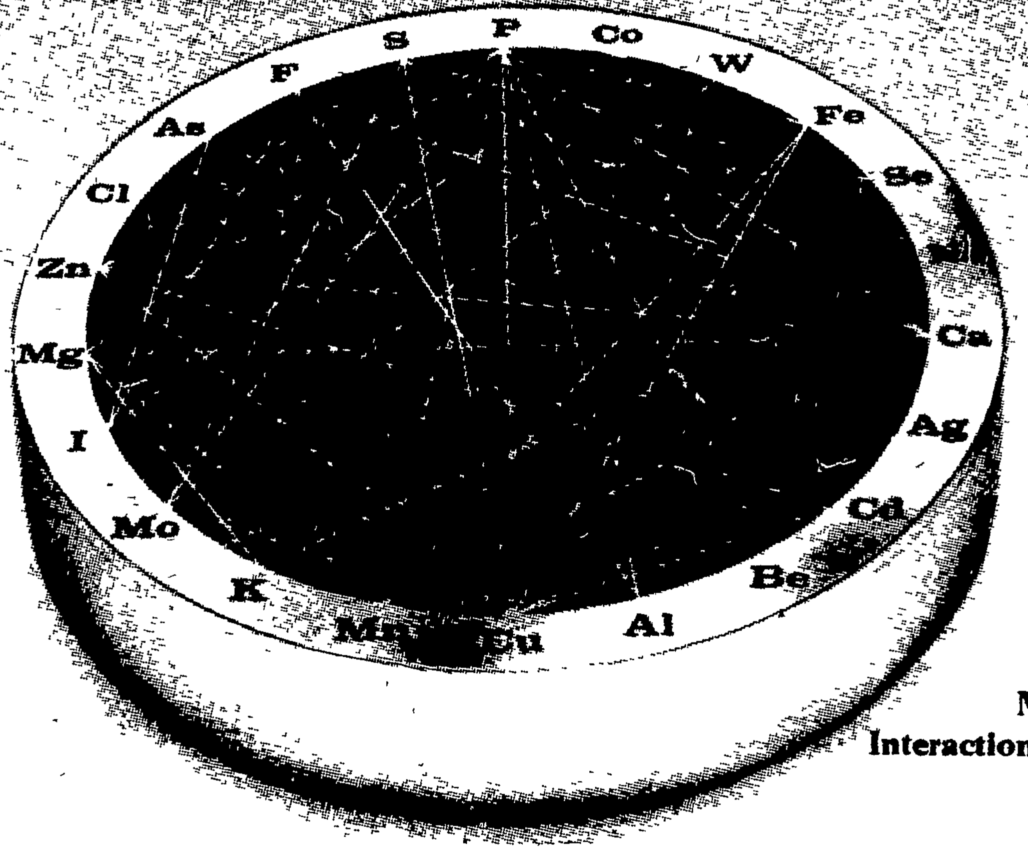
Understanding your dairy herd's mineral needs is as simple as this.



Mineral Interaction Chart

One mineral decision depends on another.

Planning an effective dairy mineral program cannot be accomplished without a complete knowledge of mineral interactions. That's why more and more dairymen rely on their Wayne® dealer for all their mineral needs.

Plan your mineral program around your roughage program.

The people at Wayne Feeds can simplify mineral planning. Because they're experts in animal nutrition.

And your Wayne dealer will help balance your alfalfa, silage or other roughage with special minerals designed to meet your dairy herd's requirements with P12, P16, P18 and P20 as calcium/phosphorus sources.

Wayne Feeds is your mineral source.

Your Wayne dealer carries a full line of minerals—all fortified with additional vitamins and trace minerals. And compatible with Wayne Feeds' full line of feed products.

For peak production, you need the hard facts on minerals. Let your Wayne dealer make it simple with Wayne dairy minerals.

Is everybody's will for everybody?

BY SHEILA MILLER

Last week we took a closer look at the laws governing estate and inheritance taxes. These are the rules and regulations that can spell financial shakeups for any family settling an estate when ill-prepared.

The federal and state taxes are the cream of the estate—they will come off the top of the estate's total worth unless special tax-saving provisions are made. Making these provisions and spelling out how a person's possessions shall be distributed are jobs that a properly drafted will can do.

First off—what is a will? According to Circular 567, Estate Planning for Pa. Families, put out by Penn State, a will is "a legal instrument or written document which directs the transfer of your property after your death.

"A will makes it possible to specifiy the distribution of special kinds of property such as valuable antiques or sentimental items; transfer cash, land, farms, and business to particular heirs; create trusts for your spouse, children, or other family heirs; select a trustee to administer any trust; divide the remainder of the estate as you wish; select an executor to settle your estate at minimum cost; select a guardian to look after your younger children and their property; and specify gifts of property or money to churches, hospitals, colleges, or other charitable institutions."

We are all familiar with the old wili where Farmer Brown scribbles down on the back of a torn envelope his desires for the distribution of his worldly possessions and places it safely in the family Bible.

The "I bequeath to..." type of will is one means of dividing up the assets in a person's estate, but whether it does all of the above items is doubtful unless Farmer Brown was also a lawyer.

Anyone will admit that even the "I bequeath..." type of will is better than none.

But, what happens if the decedent 's young and perhaps unmarried. Most young people do not have wills drafted by attorneys and have not taken the time to jot down their wishes on what should be done with their possessions in case they should die.

Not high on the list of most young people are thoughts of death—and drawing up a will would be one of the furtherest things from their minds.

The fact is, however, in Pennsylvania, anyone that has reached the ripe old age of eighteen is legally qualified to have a will

Well, in the event that a person hasn't gotten around to the morbid business of the 'Last Will and Testament', the state has taken care of the grisly details.

R. Darrell Ford, of Estate Arcehtypes Inc. in York, said he feels the state's will is fair and equitable, but it's inflexible. "It has to be if it's going to apply to millions of people," he added.

For any resident of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania who dies without drafting a personal will, the Commonwealth has come up with the following plan to objectively handle the settlement of the estate.

If the decedent was married with two or more children, the state says:

—All of the property owned jointly between the husband and wife would go to the surviving spouse.

—The property owned absolutely, or soley by the decedent, would be distributed with the first $20,000 plus 50 percent of the remaining assets going to the spouse. The other half would be divided among the children.

In the case of a death of either husband or wife where there were no children, the state will provides that:

—All of the property owned jointly between the couple would go to the surviving spouse.

—Of the absolutely owned property, again the surviving spouse gets the first $20,000 plus half of the remaining assets. The remaining 50 percent would go to the mother and father or suriviving parent of the decedent. If neither of the parents was still living, then the remaining 50 percent would go to the surviving spouse.

The Commonwealth did not neglect the individual who may have no surviving spouse, children or descendents. In this case:

—The mother and father, or the surviving parent of the decedent, would inherit the total assets of the estate.

—If both of the decedent's parents are deceased, the estate is to be equally divided between the brothers and sisters.

If none of the above plans apply, the state searches the decedent's family tree until a surviving relative is found for distributing the estate.

The state's plan may in fact be an adequate will for some individuals, but then again it may not be for most.

For example, consider the case of a young farm couple we will call Bob and Sally Smith.

Bob and Sally, both in their early 30's, were too busy with their two small children and their farm work to take the time to write a will.

Bob was tragically killed in a farming accident, leaving Sally and the two preschool age children, alone.

Fortunately, the farm and most of the equipment were owned jointly by Bob and Sally. Bob's personal assets came to $67,000.

Under the state will, Sally received the first $20,000 and $33,500 of the additional assets. The Smith's two children received the other $33,500.

But, without a personal will, Sally had no legal basis for receiving the money inherited by the children Just because she was their mother did not give her the right, according to the state

The money, was distributed to the children through a legal guardian, the Orphan's Court. Whenever

Is everybody's will

Sally needed to spend any of the children's inheritance, she had to petition the Commonwealth's appointed guardian.

Perhaps even more tragic is the case involving an elderly widow we'll call Katie Jones Katie, at the golden age of 75, found herself suddenly in the midst of an estate nightmare.

Her husband, who died at the age of 77, had accumulated a great deal of property in his own name during his lifetime, in the amount of $250,000.

Katie's children, age 40 and 55, were both married and successful farmers.

Unfortunately, Katie and her husband never drafted a will. Now she was at the mercy of the state, whose plan called for her children to receive half of the assets with Katie getting $20,000 plus 50 percent of the $250,000.

Katie watched helplessly as half of the accumulated assets she and her husband worked for were lost to her children at a time when she was depending on the assets for her future cost of living and medical expenses.

Katie is happy her children inherited the assets rather than the government. But, she lives with the constant fear that she may someday run out of money.

In the case of Katie, Darrell Ford recommended establishing a trust where half of the assets would have been given to the wife and half would have been set up in a trust with the use of the money reserved for the widow for her lifetime. At the time of her death, Ford said, the money would go to her children without being taxed a second time.

Elvin Byler, a Lancaster attorney, said he recommends that people write a will if for no other reason than to appoint an executor.

He explained that if the state has to appoint an executor preference will be given to close relatives. However, the person who gets the responsibilities of executing the will must file a bond, obtained from an insurance company, and pay in a premium to the bonding company.

For an estate worth $100,000, Byler said, the bond costs from $300-$400 per year; as the value of the estate increases, so does the bond. Most estates, he noted, are settled within one year, so it would mean only one payment.

"Just having a will doesn't save you anything except the bond fees," Byler said. "If you're worth more than $200,000, you should make a will for the major reason of saving taxes."

Byler also recommended that both the husband and wife have separate wills, even if they are a carbon-copy of each other with separate signatures. "The will has to be ready to go on record at the courthouse the day of death," he explained.

As far as whether to have a homemade will or have one professionally drafted, the Lancaster attorney said, "Homemade wills are possible, but attorneys charge their lowest fees for writing wills, assuring proper wording for their clients."

Next week Lancaster Farming will study the tax-saving tool—the trust.

control profit-robbing flies

Feeding Rabon® Oral Larvicide turns your herd into an effective fly control army that kills face flies, horn flies, stable flies and house flies before they take wing. ROL passes through cattle to activate their manure — destroying all four flies' larvae before they rob you of profits. It is approved for lactating dairy cattle. Flies are more than a nuisance. They spread disease and reduce milk production.

The time to start your ROL fly control program is this spring with all summer follow-through.

Named to executive club

LITITZ — Gary Willier, Lititz, has been named to the Carnation Executive Club. Formation of the Executive Club within the sales staff has been announced at Carnation Genetics by W.R. "Skip" Pringle, general manager. Simultaneously, the names of the twelve members of the 1980 club were released.

"This is a functioning group," Pringle commented, "It's primary purpose is advisory. It is an integral part of our marketing team."

The twelve appointees include the general manager, the company comptroller, the five regional sales managers and five district sales managers, each having been nominated by his regional sales manager.

Plans calls for the executive club to meet two to three times each year to discuss marketing and marketing strategy.

"District sales managers were selected on the basis of demanding criteria," said Pringle, "which included sales effort, sales increase over the previous year, handling of accounts receivable, preparation and timeliness of reports, number of Genetic Opportunity herds added, number of cow evaluations in the district, and the quality of service given customers."

Included as members are Pringle of Modesto and Bennie Austin of Los Angeles, company comptroller.

The Regional sales managers are: Willier, Eastern Region; Don McCormick of Turlock, Ca., Western; Don Cupery of Randolph, Wis., Mid-west; Dave Owens of Vancouver, Wash., Northwest; Jules Clausing of Hartford, Wis., Mississippi Valley.

Rounding out the membership in the executive club are the five district sales managers: Jimmy Bills of Brownwood, Tx., Western; Milo Snyder of Orchard, Nb., Mid-west; Dan Berry of Snohomish, Wa., Northwest; Dale Niemann of Fairland, Ind., Mississippi Valley; and Al Shulusky of Bainbridge, NY, Eastern.

Attends training school

NEW PARK — Lee Manifold, general manager of M & R Equipment, Inc., New Park, was among the International Harvester dealer personnel who attended the company's Future Action Computerized Training System. The program is designed to broaden the participant's management skills through computer oriented techniques.

Call for free book

ELBURN, Ill. — Curtiss Breeding Industries Inc., the Elburn, Illinois artificial insemination organization, has announced the free phone-in availability of its 1980 Beef Bull Book to any interested beef producer.

"We're inviting beef cow herd owners to phone us on our toll-free lines," states Kent Barber, Beef Director for Curtiss. "In order to speed delivery of these beef sire listings at this important time of year. Bull Books will be put in the mail the same day we receive the telephone request."

The Curtiss Beef Bull Book contains a comprehensive listing of beef sires whose semen is available from Curtiss. Breeds include Angus, Charolais, Hereford, Polled Hereford, Limousin, Simmental and others.

A special and unique feature of the Curtiss Beef Bull Book is its inclusion of photo copies of the complete performance pedigree for each listed Angus sire.

To obtain a return-mail copy of the 1980 Curtiss Beef Bull Book, cattlemen need only dial the toll-free number: 800/323-6061.

FREY FREE STALL
LIFETIME FREE STALL HOUSING

Cut bedding costs 75 per cent, reduce labor for barn cleaning and cow washing; reduce teat and udder injury to the minimum — house your milking herd in free stall housing. Each cow provided a stall for loafing. She won't be stepped on, the rear curb forces manure out into alley for mechanical cleaning or washing. A few minutes twice a day cleans the stalls and curbs, bedding lasts almost forever if your stalls fit the cows. Popular sizes are 6'6", 7' and 7'6". Size 'em by breed.

Our free stall partition may be mounted on wooden head boards or we make a steel divider. Set the legs in 8 to 10' concrete curbs to hold and retain bedding. Stall floor can be soil, sand or gravel. Bedding — straw, sawdust, peanut hulls, ground corn cobs, etc. Should be installed with paved alley surface 8 feet wide for mechanical cleaning or washing.

- 8 Models all steel welded farm & feedlot gates
- 2 Models all steel welded head catch gate

Moisture - Friend and Foe?

During this busy planting season, it may be wise to pause briefly and ask yourself the following question: what is your main reason for planting, growing and harvesting crops? How you answer this question, can help give greater purpose and direction to all of your field work.

As a dairyman, you sell your crops in the form of milk and cattle. You harvest your crops at least twice each day — at each milking! For you, maximum crop yield might best be measured in terms of maximum milk production per acre. And for maximum milk production per acre, you will need top quality feeds and maximum production of feed nutrients per acre, nutrients which your cattle need and nutrients which they can convert into milk.

To produce top quality feeds, your forages and grains must be harvested at the proper stages of maturity and at the proper moisture content. Let's focus on the importance of moisture content

The moisture content of feeds is very difficult for most of us to estimate accurately; we can't observe it, and it is constantly changing. Nevertheless, it is very crucial to the quality of feeds and to the accuracy of balancing rations.

In 1979, many farmers were frustrated by inclement weather at harvest time, by corn blights, etc. Consequently, crops were "put up" too mature, too wet or too dry. Nutrient content, in many cases, was reduced and spoilage was higher than normal. These conditions, no doubt, contributed to some of the herd health and production problems experienced by dairymen this past winter.

Herd performance is very dependent upon forage quality, and forage quality is very dependent upon moisture content at time of harvest. The only reliable indicator of moisture is the proper use of a good moisture tester. Notice the emphasis on "proper use" and "good tester".

To a dairyman, a good moisture tester is as essential as most other tools, machinery and equipment on the farm.

You spend vast sums of money and time growing, harvesting and storing feed crops. For what purpose? To let them spoil or deteriorate in storage? I hope not

The performance of your herd depends heavily upon these feeds. Failure to take all reasonable precautions to help ensure maximum quality in the feeds you "put up" is very short sighted; you have too much at stake. A little money and time spent on using a moisture tester at harvest time is a very small price to pay as insurance for the quality of all the feed you harvest and as insurance for the health and productivity of your herd. In fact, it's really an investment.

Knowing the moisture content at harvest time helps you "put up" silage, haylage and high moisture grains at the right moisture content for optimum fermentation, thus preventing heat damage, spoilage, etc. It helps determine when hay should be baled to prevent leaf shattering, and to prevent spontaneous combustion. It helps in determining how much preservative is needed for the specific moisture content at time of harvest.

True, the moisture readings taken at harvest time can never be considered absolutely accurate, because the moisture content is constantly changing. But, it can be a very good indicator to help guide your harvesting activities. The use of a moisture tester is not a guarantee of success; it only helps you do your job better.

So, now is not too early to make plans to have a good moisture tester on hand and ready to use at harvest ime You'll find it very useful not only at harvest time, but all during the year as you are "feeding out" those crops.

It is very important to know the moisture to the feeds cows consume, especially high moisture feeds such as silage, haylage and high moisture grains. Otherwise, we cannot determine dry matter intakes, and it is impossible to balance rations accurately. Also, the moisture content of these feeds may change considerably from time to time.

Unless we compensate for these moisture changes, dry matter intake will be off, the ration will be out-of-balance, and herd performances will likely suffer. Thus, the moisture content of these foods needs to be checked frequently, and necessary adjustments must be made to the ration

Will moisture be your friend or your foe during this year's harvest season? You can help determine the answer.

The use of a good moisture tester at harvest time, and at feeding time, can help you make moisture work to your advantage.

Davidsburg 4-H club to hold talent show

DOVER — At the April meeting of the Davidsburg 4-H Club, a Blue Form explanation was given by Charla Janney.

On Saturday, the club will be cleaning up the roads around Davidsburg. May 16 and 17, they will be assisting the Thomasville Club with a petting zoo at the York Hospital Fete. And on May 17, they will be operating an obstacle course for the Spring Spree at Paradise Elementary School.

On June 17 the club will be serving refreshments at Ashcombe Dairy's Open House. Other dates for members to remember are: County Council, May 7; Leader Training, May 7; County Demonstration Night, May 14; and Blue Forms due date, May 16.

Next meeting, on Thursday, May 15, will include a talent show as a program.

PERFORMANCE FIRST!
At Yetter ... we build performance, quality and rugged dependability into every Yetter Rotary Hoe.

The 3400 and 3500 series rotary hoes feature arms made of high-strength ductile iron Each spoon-billed tooth is hardened, drop-forged and self-sharpening All bolts are zinc plated and hardened.

Our tool bar rotary hoes also feature independently spring-cushioned arms This feature permits the hoe to follow the contour of any field while insuring rock protection Sizes are available from 15 feet to 34 feet and will accommodate row spaces of 30 or 40 inches

These new hoes are versatile, economical, fast in the field, reliable, and easy to operate What is even more important - they do the job!

NEDCO president foresees era of super co-ops

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Today's predominant topic of conservation seems to be, "Super Co-ops". Are they good for dairymen?

The topic becomes more important now that we are witnessing an attempt to establish such a co-op in New England, says NEDCO President Edward McNamara.

The new co-op, "Agri-Mark, Inc.," will it become a reality? If so, how will it affect the market, the producer and relationships with other co-ops? All are important questions of concern to most of us.

In spite of publicity to the contrary, there are a few financially solvent co-ops in the Northeast. These financially stable co-ops will be the ones who will ponder long and hard on whether or not to become a part of Agri-Mark, Inc., especially if other options are available, McNamara says.

Can a small co-op continue to provide the best possible income and services to its members in the future as it has in the past?

Unquestionably, we will all be faced with mounting challenges as it becomes more politically advantageous for politicians to become open allies of consummer groups. That fact became painfully obvious to many of us as we attempted to solicit support from city congressmen and senators in opposition to a hearing on the CNI proposal.

This was a good test case in that the CNI proponents have a very weak case but even then the aura of "consumerism" was too much to overcome by many politically conscious city politicians. Had the CNI argument been strong, the job would be even more formidable, he says.

There will be many more attacks of a legislative nature by the Justice Department, Consumer groups, and others, but even small co-ops will be able to battle them fairly effectively in concert with others if they are members of the National Milk Producers Federation.

The legislative advantages gained by super co-ops in some areas are significant, however, where they set up "political actions committees" with funds which are used legally to help finance campaigns for friendly congressmen and senators.

There may be other avenues in the future, however, where super co-ops' benefits far outshine the legislative area.

The modern thinking of many Department of Agriculture representatives of the present administration is without question different than those in previous administrations McNamara says. They make no bones of the fact that new policies will be aimed in a different direction although admitting that present policies haven't worked that badly.

Nevertheless, they seem to favor a new approach which would somehow re-activate those "small" farms that have gone out of business and still get cheaper food for consumers, an amazing theory and one unlikely to happen without increased cost to taxpayers.

In the midst of all this new theory we sit with our highly mechanized super-efficient farms wondering what's in store for us. Is it a cost of production formula which if enacted nationwide, would severely cripple the dairy industry in the Northeast with our higher than national cost of production?

Will it be a program which, although not publicized to do so, would have the effect of eliminating all marketing orders, in an insane, short term, cheap food policy?

Could it even be an attempt to carry out the policy of the infamous "Flanagan plan," originally proposed in 1972, which would have the long range effect of phasing out at least 10 percent of the dairy farmers in favor of importing dairy products?

Whatever the policy turns out to be, you can be sure it will be a change from our present well-working dairy programs, McNamara predicts.

Loss of market orders would seriously impair dairy farm income and create havoc in milk marketing as every farmer and co-op scrambled for markets at whatever price. This may be one of the strongest arguments in favor of super co-ops. It would seem to me the bigger the percentage of dairymen belonging to one dairy co-op in a market, the less traumatic would be a switch from the secure feeling of marketing milk under a Federal Order to one without such an order, he says.

In either case, we will all be better served to continue our efforts in opposition to those who want to scuttle those orders meanwhile looking for the best alternative, if that should happen.

Joint hauling of milk, and joint quality control are areas where significant savings can be realized as we found in our short experience with CMA. Joint use of facilities allowing near-by milk to go to the nearest facility can also be a significant factor in cost-cutting and will become more necessary as fuel costs increase.

Local co-ops would have to lose some of their identity as functions were transferred to the large co-op. In that case, much would depend on the type of large organization and how much dependence was surrendered. A direct membership super co-op would totally eliminate the local co-op while a federation-type would allow a certain amount of local control.

There are many opinions, pro and con, concerning both of these arrangements: Maybe a combination would be workable?

In the final analysis, McNamara says, the benefits of a well financed, properly structured super co-op, far outweigh the disadvantages.

As the pressures from consumer groups become enormous, and they will, Justice Department, Cost of Living Committee, et.al., will continue to criticize farm programs, support prices, school lunch programs, special milk programs, etc. We shall continue to fight those unjustified attacks because the facts are on our side; the price of food is reasonable and farm income is still not a par with the rest of the economy.

Nevertheless, if these government programs are finally phased out we must have an alternate plan and, in my opinion, that can only be large well-financed co-ops with at least a majority of the farmers in the market in membership.

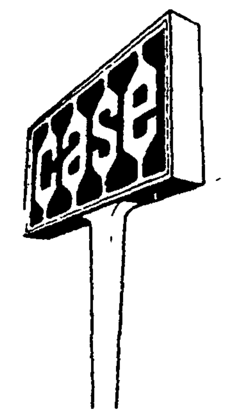
The Tractor Specialist sells more "up-time"



When the farmer is ready, his tractor had better be That's one reason a Case dealer franchise makes extra good sense.

As a Case dealer, you're the Tractor Specialist. You sell and service the best in farm tractors And you are backed by an industry first. Assured Availability It means that, during warranty, if a tractor bought from you isn't ready to go you can offer your customer free use of a replacement. And Case will back you up Proof that when a Case dealer needs help, we do something about it

You could be planning a bright future as your area's Tractor Specialist
You could also consider our light construction equipment line. Write or call for full information on the Case dealer franchise.

HERE ARE TWO FIRSTS FOR PENNSYLVANIA:

One, the first Satellite Challenge Feeder sold and installed on a Pennsylvania farm, and the first Challenge Feeder we have sold in Chester County, Pennsylvania.

This unique feeder is a compact assembly of two challenge feeders and the concentrate Storage bin - all in one package, which can be located in most feed lots without any further concrete work.

This unique feeder was installed on Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hoopes Farm at West Grove, Pennsylvania in December, 1979.

Mr. Hoopes states that this feeder is operating exactly as it is designed to do and he is sure that the cows like it very much from the usage it is getting. He can't verify how much more milk he is producing because he just started a new milking parlor in October and his cows need to get adjusted to all the new facilities.

He also is using the new DV 300 parlor model milker control in his parlor and is really sold on their performance.

Why not stop in at Mr. and Mrs. Hoopes farm and look over his new system and talk to them about their challenge feeder. He will be happy to talk about them.

We will be getting two more Satellite Challenge Feeders in stock in April - so if you are interested in this outstanding feeding mechanism that controls the amount of concentrate you want to feed your cows, just give us a call at 301-658-6923, and talk to any of our service personnel about your needs.

YORKSHIRE SERVICE BOARS
15 September Boars $225 & up

Our boars have proven they are high in economic values. Our SPARTAN boar received the sire of the year award. Our KICK boar produced the most efficient pen of purebred hogs, spring test (1976) 2.96 lbs. feed per/lb. gain. 1979 our HUSTLE boar sired the highest indexing boar, highest indexing pen of Yorkshire, the highest selling, the leanest, most efficient pen of Yorkshires (2.63 per lb. gain), the soundest pen with an average score of 7.4 and had an average daily gain of 1.92. These pigs were all put on feed as small pigs and were in competition with hogs of all other breeds.

NEW PURINA DAIRY SPECIAL (COARSE)

"The Complete Milking Ration That Outperforms Its Tag"

Purina Dairy Special (Coarse) was designed by Purina Dairy Research to fit the special needs of dairymen. It's a complete ration available in 16% & 18% protein levels. And because it's a coarse ration it will flow readily in your bulk bins. It is made from high quality ingredients and has the precise balance of nutrients you expect from Purina. It is a medium energy ration that equals or exceeds many grind and mix rations used in this area.

$157 6 TON BULK NET (16% protein) Also Available in 3 Ton Quantities

both have more in common than first meets the eye When you are purchasing farm equipment, you compare various makes and models, as well as the service of the dealer and the reliability of the manufacturer to make certain that you are getting the most value for your dollar. Likewise, when selling a farm, you want to make certain that you are getting the most value for the commission dollars you are spending. AT KISSINGER, LEONARD & ASSOCIATES Farm and Land Department, we invite you to compare the complete line of services provided including a comprehensive advertising program and full time sales associates who sell only farms and land and are thoroughly knowledgeable with the most modern farming practices and agricultural lending requirements There is a difference! If you would like more information without any obligation, please call any of the Farm and Land Department Sales Associates listed below.

A HIGH PRODUCING BERKS CO. HERD PUTS IT ALL TOGETHER...

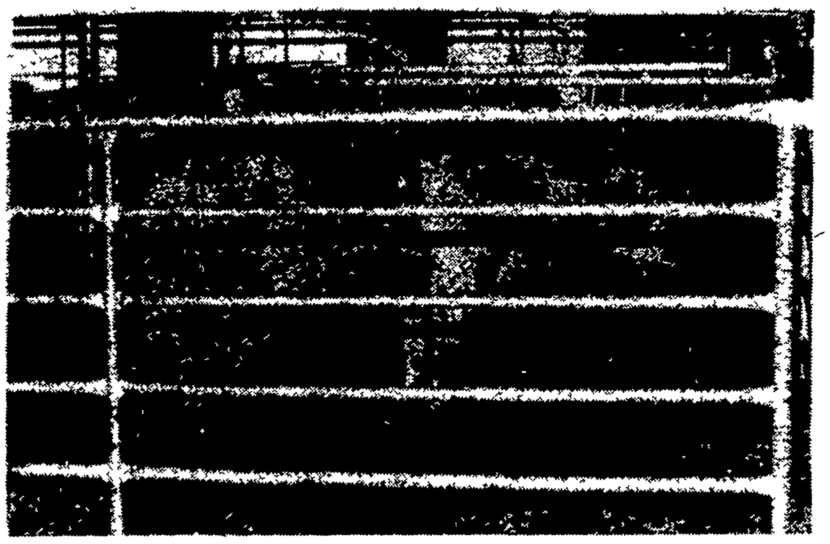
Dr. Walter Kennett, nutritionist for F.M. BROWN'S SONS, Tim Kissling and father Charles Kissling discussing complete mixed ration that is blended in a stationery mixer and fed with an electric cart. Ration consists of HME Corn, haylage, corn silage and Brown's 38 MILKMASTER. In addition, several pounds of hay is fed to each cow.

High moisture ear corn, haylage and corn silage is stored in three up-right silos.

Tim Kissling eagerly awaits milking the next generation which includes Willow, Conductor, Milestone and Betty Chief among others.

CHARLES R. and TIMOTHY C. KISSLING, Robesonia RD#1 dairymen, have combined breeding, management and feeding to achieve a new high at HIDDEN-VIEW FARM in both milk and butterfat production. Their current DHIA Rolling Herd Average thru April is:

22,170 lbs. MILK • 787 lbs. BUTTERFAT • 62 COWS



Kissling management includes spacious box stalls for close dry cows, worming cows twice yearly, daily exercise and a veterinarian supervised herd health program.

MAPLE was 7th 4 yr old at 1980 Pa State Holstein Show

HIDDEN VIEW has a long history of high milk production topped off with their 1979 DHIA average of 19,689 lbs. Milk and 728 lbs. Fat. During 1980 test year, their average continues to climb with a total of 10, 13, and 10 cows in January, February and March milking over 100 lbs. a day.

WE ARE PROUD of our customers fine cows,, skilled management and achievements. Records such as the KISSLINGS' are a source of pride to us. We are pleased with the part that BROWN'S FEEDS and FEEDING PROGRAMS had in helping to attain these records. We shall continue to strive to give farmers the best quality feed and nutritional service possible.

First new Farm Women Society in Lancaster County in 9 years

Society 32 - a group of enthuasistic farm wives

BY SALLY BAIR
Staff Correspondent

For some it is the opportunity to get to know other farm wives; for others it means the chance to learn some crafts; for still others it means some time to pursue their own interests.

Whatever their reasons, the members of Lancaster County's newest Farm Women Society, 32, have formed a common bond and a commitment to make new friends who share their way of life.

The new Society, organized formally on March 17, is the first new group formed in the County in nine years, according to Opal Ruhl, County Farm Women president. Furthermore, it is composed entirely of farm wives and members intend to keep it that way, with the exception of members whose husbands are actively engaged in agri-business.

Many of the new members said they had often thought of joining a Farm Women Society, but hadn't known how to go about it. But thanks to an energetic core group, the new Society is a reality.

Shirley Hershey, Elizabethtown R3, is vice president and one of the Society's most enthusiastic organizers. She said, "We found out that you could organize a Society if you knew ten people who wanted to join. We had ten people at our first meeting." At the second meeting, there were 18 people, all eager to join.

Members of Society 32 have decided to limit their membership to 20-25 people so they can meet comfortably in their homes, but they don't want to discourage potential members. Shirley said, "We all knew more people we could have invited, but we stopped inviting so we wouldn't get too large. We hope if there is more interest they will go to their own communities and start a society." Shirley's husband James has a dairy operation.

Liz Heistand, Manheim R4, president of the new group, reflected on the ease with which they organized and said, "We would like to encourage other groups to start a new Society. Some people I have invited said they often thought about joining a society, but the didn't know how to do it. A new one is a great way to become a member."

Liz, whose husband Lester is a dairy farmer, said she was surprised, but happy, with the reception she received when she visited her first County Board meeting where all Society presidents meet several times a year. "When I told them we were going to limit our group to farm wives and wives of ag-related businessmen, they applauded. They were very encouraging — what group of women could have been better?"

Opal Ruhl encouraged the new Society at every step, and attended the first meeting to help them with potential difficulties. The new officers said, "Opal was very helpful."

For her part, Opal says she is "thrilled" with the new Society. "I have to feel it is a highlight of my term as president to have a new society. It is such an energetic group of ladies. I would encourage any group with ten interested women. There is a lot to be gained from smaller groups who can do more together."

Opal added that women who are interested in starting a new Society but who don't have the ten required people could contact her and together they may be able to get a group organized. Opal said she is very interested in increasing total Farm Women membership, and pointed out that the more societies a county has the more voting power they have within the state organization.

All the members of the Society are young and most have young children, some of whom attend the meetings with their mothers. The Society members have chosen to meet in the evenings to solve baby-sitter problems, and to have a free night of their own.

Each of the members has her own reason for wanting to become a member, but most said they'd like to get to know other farm wives. Sandy Martin, Elizabethtown R3, whose husband Albert raises swine and beef, said, "I joined because I think it will be a good way of meeting different people, especially other young women and their families." Sandy's mother and sister are Farm Women members in another Society, and Sandy is corresponding secretary for Society 32. She added another reason for joining, "My husband is always going to meetings and I think I'm entitled to a night out."

Linda Umbrell, Elizabethtown R3, is treasurer of the new organization, and was one of those who looked into the possibilities of organizing a new group. Her husband Dennis has a farrowing and beef operation. Linda says, "I wanted to learn to do things with other farm wives. Everyone has alot of good ideas, and we hope everybody will put their ideas in to making it a good Society."

For Shirley Hershey, the new Society represents an opportunity for learning. She said, "I want to learn some aspects of farming and hope we can find ways of promoting agriculture and make people more proud of farming. But I'm also looking forward to learning to know other people and to having fun together."

Lois Boll, Mount Joy R2, said, "I joined Farm Women to learn from other young farm wives. We feel that Farm Women is to a farm wife what Young Farmers are to men. My husband felt it was something worthwhile." Lois is recording secretary.

In fact, all the officers agreed that their husbands were supportive. Shirley said, "My husband saw it as a good thing. He is excited about it." Linda agreed. "My husband is looking forward to family get-togethers." A summer family picnic is already planned.

Member Nancy Brandt, Manheim R3, said, "I've just been thinking for a long time that I wanted to get involved with women who wanted to do something for others."

Renee Brandt, Manheim R6, said, "We're moving to the area and I want to get to meet people." Mary Ann Hershey, Manheim R4, also a new member, said, "I grew up on a farm and I always wanted to be a member of a Farm Women group, but since their membership is limited I didn't know how to do it."

At their second meeting, as they were introducing themselves and getting to know one another, their reasons for joining were diverse. One women said, "I wanted something other than home, family and church." Another said, "I see it as a way to extend a my friendship circle wider." Another said, "I joined to get to know people and for fun."

The fun has already started. At the meeting, Sandy led the group in making macrame pot hangers. They all plunged into the tangle of cord to learn to make the holders, and eagerly accepted advice from the more experienced in the group. Through the yards and yards of cord, they had ample opportunity to get to know each other and exchange information.

They are not short on ideas about what they'd like to do at their meetings. They have been checking into programs from other societies, and are encouraging participation from their members. At this point they are operating from month to month and will continue that way on a trial basis until September. "Then we'll plan for a year," Shirley says.

Flower arranging, pressed flower paper, cake decorating and microwave oven demonstrations are possibilities, but the flexibility will allow for almost any interest of the members.

They are enthusiastic in their ideas, and are even hoping to get some of their ideas into the existing framework of Farm Women. Shirely said, "I hope we can give Farm Women some new ideas, and get some younger life into it. We all share common backgrounds."

It is evident that this enthusiastic group of young farm wives has a lot to offer to Farm Women and to their communities and families. Their enthusiasm is abundant and they are sure to grow as they meet and become further organized.

Since new Societies don't happen very often, the officers and charter members are, in some ways, charting a new course. Their leadership will be an asset to the whole Lancaster County community.

ABOUT EASY SEWING

When you don't want to spend much time at your sewing machine but need to add a garment to your wardrobe, look for patterns that use few pieces and have instructions for simple, speedy sewing.

Every major pattern company has developed some helps to make sewing fast and easy.

"Super Jiffy" patterns are the quickest you'll find, with just one main pattern piece plus facings. Other quick-to-sew patterns are marked "Super Simple," "Quick and Easy," "Make-It-Tonight Knits", "Make it Easy Please," "Sew and Go," "Easy Fashions," "Very Easy," "Yes, I Can," and "E.S.P." These patterns have two to six main pieces plus facings.

A few of the fast sewing techniques you'll find in these special patterns are—elastic casing waistlines rather than zipper and straight waist-band and edge finishes made by simply turning under seam allowance and top stitching.

You can sew many new clothes and still have plenty of time for other activities if you take advantage of the quick patterns available.

FOOD PRESERVATIVES

The American diet of the 1980's would be greatly altered if we did not have the use of preservatives. Our bread would turn stale after a few days, our vegetable oil rancid and our hot dogs a greyish color without the use of preservatives.

Preservatives help prevent the deterioration of color, flavor, freshness and nutrient content in foods. They are also added to food to inhibit or prevent microbial growth. Molds can be a serious problem because they may produce toxins while bacterial growth can cause food poisoning.

Preservation techniques have been used for more than a century. A common preservative is salt, used for years to preserve meat without cooking.

By retarding the spoilage of food, preservatives also help us prevent waste and supply shortages. The World Health Organization estimates that about 20 percent of the world's food is lost in this way. A much higher percentage is lost in some countries.

It is true that the physical and biological processing of food, such as heating, drying, pickling and smoking, contribute to the preservation of some substances. However, these processes often achieve only partial preservation.

Preservatives occur either naturally or synthetically. Some foods known to contain naturally occurring preservatives are cranberries, some fermented cheese, egg whites, milk, honey, horseradish, spices, essential oils, cabbage, garlic, onions, radishes, sweet potatoes, tomatoes, bananas, strawberries and cereals. (rye, wheat, wheat bran, corn and barley).

These foods contain what are known as antibiotic and antifungal agents. Another type of preservative is the antioxidant. Some antioxidants occur naturally, such as a form of vitamin C, called ascorbic acid.

Other naturally occurring antioxidants include tocopherols (from vitamin E), gum guaiac (a wood resin), quercetin (from onions), rutin (from asparagus) and anthocyanin pigments (from red wine). These all have ominous sounding names but actually occur in nature.

Synthetic or chemical antioxidants are commonly used because of effectiveness, cost and availability. The three major ones are prophyl gallate (PG), butylated hydroxyanisole (BHA) and butylated hydroxytoluene (BHT).

Two other well known chemical preservatives are nitrates and nitrites, although they do occur naturally in some foods.

Synthetic preservatives have come under increasing attack in the past several years. Laboratory studies of their effects on the health of rats have been conducted for many years in several countries, with a variety of findings. Some researchers report findings that these preservatives may cause cancer, others that they may actually lengthen life through age prevention.

At this point in time it is perhaps best for each person to determine individually which preservative he or she will or will not consume.

Perk up humdrum family dining with a new recipe

For some of us, dieting is a constant struggle between what we are and what we'd like to be. For others, it is something we seldom do. No matter which of these categories you and your family fit into, we have interesting recipes for you to try today.

If you are dieting, the first three recipes are for you. Read them but do not read the remainder until you're diet's done. If you're not dieting, enjoy them all, and then if the scale says you've enjoyed too many, refer back to the first three. Happy eating!

SLIMDOWN SANDWICH

½ cup cottage cheese
1 tablespoon grated carrot
1 teaspoon sliced green onion
1 teaspoon chopped parsley
dash of garlic salt
2 slices pumpernickel bread, buttered lettuce
2 slices ham or bologna
tomato slices

Combine cottage cheese, carrot, onion, parsley and garlic salt; chill. Yield: ½ cup. Arrange lettuce, meat and tomato on bread. Top each sandwich with ¼ cup cottage cheese mixture. Wrap in plastic. Makes 2 sandwiches. Note: cottage cheese mixture may be carried separately and added to sandwich just before serving.

LOW-CALORIE CHICKEN BAKE

¼ cup skim milk
¾ cup cornflake crumbs
1 teaspoon paprika
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon celery salt
1 tablespoon sesame seeds
1 frying chicken, cut into parts

Mix together the cornflakes, paprika, salt, celery salt and sesame seeds. Dip chicken in the skim milk. Coat with dry mixture. Arrange chicken, skin side up in a single layer on a non-stick pan. Bake in 375° F oven for 50 minutes or until brown and fork tender. Makes 4 servings, approximately 210 calories per serving.

ORANGE THIGHS

1 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
¼ cup orange juice
1 tablespoon honey
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
¼ teaspoon dry mustard

Place chicken in baking pan. Season with salt and pepper. Bake in 350° F. oven for 30 minutes. Meanwhile, mix orange juice, honey, Worcestershire sauce and mustard. Pour over chicken. Bake, basting frequently for 30 minutes more or until chicken is brown and fork tender. Makes 4 servings, approximately 264 calories per serving.

Whatever you cook for the family, cheese makes a perfect companion. When cooking leftovers, use cheese as a topping when reheating in the oven. When small quantities of meat are left, make it into a sandwich spread and serve with a slice of cheese. And when the meal just seems to lack a little something, add a tray of cheese.

FRENCH RHUBARB PIE

¾ cup flour
½ cup brown sugar
⅓ cup margarine
1 egg
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 cups diced rhubarb
2 tablespoons flour

Mix the first three ingredients, and the topping, and put aside. Mix the remaining ingredients together and place in an unbaked pie shell. Cover with topping and bake at 400° F. for 10 minutes. Continue baking at 350° F. for 30 minutes or until done.

MAPLE SUGAR CANDY

1 cup rich creamy milk
3 cups brown sugar (or 2 cups maple sugar and 1 cup white sugar)
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup walnuts

Put 1 cup of rich creamy milk into a saucepan, and add 3 cups of dark brown sugar or 2 cups of maple sugar and 1 cup of white sugar. Allow the mixture to come to a boil. Boil until it forms a soft ball when dropped into cold water.

Add 1 teaspoon of vanilla and remove from the heat, then beat until it thickens. Stir in 1 large cup of walnuts, broken fine. Turn the mixture into a buttered pan to cool. Mark off into squares before the mixture cools.

B. Russell, Pine Bush, N.Y.

PRIZE-WINNING VANILLA ICE CREAM

2 tablespoons unflavored gelatin
2 cups sugar
3 cups milk
5 eggs
¼ teaspoon salt
1½ quarts light cream
1 (3¾-ounce) package instant vanilla pudding mix
5 teaspoons vanilla

Soften gelatin in ½ cup cold milk. Scald 1½ cups milk and stir into gelatin mixture until it dissolves. Add sugar and salt, stirring until dissolved. Add remaining milk.

Beat the eggs at high speed of an electric mixer for 5 minutes. Add light cream, pudding mix, vanilla and gelatin mixture. Pour into a 1 gallon ice cream freezer container. Freeze according to the procedure for your freezer. When finished, remove the dasher. Pack down the ice cream. Replace the lid and add ice and salt around the container in a 3-1 ratio. Allow to stand 2 hours. Makes 3½ quarts.

Alta S. Nolt, Williamsburg

DANDELION SALAD

1½-2 cups water
2 tablespoons vinegar
1 tablespoon brown sugar
1 egg, beaten
salt

Mix dry ingredients and add egg. Add vinegar and water and blend well. Bring to boiling point and add enough flour to make a thick sauce. Fry bacon until crisp. Wash dandelion and cook only 5 minutes in salt and water. Strain and add to the sauce. Add bacon and 2-3 slices of hard-boiled eggs.

FRUIT PUNCH

4 cup sugar
2 cups water
2 cups strong tea
2 cups lemon juice
2½ cups orange juice
2 large cans pineapple juice
2 packages frozen strawberries (with juice)
3 gallons water
2 quarts ginger ale

Boil sugar and the 2 cups of water together about 10 minutes to make a syrup. Add tea, lemon juice, orange juice and pineapple juice. Chill several hours. Add the thawed strawberries (with juice) remaining water and ginger ale. Pour over ice cubes in which curls of lemon or orange peel or maraschino cherries have been frozen. Serves 75 people.

B. Russell, Pine Buch, N.Y.

LEMON PIE

1 lemon, grated, rind and juice
1 scant cup white sugar
1 scant cup table molasses butter the size of a walnut
1 large tin water
4 tablespoons cornstarch — moisten with water

Add cornstarch before others comes to a boil. Continue stirring until boiled slightly. Let cool while you mix the dough.

1 cup sugar
½ cup butter and lard or oleo
1 cup thick milk or sour cream
1 teaspoon soda
1 cup or more flour - enough to stiffen and roll.

Roll bottom crust and then make a lattice crust for the top. Makes 2 medium pies.

CARAMELS

2 cups white sugar
2 cups white corn syrup
½ cup butter or margarine
2 cups condensed canned milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
few grains salt

Boil sugar, corn syrup, and salt in a heavy 3 quart saucepan. Stir occasionally with long handled wooden spoon. When the syrup is very thick (215° F.) add butter then add milk gradually, so the mixture does not stop boiling.

Cook as rapidly as possible without sticking, stirring constantly until it reaches 242° F. or until a firm ball is formed when a few drops are added to cold water. Add 1 teaspoon vanilla. Pour into a square or oblong buttered dish. Cool. Cut into squares and wrap individual wax paper squares.

BUTTERSCOTCH-NUT MERINGUE PIE

2 cups milk
¼ cup butter or margarine
¾ cup firmly packed dark brown sugar
¼ cup unsifted all-purpose flour
¼ teaspoon salt
3 egg yolks, beaten
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ cup walnuts or pecans, finely chopped
1 baked 9-inch pie shell
3 egg whites
6 tablespoons sugar
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar

In a small saucepan, heat the milk until bubbles form around the sides of the pan. Set aside. Melt the butter in a medium saucepan. Gradually add sugar, flour and salt and stir until smooth. Add hot milk, stirring with a wire whisk. Heat to boiling Boil one minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. In a small bowl beat ¼ cup of the hot mixture into the egg yolks Pour egg yolks into the saucepan, stirring rapidly to prevent lumping. Cook 3 more minutes over low heat, stirring constantly (do not boil). Remove pan from heat and stir in vanilla and nuts Set aside and prepare the meringue. In a small bowl with mixer at high speed, beat egg whites and ¼ teaspoon cream of tartar until foamy Gradually add 6 tablespoons sugar, 1 tablespoon at a time, beating well after each addition until the sugar is dissolved and whites are stiff but not dry Preheat oven to 350° F Pour filling into baked pie shell Spread meringue over it sealing it well to the crust Bake 10-12 minutes or until golden brown

EGGS IN BOLOGNA CUPS

2 teaspoons shortening
6 slices bologna
6 eggs
6 tablespoons milk
salt and pepper to taste
paprika if desired

Preheat oven to 375° F. Grease 6 muffin cups. Melt 2 teaspoons shortening in skillet over low heat. Place 3 slices of bologna in skillet and fry until the edges curl. Lift each slice into a muffin cup. Repeat with remaining bologna slices. Break 1 egg into the center of each bologna slice to hold it down. Pour 1 teaspoon milk over each egg. Sprinkle eggs lightly with salt, pepper and paprika. Bake uncovered in the oven 15-20 minutes or until the eggs are set.

POTATO SALAD

½ gallon cold fine diced potatoes
½ onion
½ cup finely chopped celery pinch of salt and pepper diced carrot if desired
Dressing:
2 eggs, well beaten
½ cup vinegar
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon butter
2 teaspoons cornstarch

Cook the dressing over low heat until thickened. Cool and add: ½ cup mayonnaise, 1½ teaspoons mustard and ½ cup cream.

Mix all ingredients together and let stand 3 hours until flavor penetrates the mixture.

APPLE GOODIE

1½ cups brown sugar
2 tablespoons flour
pinch of salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1½ quarts apples, sliced
Topping:
1 cup oatmeal
1 cup brown sugar
1 cup flour
¼ teaspoon soda
⅓ teaspoon baking powder
⅔ cup melted butter or margarine

Mix sugar, flour, salt and cinnamon. Add to apples and mix. Put on the bottom of a greased pan.

Mix the ingredients of the topping until crumbly. Spread the topping over the apples and pat down firmly. Bake until brown and crust is formed at about 350° F. Serve with milk or cream.

On being a farm wife -And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

Several weeks ago, I confided to you that I hadn't the slightest notion of what was to be taught in a $485 advanced college course advertising flyer that somehow ended up in the morning mail one day. That course was entitled: "Analysis of variance for data having unequal numbers of observations in the subclasses."

I'm thrilled to report, praises be, that through the noble efforts of a certain dairy science professor at Virginia Polytechnic Institute, I have finally been elightened. There'll be no more lying awake nights wondering what this all means! Here goes:

It seems that unequal subclasses refers to experiments which might have been poorly designed or incorrectly designed or even run without a design. For instance, says our professor friend, let's suppose that we set up a test of five additives on the milk yield of 100 cows, with five groups of 20 (our subclasses) receiving each additive. But (beware) additive #4 killed 10 cows and additive #5 killed 15 cows.

So now the researcher as a choice. He can own up that the additives killed some of those poor cows and then analyze what he has left, though admittedly groups four and five aren't going to look so hot on the charts of statistics

On the other hand, our researcher could instead ignore the dead cows and figure statistics on the remaining ones still out there happily chewing on their cuds.

Our subclasses now have numbers of 20, 20, 20, 10 and 5, which, in case you haven't figured out, are unequal. Besides, who has to know that we just had 25 dead cows hauled away?

Now about the "variance" part. That's the amount of difference between the average production of the live and the dead cows — definitely a discrepancy. Merely drop the records of those that died, and figure what the additives did for the unequal subclasses still left and — viola! — the bottom line might still look pretty credible.

There it is: everything you always wanted to know about the analysis of variance for data having unequal numbers of observations in the subclasses — but were afraid to ask.

And the whole darn thing sounds fishy to me. Undoubtedly that's how we get this wonderful information on all the carcinogenic stuff that kills those research rats.

Farm Women Societies

Berks Co. Society 7

Berks Society 7 held their April meeting in the home of Mae Gelsinger with Lillian Grajewski as co-hostess.

Judy Stoudt, guest speaker, showed slides and held a discussion on house plants.

The group decided not to participate in the craft fair this year but made plans to set up workshops so they will have enough items for next year. Other money raising projects such as a raffle and garage sale were also discussed

Members volunteered to bake 4 pounds of cookies for the Berks Heim Tea on May 7.

Bar-B-Q Chicken will be on the menu for our dinner meeting. This meeting will be held at the home of Alberta Manbeck, Womelsdorf on May 28 at 7 15 p.m

Cumberland Co. Society 10

The April meeting of Cumberland Group 10 was held recently at the home of Doreen Barnhart. 13 members present answered roll call by telling how they earned their first money.

Final plans were made for a Mother-Daughter banquet to be held in May; it will be a covered dish supper.

A Stanley party was held with Erma Mansberger serving as the hostess assisted by Dorcas Coleman.

The next meeting will be a Mother-Daughter banquet to be held May 16 at the Green Spring Church of God, Newville R2, beginning at 6 p.m.

Lancaster Co. Society 2

Lancaster Society 2 met recently at the Farm and Home Center.

On May 1, the Spring Rally will be held at the York Fairgrounds. May 21, ladies will sew at the Osteopathic Hospital in Lancaster. And May 29, members of Society 11 will entertain the ladies of Society 2 at the Memorial United Methodist Church in Quarryville.

A monetary gift was sent to Easter Seals; also a love gift was presented to Nathan Oberholtzer, Jr., honoring the memory of his wife.

The speaker was Chris Erb from Mount Joy. Chris, a volunteer worker who spent the last six months in Japan, discussed Japanese culture, dress, occupation and life style nothing that all are quite different from life in these United States.

Ladies played get acquainted Bingo. Winners were: Anna Capwell, Mae Hossler, Loretta Hurst, Robbie Galston, Florence Oberholtzer, Chris Erb, Loda Gentzler, Anna Mae Snader and Elsie Witmer.

Lancaster Co. Society 4

Lancaster Society 4 entertained Saturday with a noon luncheon honoring County Officers and members of Society 26 at Ironville United Methodist Church. Forty-one persons attended.

Table decorations were bouquets of Spring flowers arranged in white cups and saucers. Place favors were styrofoam "Spring Hats", each decorated with a flower and ribbon. As guests arrived, each was given an umbrella-shaped name tag bearing one-half the name of a flower. Their luncheon partner was the person with the matching half.

Members answered roll call by introducing their guests. These were: Mrs. John Hess, state president; three Lancaster County officers - Mrs. Roy Sauder, first vice president; Mrs. Harry Hershey Jr., second vice president; and Mrs. David Buckwalter, secretary; seven members of Society 26, and Mrs. David Antone.

It was announced that meals will be served at Wyeth Lab on May 21.

The guest speaker. Marian Shatto of Lititz, gave a multimedia program on the music and costumes of Yugoslavia.

Miss Shatto, an accomplished violinist, is a member of the Moravian Church choir and orchestra in Lititz. She was attired in a native costume, including "opanki", leather shoes turned up at the toe. She described her visit to a ten-day folk festival held in 1977 in the city of Zagreb, in the province of Croatia, Yugoslavia. Accompanied by recorded music, she showed slides of the city of Zagreb, its roof-tops of tile, the market place, costumes of the various groups who attended the festival, and samples of the beautiful handmade lace and embroidered clothing. She also showed slides of the countryside and scenic views of Plitvice National Forest, also in Croatia. She concluded her program by playing V. Monti's gypsy

Lancaster Co. Society 5

Lancaster County Society 5 held their April meeting at Hempfield Church of the Brethren with Anna Ruth Ebersole and Ruth Long as hostesses.

Amos Herr entertained the society with a slide show of an Alaskan tour.

The Society decided to contribute to the Hospice program, which is the county project this year, and also to the Lancaster County Dairy Princess organization. It was announced that 8 persons sewed at the Lancaster General Hospital in April.

The next meeting will be 'Saturday, May 24 at the home of Pauline Longenecker. The speaker will be Orpha Bauer, a visiting nurse.

Lancaster Co. Society 12

Lancaster Society 12 met at the home of Marian Glick, Saturday.

The theme of the meeting was Safety First. Several suggestions were given for avoiding accidents.

Motions were made to contribute to the County Project and also to the annual Dairy Queen project.

It was decided by the Society to take on a Stanley Products Sale. Books will be distributed to members interested in ordering articles.

At the May 24 meeting, we will entertain Society 3 with a luncheon at the Lions Community Buliding in Millersville.

Lancaster Co. Society 26

Lancaster Society 26 met in the home of Ruby Esbenshade. The speaker Eileen Hershey, from the Manheim Fitness Club, spoke about nutrition, rest and exercise and demonstrated exercises to tone and firm.

$100 was donated to the Hospice program, the county project, and the Dairy Princess Pageant was given a donation. Also, a 4-H sewing class was given rent for 3 sewing machines.

The group was entertained at a luncheon by Society 4 at Ironville United Methodist Church Saturday. Marian Shatto talked about Yugoslavia. She showed slides and played the violin.

A bingo came at Conestoga View will be supervised by the group. Society 17 will be entertained by the group at a luncheon at East Fairview Church of the Brethren Thursday, May 22.

Lancaster Co. Society 30

Delores Alderfer demonstrated flower arranging with silk flowers at the April meeting of Lancaster Society 30 at the home of Priscilla Hostetter, New Holland.

The group voted to send a donation to the Lancaster County Dairy Princess Pageant.

The next meeting will be held at the Farm and Home Center on Monday, May 19. Society 30 will entertain Society 21 with Rebecca Ebersole demonstrating cake decorating.

Lancaster Co. Society 28

Lancaster County Society 28 met recently for a Lancaster City Walking Tour. After the tour, they had lunch at the P.J. Matthews Restaurant.

The next meeting will be held May 22 at 6:00 p.m. for a Mother and Daughter Banquet at the Hershey Farms Restaurant. The speaker will talk on dolls. Music will be by Janice and Joanne Wenger.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

The rhubarb is ready to be cut, the peas need to be hoed and the windows should be washed. With a statement like the above, you might think that I was a dedicated housewife Sometimes I am But this is only a part of my life.

Recently I was struck by how little we know of each other When I told our Coordinator of Youth Work that Cindy wouldn't be able to attend a church meeting as she was at the Pa Junior Horticulture Ass'n Conference at State College and had been elected President, he said, "Oh, I thought she was interested in music." This statement was made because she often plays her flute in our church and therefore is thought of as a musician.

Last night Allen and I attended her induction into the National Honor Society. She is a good student and a Junior leader in the Manheim Twp. 4-H Community Club which we just reorganized. She has been to the National Junior Horticulture Association Conference and won honors there.

Her other interests include her dairy animals, her strawberry bed, her flower garden and cooking and baking. Participation in the school band has given her many social contacts. And then there is another aspect of her life-the big decision to be made in the next few months as to which college she will attend.

I suppose with my writing each week many people feel that they know me. Yet, how often do I mention my committment to my God, or my devotion to my country. And, I don't expound on the quick, sharp words which sometimes are spoken and then regreted. Nor do I explain my hurt feelings, when after working very hard on a project, I am wrongly accused. It seems that high and low feelings are a part of all of our lives.

When I said something about not really knowing people, to my son who hitchhiked home from Penn State to vote, (I, myself, put in a long 15 hour day as Inspector of Elections), he told me it was probably a good thing that we don't know everything about each other. Guess he's right.

Boost your corn profits with UNIPEL® Starter Special 13-34-10.

This is the "corn popper" special the most imitated pop-up fertilizer on the market As part of a UNIPEL corn fertility program, it suits perfectly the young corn plant's immediate need for nutrients to develop a good root system – the starting point for top yields

Recipe Swap

Eggs Foo Yong, a hearty dish of chopped sauted vegetables, shrimp and eggs is featured here for those seeking a diet recipe. It contains only 110 calories per patty. The Hot Soy Sauce adds a rich taste to the dish and contains only about 5 calories per tablespoon.

For those who are not on a diet, we have a sinfully lush Red Velvet Cake. The rich red color is only topped by the lush goodness of the taste.

Why not take some time and try today's recipes, then sit down and jot down requests for some you'd like to find. Mail your recipe request to: RECIPE SWAP, Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 366, Lititz, PA 17543

EGGS FOO YONG

1 tablespoon salad oil
1 chopped green pepper
1 chopped onion
1 cup cleaned, cooked shrimp
1 cup bean sprouts
1 cup water chestnuts, drained and sliced
2-3 tablespoons soy sauce
5 eggs
1 tablespoon salad oil

In a skillet, heat 1 tablespoon salad oil and cook, stirring pepper and onion until tender. Stir in shrimp, bean sprouts, water chestnuts and soy sauce. Heat through. Remove from heat.

In a bowl, beat eggs until thick and lemon colored. Stir in shrimp mixture. In skillet, heat 1 tablespoon oil. Pour the egg mixture into the hot skillet to form patties about 5 inches in diameter. When patties are set and brown, turn to other side. Serve warm with Hot Soy Sauce. Makes 8 patties — about 110 calories each.

HOT SOY SAUCE

Heat 2 cups of beef bouillon to boiling. Blend 2 tablespoons cornstarch, ¼ cup cold water and 2 tablespoons soy sauce. Stir gradually into bouillon. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and boils. Boil and stir 1 minute. (About 2½ cups sauce — 5 calories per tablespoon.)

Know stores and services

NEWARK — Have you ever thought about the many different types of stores at which you can shop? Each type of store has its advantages and disadvantages, points out Delaware extension family living agent Pat Wilson. Therefore, be sure to make a shopping list and determine the most appropriate stores for your purchases.

Here is a brief description of the various types of stores and what services they offer.

The Department Store sells a wide variety of goods and services. Some department stores sell hardware, housewares, and food. There is usually a wide selection of goods at different price levels. The department store offers a variety of customer services, has return privileges, and usually stays open late at least one day a week.

On the other hand, you may find that a department store is too large for you to find what you want easily. It may be too far from your home, and it may lack personal service.

The Specialty Store sells only one type of merchandise, such as children's wear, shoes, or furniture. Salespeople are likely to know more about their merchandise, to be better trained, and to give you personal attention when you shop. But since specialty shops sell only one type of merchandise, you will have to visit more stores when you shop. Such shops may also charge higher prices.

The Variety Store sells a variety of goods, usually in a lower price range. These are mostly self-service operations, which means you must find what you need yourself. Most of the goods are displayed on counters. The variety stores offers few customer services, and salespeople are often hard to find and do not have much information about the merchandise.

Md. safety awards presented

NEW WINDSOR, Md. — A total of 166 persons attended the sixth annual Maryland Agricultural Safety and Health Federation Banquet at New Windsor Fire Hall recently.

Highlighting the program was speaker Clair Young, Ohio State safety specialist.

In dicussing government safety regulation, Young said, "We have to learn to live with government regulations."

"Some are necessary some may go away. The bottom line is to exercise more leadership, to show more positive results, to hold onto the voluntary safety program to show that it works, so that, hopefully, we won't have to put up with more government regulations."

Young added, "I think the success of the voluntary safety program in the United States is dependent on groups like this one "

Kevin Smith, a 4-H member from Jefferson, discussed fire extinguishers. Entertainment was provided by George Bruchey and Mary Sue Grossnickle.

Awards were presented to Joe Hagerty, 4-H safety award, The Thurmont Grange, Clair Spring FFA, and the Howard County Farm Bureau Women's Committee.

Also honored were R. Franklin Burris, Kevin Smith and Rodman Myers, retiring President of MASHF.

Franklin R. Burriss, left, of Md. Dept. of Agriculture, is awarded plaque honoring service to safety committee by Larry Stewart, chairman, University of Maryland Dept. of Engineering.

4-H Sheep Club going strong

LANCASTER — The turnout for the second meeting of the Lancaster County 4-H Sheep Club which met recently at the Farm and Home Center here was as good as the attendance at the first meeting.

Dues for the club were were set at $2. Michelle Shuey reported on her trip to New Bolton recently.

Sarah Brubaker, club president, gave a demonstration on wool and wool products.

Saturday and Sunday, several members will attend the Maryland Wool Festival.

The next meeting will be held May 19 at the home of Jim Stauffer. Jim, a Suffolk breeder, lives on Weaver Road, west of Lancaster.

The program for the May meeting will be a demonstration by Barbara Herr on Shearing and Worming.

New members are welcomed by the club. For more information, call Clyde Brubaker at 717/898-8984.

1979 wool payments estimated at $34 million

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Sheep producers will receive about $34 million in federal incentive payments on their 1979 marketings of shorn wool compared with $34.8 million last year, according to Ray Fitzgerald, administrator of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

Fitzgerald said payments will be made soon through ASCS county offices.

Current legislation provides for a shorn wool support price of $1.15 per pound. The 1979 national average market price for shorn wool was 86.3 cents a pound, 28.7 cents under the support price.

Therefore, the payment rate for 1979 marketings of shorn wool — the amount required to bring the average price up to the incentive price — will be 33.3 percent, compared to 45.0 percent in 1978.

Fitzgerald said the wool program is intended to encourage a producer to improve the quality of wool. A grower's incentive payment is determined by multiplying the payment rate times the net dollar return received from the sale of wool.

Fitzgerald also said the payment rate will be $1.15 per hundredweight on unshorn lambs sold or slaughtered in 1979. This payment is to compensate growers for wool on live lambs they market. The payment is based on the shorn wool payment rate, the average weight of wool per hundredweight of lambs and the price of lamb's wool relative to the national average price for shorn wool.

Deductions of 2.5 cents a pound from 1979 shorn wool payments and 12.5 cents per hundred pounds of liveweight from 1979 lamb payments will be made to finance advertising, sales promotion and related market development activities. These deductions were approved by a 75.3 percent favorable vote by sheep producers voting in an August 1978 referendum.

No payments will be required on 1979 marketings of mohair as the average of $5.10 a pound received by growers was above the announced support level of $1.94 a pound.

Md. team finishes 4th in soil judging

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — A University of Maryland student team from College Park finished fourth in the 20th National Soil Judging Contest held April 18 in Centre County, Pa. One of the Maryland representatives was runnerup in the individual standings.

Team winner for the third consecutive year was Auburn, a land-grant university in Alabama. Penn State was the host school and not eligible to compete.

High scorer for the Maryland team was Ronald R. Baker, an agronomy junior from the North Point Village area of Dundalk in Baltimore County.

Other Maryland team members were Scott A. Hooper, White Oak, Montgomery County; Robert F. Long, New Carrollton, Prince George County; and Thomas A. Troeschel, Riverdale, Prince Georges county. All are agronomy seniors.

Coaching the Maryland team was Delvin S. Fanning, Berwyn Heights, a professor of soil science.

Delware Valley College, Doylestown, Pa., and the University of Maryland qualified as Northeast representatives in this year's 16-team field at the national collegiate soil judging contest. Both are past national winners--Delaware Valley in 1971 and Maryland in 1972. In additional, Maryland was second in the 1975 event.

Pennsylvania Holstein Association

PA federal quarantine facilities quietly deal with cattle exports

BY PAT KAUFFMAN

MIDDLETOWN — An inconspicuous painting of a Holstein cow along Route 441 marks the PA Holstein Breeders Association farm here. But the activities conducted here have reached into at least 36 countries.

Here in a large bank barn and in a big new facility built in 1978, the association operates a USDA approved quarantine station, preparing cattle for shipment to other countries.

According to William C. Nichol, executive secretary for the association, the group has been involved with exporting cattle since 1971. In the early days of the involvement, there were only two facilities the group could use. One was for shipment by boat and was located in Richmond, Virginia. The other was JFK airport in New York, for shipment by air. At JFK however, there were no holding facilities available.

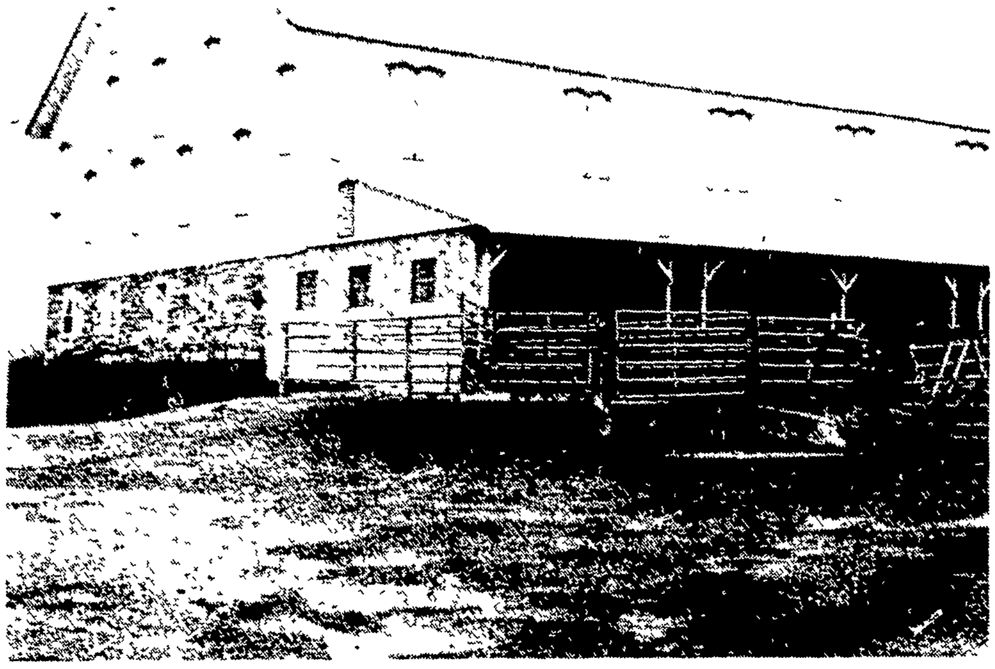
Since exporters require holding cattle in a quarantine situation prior to shipment, the group had for some time used the Farm Show Building in Harrisburg as their quarantine area.

But the cost of renting facilities prompted the group to search for a facility of its own. Since many of the shipments could be handled through the Harrisburg International Airport, the association was fortunate to find a facility says Nichol that is only 5 minutes and about 2 miles from the loading ramp they use at the airport.

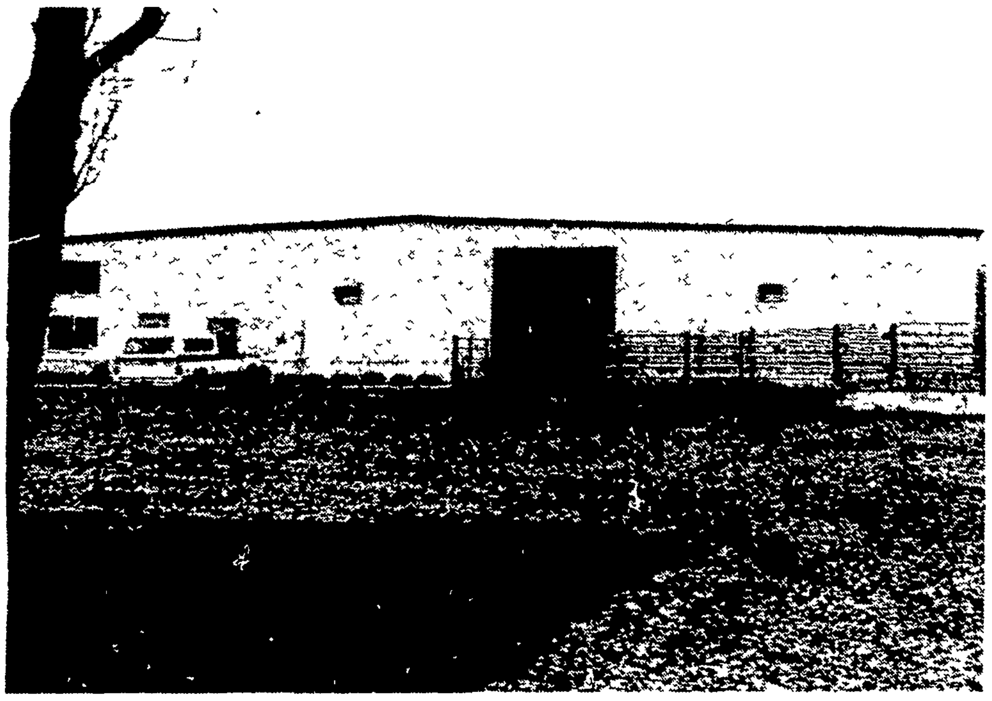
In addition, the location of the farm in a semi-isolated area sitting back off the road was a bonus

The association began by using the large bank barn on the facility. Extensive remodeling was necessary in the interior to meet rigid requirements set by the federal inspectors. The floor was lowered, and new support systems were installed. Concrete was poured over the entire floor area so that everything could be disinfected.

(Turn to Page C21)



This large bank barn on the farm near Middletown was converted to USDA quarantine regulations for use by the PA Holstein Breeders' Association.



In 1978, the association built this large modern facility to accomodate the need to process cattle from more than one country at a time. The cattle from each country must be quarantined separately from the cattle of other countries. Inside the facility are stanchions, offices, lavatories, and meeting rooms large enough to host shows and sales for both the state association and other groups.

Heifers destined for New Bolton and embryo transplants eat from concrete feed bunks in the old barn on the farm The heifers are purchased by the association and fed to proper weight for transplant. Approximately 35-40 heifers are supplied to New Bolton each month

Howard B. Weiss has the responsibility of caring for the cattle while at the facility. Visitors are warned to stay out of the quarantine facility by the signs, such as the one on the door to his left.

In 1975, stated Nichols, the association loaded 52 plane loads of cattle. This year, the association anticipates a decline in planes loaded. The energy crunch has greatly raised the cost of shipment.

In 1972 for instance, Nichol said the cost of renting a "DC8 stretch" aircraft would have been around $24,000. Today the cost is fluctuating in the $50-60,000 area.

Weight limits are imposed on the load. For instance, a 90,000 pound limit would involve approximately 90 head of bred heifers or 154 head of yearling Holsteins.

Who can afford to pay those rates? Nichol noted that most of their customers are individuals from countries such as Hungary, Italy, Spain and Japan. Occasionally the government of a country will purchase cattle. That is sometimes the case with Hungary.

Among those to whom the association has shipped cattle in recent years is Iran. Nichol noted that no cattle will be going to Iran this year. He stated the association's philosophy that" if a person makes a friend in another country he makes that friend for life." Nichol is puzzled by the current situation there.

He pointed out that foreign buyers are interested in only the top cattle to up-grade their herds. Many times the purchase price exceeds $2000 per animal, so while the shipping cost is high, on a full load of animals, the transportation would cost the buyer less than $1000 per animal.

He noted that the schedule connected with the exportation of these animals is a hectic one. Most airlines must be scheduled 60-90 days in advance. The animals themselves must be purchased and quarantined Each country has different regulations concerning the quarantine time. Some require only 10 days, others as much as 60. The buyer must provide a letter of credit from his bank, and if the time in shipment drags on too long, the letters of credit sometimes expire and must be renewed.

In addition to the out-of-country traffic, the group also handles some domestic shipments. In the domestic shipments, the buyer generally has requested a certain type of animal and quantity, and the facility is used as a holding area for assembling the cattle for inspection by the buyer

The association charges the exporter on a per head per day basis. Generally the charges range between $2-4 per day. Although there are many factors which influence that price Since a thorough disinfecting is required after each group of cattle leaves, the cost is higher when the cattle are there for short periods of time. Federal inspectors must be present during the tedious cleaning procedure.

The facility Nichols noted is the most used quarantine facility in the Eastern United States.

Howard B. Weiss has served the association as farm superintendent since they purchased the facility. Weiss noted that in addition to handling Holstein cattle, they have also handled other breeds of cattle, horses, hogs, sheep, and goats.

Hogs, Weiss noted, are generally only held in the facility for a few days. "Hogs don't stand stress well," he stated.

Weiss also called attention to the fact that animals from different countries may never be housed in the same facility. That can at times cause difficulty in scheduling.

In addition to the export activities, the farm supplies 35-40 recipient heifers to New Bolton for embryo transplant each month. These heifers are housed in the older barn until they reach the proper weight for transplant.

Weiss noted that the Middletown facility is only used for export quarantine All cattle imported to this country must go through federal quarantine facilities in New York and New Jersey.

While the association grows some of the hay used for the cattle on the farm, the remaining acreage is leased to a local farmer. Weiss said that the animals are all put on the farm feeding system No special stress preventative system is adhered to.

He commented that the

CASE UNI-LOADERS

THEY PAY THEIR WAY AND THEN SOME, ESPECIALLY WITH FACTORY REBATES

· IT MAKES case AN EVEN BETTER BUY

If you're in any kind of a livestock business, you could profitably use a Case Uni-Loader. For bulk feed and animal waste handling a Case skid-steer loader is hard to beat. You climb aboard, steer and maneuver the bucket with two hand levers. There's no tiring leg or footwork. You'll think of literally dozens of uses for it and wonder how you ever got along without one.

Hydrostatic 1816B — Rated lift capacity 700 lbs. (318 kg). Features transistorized ignition system ... an air-cooled 16 hp (11 kW) engine. Transmission release for easier winter starting. Only 35 inches (89 cm) wide, 76-½ inches (194 cm) high for close quarter maneuvering and passage through low or narrow doors.

Hydrostatic 1830 — Rated lift capacity, 1200 lbs. (544 kg). Two hand levers control power, speed, direction and loader operation. Features a 32 hp (23 kW), water-cooled engine ... 5 main bearings, replaceable wet sleeves. Separate oil reservoirs for hydraulic system and final drive, special filter to protect from contamination. Just 54 inches (137 cm) wide.

Hydrostatic 1845 — Features dual hydrostatic drive systems ... two pumps, two drive motors for independent speed and direction control for each side. ROPS canopy and seat belt. Three separate oil systems, two 10-micron filters for protection from contaminents. Big 45 hp (34 kW) Case-built water-cooled diesel or gasoline engines (choice). Lifts 1700 lbs. (771 kg). Automatic load-leveling. King of the skid-steer world.

cattle travel so quickly, that the stress involved is much less than that on human travelers. He noted however, that on young animals they sometimes give a shot of an antibiotic prior to shipment.

He also noted that many people are unfamiliar with the stringent standards placed on exported cattle No cattle may be shipped, he said, that are blind, or that have ringworm or warts.

Because the weight requirements are exacting, Weiss said they sometimes withhold feed for the last 12 hours. This he noted slows the intake of water and in a bred heifer can mean a weight loss of 12-15 pounds per animal This loss multiplied by 90 animals can make a substantial difference to the airline

In addition to the high cost of fuel slowing exports, the countries themselves have heaped regulations on potential exporters to help in their [illegible]. Nichol noted that Italy once was easy to work with on potential imports, but now has added more stringent requirements both to slow the loss of funds from the country's economy and to balance out the surplus of milk it is experiencing

Nichol noted that shipment by the HESS plan, Holidays, Evenings, Saturdays and Sundays, means additional headaches for the association

Nichol explained that the quarantine facility enables them to control the cost of their cattle shipped to other countries. In addition to providing a needed service, it is a tax-paying corporation. The facilities can be depreciated, making the purchase of the farm a sound investment.

In addition, he noted that the association felt there was a great advantage in loading in the state. In addition to the proximity, it means that the money is spent within our own state for fuel, airport charges, crew and landing fees.

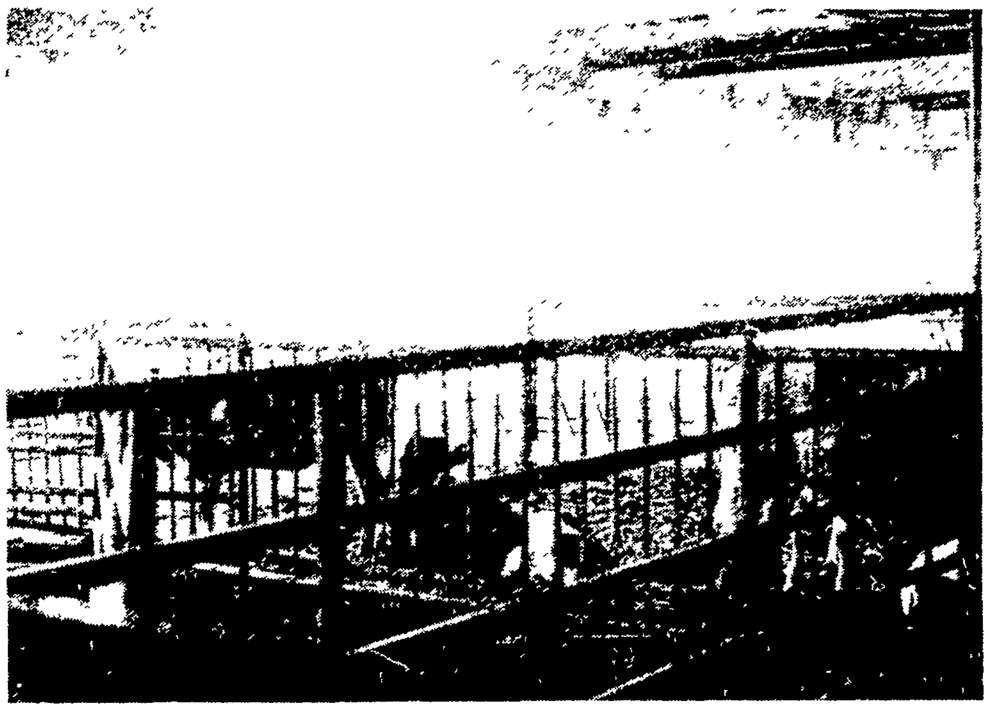
While nearly all of the Common Market countries are increasing regulations on importation of cattle, Nichol looks to China with hopes that they may have funds in the future to import Holstein cattle.

"The association," he said, " feels that there's nothing like trade to create a favorable economic environment." He said while some folks feel high quality cattle sold may create a problem of cheap dairy products being imported by the United States in the future thus creating a balance of payments problem, the association feels that potential problems can be handled by the United States Government with tariffs and regulations, and that now, a better diet is needed by the people in other countries.

"The association feels," he said, " that more avenues of marketing will develop down the road as a result of our overseas sales. It's one thing to send money, but entirely another to send livestock and knowledge to the developing countries." He also noted that the knowledge to develop the cattle is provided by land-grant universities.

While the facility already operates at about 75 percent of capacity, Nichol noted that it can be used by members who need temporary housing for a herd prior to auction, as well as for special auctions and shows."Our operation as a USDA approved export facility comes first," he emphasized.

Meanwhile drivers on Route 441 pass the Holstein breeders' sign enroute to more humdrum affairs.



The interior of the old barn has been removed and replaced with surfaces better suited to disinfecting requirements. Concrete floors and feed bunks and metal gates fill the entire lower part of the barn.

Buckin' at the Buck: volunteers needed

BUCK — It's not too late for local rodeo hopefuls to reserve themselves a seat on the back of a Brahma bull.

Local rodeo fans who wish to try their luck can enter the May 10 Professional Championship Rodeo scheduled for the Buck Tractor Pull Stadium.

They will join over 100 expected bareback bronc riders, steer wrestlers, saddle bronc riders, calf ropers, team steer ropers, and cowgirl's barrel race contestants who hold professional rodeo cards.

Local entries within a 25 mile radius of the rodeo are allowed to enter any event without having a pro card.

Entries will be taken over the phone at 717/334-8734 between the hours of 10 a.m. and 6 p.m. on May 5.

Dave Martin, promotor of Keystone Rodeo Co., Inc., said that such entrants should have their own paid up hospitalization insurance and life insurance.

Local fans will recognize names of several professional participants, including Dick McCoy of the Lancaster Stockyards, who will compete in the steer roping.

Mike Rhineer and family, Willow Street, will compete in the steer roping and barrel racing events.

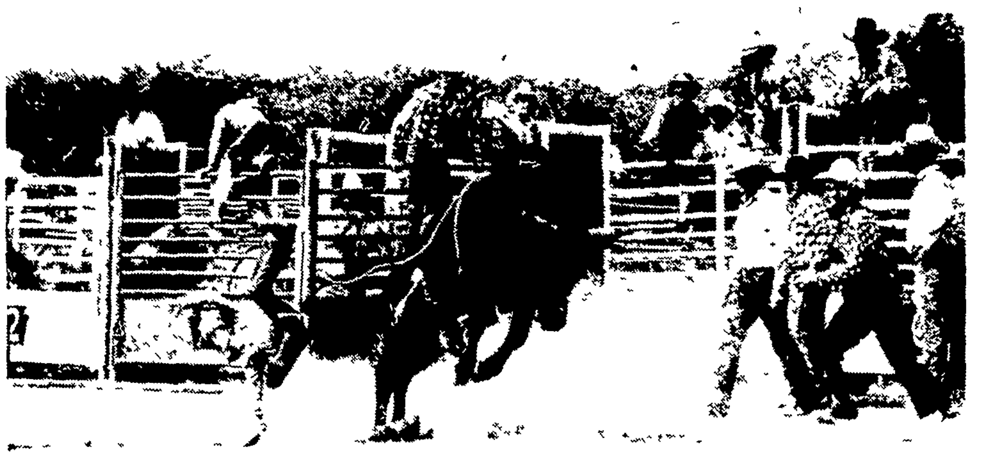
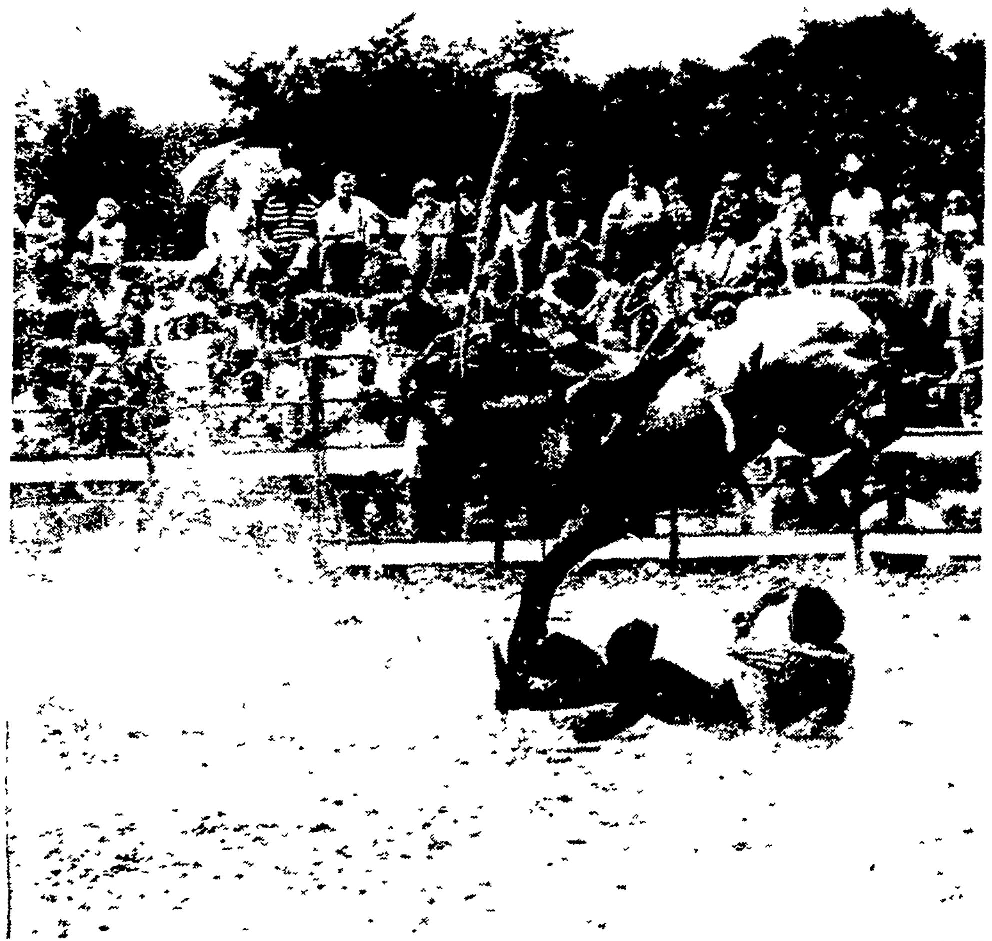
(Turn to Page C25)



Brahma bull rider Jim Coldwell, Pine Creek, Idaho, bucks off Sambo in another rodeo event.



Jess Brooks, saddle bronc rider, looks up where he used to be—on the back of Squaw Lady, who doesn't take kindly to riders.

NOTICE OF RATE FILING

Dear Customer,

Take notice that the undersigned is filing with Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission Supplement No. 73 to Tariff Electric Pa. P.U.C. No. 198 increasing your bills for service effective June 28, 1980. The total increase of approximately $123 million is approximately 16% of the Company's annual base rate revenues, but the increase in your bill may vary slightly or substantially from this percentage, depending on use or applicable rate schedules. The annual cost of service to the average residential user would increase from $374 to $428, or by 14.8 cents per day. Upon request, the Company will inform you of the effect upon your bills. You may examine a copy of the material filed with the Public Utility Commission explaining the proposed increase and its justification at any of the following locations of the Company's offices: Two North Ninth Street, Allentown; Routes 309 and 22, RD *2, Allentown; 344 South Poplar Street, Hazleton; 1801 Brookwood Street, Harrisburg; 1701 Manheim Pike, Lancaster; 600 Larch Street, Scranton; and Route 220 East, Montoursville.

The proposed rate increase is subject to examination by the Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission which may suspend its effectiveness or institute a formal investigation thereof, or both, if it deems it appropriate.

Forms for the filing of a formal complaint may be obtained by you upon request to Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission, Harrisburg, Pennsylvania 17120 The timely filing of a formal complaint entitles you to a hearing at which you may present testimony and question Company witnesses, and places on the Company the burden of proving that the proposed rates are reasonable.

Mulches work for your garden

LANCASTER — The use of mulches in your flower or vegetable garden may be your most valuable tool for quality crops and flowers this year, says Paul Petrichenko, USDA Soil Conservationist. The use of mulches helps reduce soil erosion, increases moisture holding capacity of the soil and adds needed organic matter.

Grass clippings and straw make excellent mulches. "Spread the mulch around the plants on the soil surface. Be sure not to cover the plant's leaves. And keep the mulch deep enough to do the job," says Petrichenko, "about 3 to 6 inches."

Mulches help to reduce soil erosion by acting as a buffer between hard-hitting raindrops and loose soil. They help to reduce moisture loss by protecting the soil from the drying effects of sun and wind. Grass clippings are especially useful in adding organic matter to the soil. The clippings provide food for earth worms which are valuable in aerating the soil.

"Another gardening advantage is that weeds don't grow very fast under cover of the mulch so less time must be spent on weeding", says Petrinchenko. At the end of a growing season, the remaining mulch can be worked into the soil to supply organic matter the following year.

Researcher rates two best crabgrass herbicides

LANCASTER — The area's largest farm cooperative has rated two preplant incorporated herbicides as the "most consistent" treatments available for controlling smooth crabgrass in corn.

"A 3-pound active rate of Sutan+ does the best job controlling crabgrass in corn," says George Bayer, Agway senior week scientist. "However, if other tough weeds such as quackgrass are in the field, a farmer might be better off using Eradicane."

Bayer bases his conclusion about crabgrass control on data collected between 1977 and 1979 while conducting a routine, three-year screening of preplant, preemergence and early postemergence herbicides for field corn. He tested over 40 different herbicide treatments, each time varying the herbicide, combination and application rate.

"It wasn't an exclusive crabgrass control study," Bayer says, "but crabgrass was the predominant weed species in the field."

Preemergence herbicides included in the Agway screening were atrazine, Bladex, Dual, Lasso and Prowl. Sutan+ and Eradicane were the only preplant incorporated treatments.

One factor affecting the various levels of crabgrass control in the study was the weather, Bayer says. Surface-applied preemergence treatments generally require one-half to one inch of rain withing a week of application to be effective. Incorporated herbicides usually do not require rainfall for activation.

"When the herbicide is incorporated," Bayer adds, "you're not at the mercy of the weather. You can depend on getting good weed control."

At the other extreme, Bayer says, a heavy rain can sometimes leach herbicides below the weed germinating zone. Most annual weeds germinate in the top one to three inches of soil.

In the Agway trials, corn was planted each year between May 15 and 19. Preplant incorporated treatments were applied the day prior to, or the day of, planting. Preemergence herbicides were sprayed the day of, or the day after, planting.

Early postemergence herbicides were applied when corn was in the two- to four-leaf stage and smooth crabgrass was in the one- to three-leaf stage. Rainfall during the two-week period after planting totaled 0.74 inch in 1977, 0.22 inch in 1978, and 3.19 inches in 1979.

Bayer says due to the erractic rainfall over the three-year period, the preplant incorporated treatments of Sutan+ and Eradicane were the most consistent.

"The preemergence herbicides did a pretty good job controlling crabgrass in 1979 when there was adequate rainfall," Bayer says, "but dry weather in 1978 reduced their effectiveness. Atrazine wasn't effective on crabgrass in any of these trials," he adds.

According to Bayer, certain preemergence treatments would be more effective if incorporated to a shallow depth if a dry period is expected after planting.

Regardless of the weather, early postemergence applications of Blandex and Prowl control crabgrass effectively.

Smooth crabgrass and its related species, large crabgrass, are two of the most serious grass weeds in corn and alfalfa, Bayer says. "The build-up of these weeds seems to be related to escapes in corn fields and omission of a grass herbicide in new legume seedings," he says.

Smooth crabgrass, a summer annual, is a rigorous crop competitor. Due to its sprawling nature, two to four plants per square yard can give complete ground cover. Since crabgrass is also a prolific seeder, populations can easily build up.

"Better than average control is a necessity," Bayer says.

Women's spring fashions reflect energy conservation trend

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Women's fashions for spring and summer are rebounding from the restrictive retro look of the 1950s which was being ballyhooed a year ago, noted Eleanor Young, Extension clothing specialist at the University of Maryland.

The general design philosophy for 1980 appears to reflect energy conservation for budget-conscious consumers, Young noted. Meanwhile, the dual trend toward both the tailored look and femininity continues unabated in a wide range of choices.

Manufacturers are helping to hold down costs with elasticized waistbands and large necklines, which have all but eliminated zippers on many items of women's clothing. Raised hemlines and short sleeves also reduce costs by permitting more garments to be cut from a bolt of cloth.

This latter trend fits in with the need for indoor comfort when air-conditioning is being stifled in line with energy conservation programs.

"The more-tailored look for 1980 implies greater fashion longevity," Young pointed out. "This permits ensemble dressing, which allows one new outfit to last for several years, assuming its components will mix and match well with other clothing items in your possession.

"In this way, the quintessential wardrobe can easily achieve that total look for an individual which is greater than the sum of its parts."

A high-contrast black and white look with bold assymetric blocks has gained favor for both daytime and evening wear this spring, she reports, while "color-slicing" is now a big part of the sportswear scene This latter look features bright bands of color on a neutral background — primarily white or off-white. Dress designs in both categories often come in geometric patterns.

This year's feminine look for evening wear and other formal occasions features dresses made from crepe or pongee. The latter fabric comes in lightweight silk or silk-like synthetic fibers woven with uneven threads.

Soft lace collars, ruffles and bows help to enhance the feminine look. They're often made from lacy looking fabrics that give the appearance of being hand-crocheted items. Purple tones - including amethyst — are favorite colors in the feminine fashion realm this spring. Shoe heels for dressy wear are continuing to be high and narrow.

For active sports wear, a lot of stretch terrycloth is being shown in the stores, Young noted. It is being featured in vibrant shades encompassing almost every color in the rainbow. These are paired with casual shoes, including penny loafers and lace oxfords, reminiscent of the late 1950s.

Heart of Penn Goat Club to meet Saturday

DORNSIFE — The Heart of Penn Dairy Goat Breeders' Co-op will meet Saturday at Dave and Linda Miller's Priority Hill Farm, near Hilfenstein

Topics to be covered include: milk marketing news and fun show progress.

The program for the meeting will be on hoof trimming and grooming for summer comfort or show-ring style.

Visitors are welcome. Refreshments will be served. For further information call 717/758-8359 or 717/648-0023.

Red Lion Grange honors long time members

RED LION — An Open House meeting was held when Red Lion Grange 1781 met last Saturday.

The Grange Charter was draped during the first part of the evening, in memory of Ruth Hengst who passed away that day. Mrs. Hengst had been a member of Red Lion Grange since 1963.

H. Carl Deibert, Secretary of Pa. State Grange, was guest speaker. Preceeding his speech, the Master, Lee Burns, and Mr. Deibert presented Mrs. Linnie Stein her Golden Sheaf Award, and Fifty Year Pin. Mrs. Stein joined Red Lion Grange in April 1930. Also, Silver Star Certificates were presented to Mr. and Mrs. Dean Tyson. Mrs. Pearl Wright, a resident of Barrows Home for Women, also received her Silver Star Certificate. All four persons received a potted plant.

Special music was provided by Edgar Mundis, who played a wide selection of familiar hymns, and old favorites.

Door prizes were won by Beryl Emenheiser and Barbara Stein. Program was in charge of Gladys Sheffer.

Visitation Night for York-Adams Pomona will be held at Red Lion Grange when they meet at regular time and date on May 3, 1980. Time set for all Grange meetings beginning in May is 8 p.m.

Fawn Grove Grange will present program, and evening is open to public.

The May session of York-Adams Pomona Grange will be held in the U.M. Church in Biglerville, just North of square on Route 34, on May 10, beginning at 2:30 p.m.

During the beginning of afternoon lecturer's program, Memorial services will be held for all deceased members of the Pomona who died since May 1979. A part of the evening program will have Mr. Charles Kingston as guest speaker. He is personnel director at Musselman Fruit Products in Biglerville.

Delaware family keeps cheesemaking tradition alive

BY DORIS HENRIQUE
Delaware Extension Service

NEWARK, Del. — If you like Italian food and you eat in Delaware, you're probably already a fan of Fierro's, whether you know it or not. This Wilmington-based family business has been supplying Delawareans with quality ricotta and mozzarella cheeses since 1928. Today, their products are available in specialty stores and supermarkets throughout much of the mid-Atlantic region. You'll also find their cheeses inside the creamy lasagnas and other dishes served in many area restaurants, as well as on top of lots of local pizza.

Fans of M. Fierro and Sons, Inc., say this little company produces some of the best ricotta and mozzarella you're likely to find anywhere on the East Coast. The Fierro's think so, too.

"Our cheese is tops, says Mike Fierro, carefully dipping into a vat of mozzarella curd just approaching the "harping" stage. "This is because we still give it the kind of special attention it takes to produce good old-fashioned flavor and texture."

He ought to know. Grandson and namesake of the company's founder, he's the guy who supervises daily production of mozzarella in their small plant at the junction of 11th and Union streets. He says there's a fine art to quality cheesemaking. Partly this depends on using quality ingredients But careful control of each stage of the process counts, too. And each cheesemaker has his own special techniques to ensure success. These, of course, are a carefully guarded trade secret

Fierro's is one of the last of Delaware's milk processors. These are a vanishing breed, according to Delaware extension dairy specialist George Haenlein. You used to be able to find milk-processing plants all over the state—some making cheese, others pasteurizing and bottling milk. Only a handful are still in business. Over the past 40 years most of these operations have disappeared under the pressures of changing technology, rising production costs, changed marketing, and changed employment patterns.

Like many other processors, Fierro's started out to serve a local clientele—in their case, Wilmington's Italian community. Even today, the company has a few walk-in customers who prefer to buy cheese directly from the plant office.

Until the 1940's cheesemaking was only a part-time business for the Fierro's. Before they started full-time production, they were turning out about 300 pounds a week. Within a few years they were selling cheeses not only in Wilmington, but down around Baltimore and Washington, as well.

Their latest addition is a huge milk silo with an 86,000-pound capacity—enough to make about 12,000 pounds of cheese.

The lab is Mike Fierro's pride and joy. It contains a microscope, a centrifuge, and other equipment needed to test milk quality, as well as to monitor the cheese as it's being made. The Fierro's boast that they make an all-natural product, containing nothing but pure milk, salt and starter. The kind of starter used determines the kind of cheese you end up with.

Mike says it's essential for the small dairy manufacturer, as well as for larger processors, to test milk routinely for freshness plus the percent of solids and butterfat in it, because these factors affect the quality of the finished product.

In making mozzarella you start with milk—either whole or partly skim—add rennet and heat it. As the starter grows, the milk curdles just like yogurt. When it reaches the proper consistency, the semi-liquid mass is cut into thousands of tiny rectangles with curd knives or harps—huge metal frames holding tautly stretched wires. These are dragged slowly the length of the vat, then back and forth across it.

Next, the developing cheese is cooked under agitation until it reaches the proper level of acidity as determined by lab analysis. By this time the curd and whey have separated. The whey is drained off. What remains is cheese. This is cheddared to remove any lingering whey. To do this the cheese is cut into large blocks which are turned and stacked at the bottom of the vat. The mozzarella is then molded and cut into 8-ounce, 1-pound, and 5-pound blocks. From there it goes into a salt brine for curing. Finally, it's drained, wrapped, and packed.

Ricotta—Vincent Fierro's specialty—is a soft cheese which gets quite a different treatment. Both cheesemaking operations start about 3:30 a.m. By 2:30 p.m. the day's work is done.

Mike seems to enjoy the wet, cheesy bustle of the plant. He's the one responsible for bringing his cousin, Al junior, into the business four years ago. But the thought of spending his days elbow-deep in whey holds no appeal for Al. He thrives, instead, on the challenge of marketing the finished product. A former architectural student, he designed the distinctive red and blue labels with the black Fierro logo they use now. He handles distribution throughout the Philadelphia area and currently is working to expand the company's New Jersey outlets.

The cousins also have their own little enterprise on the side. Each summer at Wilmington's Italian festival of St. Anthony they make and sell a delicious deep-fried pastry made of dough filled with mozzarella and pizza sauce. They market some of this through a local pizza parlor, too. Mike is also looking into production of string cheese—a form of mozzarella that's become quite popular in some parts of the country as a party snack.

Eager to stay abreast of the latest developments in this highly specialized industry, the counsins traveled to Milan, Italy, two years ago to attend an international cheese seminar. They also attended a national fluid milk processing short course at Penn State a couple of years ago.

Extension dairy specialist Haenlein says he wishes there were more firms like Fierro's still in operation around Delaware. Except for them, a company that makes cottage cheese, and a couple of Mennonite cheesemakers in the Dover area, there's not much dairy processing being done in the state anymore.

If there were, he thinks local dairy farmers might have a chance to broaden their base of income. Right now virtually all the milk produced in Delaware is sold in bulk to regional marketing cooperatives. Shipped out of state, it's processed, bottled or packaged, and then shipped back for retail sale. Under this system, much of the profit goes to non-resident interests. With more local processing, more milk generated money might remain in the state.

Thonet and York Historical Society slate exhibit

YORK — Thonet has been making furniture on two continents for almost two centuries. During this time, Thonet grew from a small craftsman shop to an international company that brought furniture production into the modern industrial world.

Many of the chairs produced by Thonet have become furniture classics. To commemorate this distinguished design history, Thonet Industries, Inc., 491 East Princess Street, York, and the Historical Society of York County, will co-sponsor an exhibition of furniture designs and archival photographs.

The exhibition dates are now through May 27, at the Historical Society, 250 East Market Street, York.

Brief answers to short questions

Sheila's Shorts

By Sheila Miller

Windy Story

A short while ago, I received a telephone call from George Young, of Sicklerville, New Jersey. His request was for some more information on an article he had seen in Lancaster Farming on windmills for energy.

Since this story ran pre-Sheila, I told Mr. Young that I could not promise him I could find the article. But, I was familiar with the company he was referring to.

I managed to get through the busy-signals that buzzed in the telephone receiver, and was over-joyed to finally hear the call going through to Mehrkam Energy Development Co., located near Hamburg.

I told the secretary that I wanted the address of the company for a reader. She explained that any information on the windmills could be gotten by writing Terrance A. Mehrkam, the sole owner and operator of the company Or, she said, the reader could call if the information was needed quickly.

The address for Mehrkam Energy Development Co. is R.D. 2 Box 179-E, Hamburg, PA 19526. Their telephone number is 215/562-8856.

The windmill company has been in existence about 5 years, and their manufactured products consist of solely windmills for the production of energy at this time.

What's FCSA

Just for your information, I thought you might be interested in unraveling another bureaucratic abbreviation.

This one is FCSA—which stands for the Farmer-Consumer Services Association.

FCSA, according to the PDA, the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, and PSU, the Pennsylvania State University, is a non-profit direct marketing association made up of Pa. farmers for the promotion of farmer to consumer marketing.

This association's purpose is to provide an additional market for farmers produce, to provide fresh, quality produce to the consumer market, and to provide an opportunity to increase return on the growers product.

How is this accomplished? Well, FCSA has a board of seven commercial growers. The association's director and manager contacts both growers and buyers to promote Pa. grown products.

For their services, the association tacks on a 5 percent commission, and sends out the bills.

Any Pa. farmer is eligible to belong to the club. There is one catch though—all the produce marketed through the association has to be grown by the farmer, and it must be of top-notch quality.

The club dues comes to $5—paid once only.

Quilt auction planned

CHAMBERSBURG — Fifteen quilts will be auctioned off at 2 p.m. at the Shalom Christian Academy sale on Saturday, May 10. The quilts were made by women affiliated with the school, including mothers and grandmothers of Shalom students.

Log Cabin, Dresden Plate, Shoo-Fly, Dahlia and Poppy are some of the patterns represented. A highlight of the quilt auction will be the three quits that some of the elementary students had a hand in making. The first graders made drawings of their favorite things which were transferred to the quilt blocks and stitched by an adult The embroidery work on two quilts was done by the second grade class One of the quilts depicts Old Testament characters, while the other shows scenes from the life of Jesus.

Most of the quilts have been in the making throughout the school year. The quilting committee of 20 to 25 women have been meeting three times a week during April in order to have all the quilts completed by the sale date. The committee will be giving a quilting demonstration the day of the sale, featuring an appliqued Heavenly Rose quilt.

DOUBLE YOUR BROOD-GROW CAPACITY WHILE REDUCING LABOR AND EQUIPMENT INVESTMENT.

ANNOUNCING A NEW NORTHCO® BROOD-GROW CAGE SYSTEM.

The Northco Double Deck Brood-Grow Cage System from A R Wood puts new profit potential in your brood-grow operation. By stacking two cages on top of one another and using a single auger line to supply an upper and lower Master Pan Feeder, we've designed a system that does it all.

Doubles Bird Capacity In new or existing buildings, our new system can double your brood-grow capacity.

Lowers Building Cost Our new system substantially reduces building cost per bird.

Reduces Labor You only handle the birds twice. Once to put them in, once to take them out Energy Savings Compared to single deck or floor birds, energy usage per bird is substantially reduced.

Performance Our new system has been tested in our growing house and by independent producers. The results are clear: exposure to droppings does NOT affect the uniformity or later egg production of birds in the lower deck.

These Blue Ridge FFA members were recently honored for their outstanding achievements. They are from left: Gerald J. Reichard, Jesse Reichard, Douglas Fahrney, 1980 Keystone Farmer Degrees; Charles Mellott, Waynesboro Area Young Farmers Association Award; and Robert Shank, 1980 Keystone Farmer Degree. Jessee Reichard was also honored as South Central Regional Star Farmer and York Production Credit award winner.

Blue Ridge FFAers honor outstanding members

BY RUTH ANN BENEDICT
Staff Correspondent

WAYNESBORO — Outstanding. FFA members were recognized at the Annual Blue Ridge FFA Banquet held at the Waynesboro Area Senior High School last Tuesday.

Jeffrey Kerr, State FFA Sentinel, in a brief speech urged the some 200 members, parents, advisors, and special guests in attendance not to "shake the ladder of success."

"The ladder of success is the hard work in achieving that goal. Obtaining our goal may be a hard and difficult job" said Kerr.

"To climb the ladder of success we must take the first rung.

"Trophies and plaques should play no part. They tarnish and fade. If we achieve one rung we can tackle the rest of the ladder one step at a time.

"Persistance keeps us climbing. As we climb the ladder of success cooperation with others keeps us together.

"Through the desire to achieve confidence, persistance and cooperation are obtained — we have achieved the ladder of success.

"Don't shake the ladder" Kerr stressed in closing.

Also addressing the group briefly was David Harman, Maryland FFA Association and Curtis Meyers, County FFA President.

Gerald J. Reichard, a senior at Waynesboro Area High School, was presented the DeKalb Award.

The DeKalb Award is the highest degree of proficiency in production agriculture presented to a senior who excells in scholarship, leadership and the supervised agricultural program.

According to FFA advisors Paul G. Benchoff and Glenn M. Herrold this year's selection of the award was very close as the Blue Ridge Chapter had many outstanding seniors.

1980 Keystone Farmer Degree recipients were recognized as Jesse Reichard, Gerald J. Reichard, Douglas Fahrney and Robert Shank.

Jesse Reichard was recognized as being named South Central Regional Star Farmers and he also received the York Production Credit Award for the best record keeping in Franklin County.

Robert Shank was named Star Agribusinessman while Star Chapter Farmer honors went to Dwight Stull and Star Greenhand honors went to Jeffrey D. Benedict.

The Waynesboro Area Young Farmers Association Award was presented to Charles Mellott.

Chapter Honorary Degrees were presented to George Gottshall, Waynesboro Senior High athletic director and Frank Beckner representing B - Equip. of Five Forks. These men were recognized for their outstanding assistance to the chapter.

FFA foundation awards in specialized areas were presented by the chapter advisors to:

Brad Mowen, agricultural electrification; Harold Fitz, agricultural mechanics; Charles Mellott, agricultural sales and service; Connie Stull, beef production; Jesse Reichard, crop production; Douglas Fahrney, dairy production; Dwight Stull, diversified livestock production; Daniel Freeman, fish and wildlife management; Robert Shank, floriculture; Burtis Misner, forest management; Gene Helman, fruit and/or vegetable production; Gerald J. Reichard, home

The semi-mounted 598 Plow builds its strength from the standard 8x8-inch box beam backbone. A 32½-inch clearance at the backbone, plus the 38-inch rake, takes you through heavy trash with less worry of plugging.

There's probably no one job that a farmer takes more pride in doing than plowing It's as basic to farming as you can get Almost as basic is the White® Plow, which dates back to the mid-1800's when James Oliver perfected the first chilled plow And today at White, we're the first full line manufacturer to bring you a true adjustable width plow the White 598

The 598 lets you adjust your width of cut infinitely from 14 to 22 inches and choose from four to seven bottoms So if you have extremely tough plowing conditions, or if you're caught short on tractor horsepower, the 598 lets you keep on plowing

Nat'l Junior Angus Show deadlines coming up

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. — Young Angus breeders across the country are gearing up for some of the keenest competition in the nation at the National Junior Angus Heifer Show slated for July 21-22 at Wichita, Kansas, reports Jerry Lipsey, director of Junior activities for the American Angus Association.

Youths planning to exhibit heifers should take note of ownership deadlines, Lipsey added. Each entry must be recorded solely in the exhibitor's name by May 1, except bred-and-owned heifers which must be registered no later than June 1. All transfers must be received by the Association by May 1, and the deadline for show entries is June 1.

The heifers will be shown in two divisions. Bred and owned heifers will show first, and heifers owned by the exhibitor will follow. Exhibitors may show two heifers in the owned division, and as many bred and owned entries as they wish.

This year, the Kansas Junior Angus Association will sponsor cow-calf classes, a new addition to the show. Cows must be bred and owned, enrolled in the Angus Herd Improvement Records program, halter-broken and exhibited with their most recent calf. Entries will be judged on quality of the pair and accuracy and detail of performance data on both.

The cow-calf competition will be divided into four classes, first-calf heifers and mature cows, with spring and fall calves at side. The Kansas Junior Angus Association will provide $100, $50, $40, $30 and $20 premium money for five places in the cow-calf classes. Facilities for unhaltered stalling of the pairs in a convenient location will be provided.

Exhibitors must be junior or life members of the American Angus Association and at least 9 years old but not more than 21 years old by January 1, 1980.

Along with the heifer show, the national showmanship competition will be featured and the National Junior Angus Association will be organized at a meeting of state delegates. This four-day event is sponsored by the Kansas Junior Angus Association, Kansas Angus Association and American Angus Association.

U. of Maryland holds Wye bull sale

COLLEGE PARK — Known as a tough man to please, Gordon M. Cairns was wearing a broad smile on his face shortly after the final bull was sold at the April 19 auction of performance-tested bulls from the famous Wye Angus herd.

The bustling, 2-hour, 15-minute sale was held at the historic Wye Plantation, Queen Anne's County, Md

"We're happy with the way things went," said Cairns, supervisor of the Wye Angus program for the University of Maryland and dean emeritus of the College of Agriculture at the university's College Park campus. "Under the market circumstances, we came through in good shape."

By market circumstances Cairns meant the overall slowdown in the cattle industry brought about, in part, by high interest rates.

Feeder calf prices have been cut by 30 percent in the last month, he said, "and that has an impact upon people's thinking so they do not want to spend the money."

Top calves at the auction did exceedingly well. All told, the 48 bulls offered at the auction sold of a total of $125,725, an average of $2,619 per head.

Top price went for Florey of Wye, which sold for $15,000 to Greenbrier Farm of Carlisle, Kentucky. Sired by Lucan of Wye, Florey had an adjusted 365-weight of 1,196 pounds.

Another Lucan son, Buchan of Wye, sold for $10,000 to Blaine and Theron Horrocks of Neola, Utah. Sons of four other Wye sires sold for $5,000 or more in the sale.

This was the second sale of Wye Angus bulls since 1978, when the herd was donated to the university of Arthur A. Houghton, Jr., owner of the Wye Plantation and a respected cattle breeder. The first sale was held last year.

The herd, which now numbers about 400 bulls, was begun in 1938 with 18 heifers and a bull calf on the 1,400-acre plantation, located on the bay side of Maryland's Eastern Shore.

Superior performance and weight gain are characteristic of Wye Angus bulls and have made them extremely attractive to cattle buyers, noted Ronald Nelson, head of the Department of Animals Husbandry at Michigan State University and chairman of the Wye Angus Herd Advisory Panel.

Made up of research leaders, cattle breeders, association representatives and commercial interests, the panel serves in an advisory capacity to the director of the Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station on potential research studies that will advance the knowledge of beef cattle production and performance.

"Angus cattle are known for being a good mother breed," Nelson said. "They're good milk cows, they're good mothers, they're highly fertile and are very good in crossbreeding programs to bring in the mothering side."

In all, buyers came to the sale from 16 states and Ontario, Canada.

USDA announces DES regulations

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Carol Tucker Foreman said regulations have been published that spell out what cattle feeders suspected of violating the ban on diethylatilbestrol must do before they can market their cattle for human food.

The regulations follow an announcement by USDA and the Food and Drug Administration April 4 that an FDA investigation had revealed widespread disregard for FDA's November 1 ban on DES.

As of April 17, Foreman said, FDA had identified 140 feedlots which may have illegally implanted DES pellets in cattle as a growth promotant.

"USDA will require sworn statements from cattle feeders suspected of violating the DES ban," Foreman said. "Feeders can market the muscle tissue from their cattle 41 days after a USDA accredited veterinarian certifies the DES implant has been surgically removed."

If the livers and kidneys are to be sold for food, the animal must be held for 61 days after the implant is removed, Foreman said, since those organs retain residues of the drug longer than muscle tissue.

Once FDA suspects a feeder has violated the ban, that agency notifies USDA's Food Safety and Quality Service, the agency responsible for ensuring the safety of the meat and poultry supply.

To assure that slaughtered cattle are free from DES, Foreman said, FSQS is reinstituting its national sampling program in which randomly selected tissues are tested for DES. The agency suspended the program in January to focus its resources on the serious contamination of food products with polychlorinated byphenyls in the Western United States.

"Anyone violating these requirements may face severe legal penalties," Foreman said.

The policy was published in the April 22 Federal Register, available in local libraries. The rules were published without opportunity for public comment because of the need for prompt action to prevent adulterated meat from entering food channels.

Tentative opening dates set

HARRISBURG — Tentative opening dates for 1981 hunting seasons have been established by the Pennsylvania Game Commission for the convenience of those who wish to plan ahead.

The archery deer season in 1981 is tentatively scheduled to open on Saturday, October 3.

The tentative opening date for the early small game season is Saturday, October 17, and the general small game season tentative opening date is Saturday, October 31.

The antlered deer season will open on November 30, 1981.

How to cut cost on home-mixed feed

UNIVERSITY PARK — Poultrymen who grow grain, buy ingredients and home mix their feeds find they can manage to cut their costs if they do as follows:

Plant only varieties of grain that will mature completely by harvest time and can be harvested at a high nutritional value.

Manage crop and soils so that harvesters can pick up crop and completely separate grain from all other debris without breaking or cracking corn kernels.

Harvest only ripe or mature grain when it can be transported to the bin below 21 percent moisture and in a whole form with highest quality possible.

Save only the best grain for poultry because they are sensitive to moldy or high moisture grain.

Dry all grain to 13 percent moisture or lower and dry it slowly so the grain is not burned. Grain above 25 percent moisture may not be economical to dry. Therefore, it should be fed to other animals rather than poultry.

Store only the best grain in a dry, clean bin — free of trash, larvae, insects, mold, fungus, vermin or debris.

Use grain, if possible, before it becomes 18 months old (after harvest) because fresh grain is good grain.

Grind only the right amount and quality of grain with low moisture content to produce poultry mash of 10 percent moisture or less.

Mix all ingredients carefully in a horizontal mixer. If you use vertical mixers they must be managed closely. Keep them clean and check feed for particle separation.

Blend in all micro ingredients or small amounts so the complete mixing takes place for vitamins, minerals, proteins, fats, carbohydrates and other ingredients such as fiber.

Store mixed feed in an insulated, ventilated bin for two weeks or less to keep fresh feed before the birds.

Feed only high quality mixed feed that is freshly ground and unadulterated with harmful chemicals, trash, molds, or weeds.

Clean up feed in troughs by allowing birds to eat all the feed once or twice a week.

Clean out the boot of the bin and the upper bin and augers and wood bins inside the house once a month or more frequently. Feed hoppers on mechanical feeders should be cleaned every week.

Change rations only when necessary and when the feed consumption, season, sex, age or reproductive cycle dictates a nutrient change.

Experiment carefully with birds by changing feed, particle size, formulation, and low cost ingredients, at a gradual rate.

Keep water, dust, vermin, dead birds and mice, insects, trash, mold, shear pins, bolts, nails and other debris out of the feed.

Appoint a person on the farm to spend at least one hour per day on feed quality control. Buying and holding quality ingredients is a must for poultry.

Listen to everyone who talks to you about feed quality but filter out and use only that information which will improve your situation.

Feed quality control is the largest single problem for some managers who mix feed on the farm.

If all else fails, then buy a ready mixed feed and let these 3000 decisions up to a capable feed manufacturing firm. Home mixing feed is a challenging, complex and proftable task for some, while many fail at this venture - so if you try it, give it your best management ability.

Md. FFA officer named speaker

WOODSBORO, Md. — National Future Farmers of America eastern region vice president, a young Angus breeder from Woodsboro, Md., will be the keynote speaker July 19 in Wichita, Kan., at a dinner for National Junior Angus Association officer candidates and voting delegates.

- Don Trimmer Jr., 20, serves nearly one-half million FFA members in his national officer duties in addition to assisting his family with 250 registered Angus cattle. At the dinner, he will speak to young Angus leaders from across the United States who were elected by their respective states to join forces and establish the National Junior Angus Association.

This national group, representing more than 2,000 Angus youth, will be organized in Wichita in conjunction with the National Junior Angus Heifer Show and National Showmanship Contest. The four days of Angus events will be featured July 19-22 at the Kansas Coliseum and Livestock Facility in Wichita.

Trimmer, a member of the Walkersville FFA Chapter, has served as state president, chapter president and chaplain, and received his chapter's Star Greenhand Award. He was on the 1976 state-winning livestock judging team and, in 1977, placed as second high individual in the state meats judging contest.

Trimmer also was active in 4-H. He exhibited Angus cattle for nine years and served as a 4-H council member and camp counselor. In high school, Trimmer was a Student Council member and was active in chorus, theater and sports.

Since graduation from high school, he has served on the State FFA Alumni Council, Maryland FFA Foundation Committee and Maryland Joint Ag-Ed Staff Committee, and has participated in state and national Institutes on Cooperative Education.

An agricultural education major at Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University, he has taken a year's leave of absence to carry out his duties as national FFA officer.

PASTURE NUTRIENT BALANCER

As you know good pasture provides an excellent source of protein during the spring and summer months. In fact, lush green pasture may be as rich in protein, on a dry basis, as corn gluten feed or brewers' dried grain. Occasionally, some persons become so enthusiastic about the nutritive merits of pasture that they conclude it is fully the equivalent of a protein-rich concentrate This is a considerable exaggeration

In two important respects the best of pasture differs decidedly from a high-grade concentrate ration. This is in the percentage of fiber (fiber is undigestable and has no feed value) and consequently in the TDN or net energy. Lush pasture will usually contain 18 to 20 percent fiber compared to approximately two percent fiber in ground corn (when both are dried to the same dry matter content.)[1] Since it is impossible to balance rations for grazing animals, energy, vitamins and minerals should always be made available. To insure that the animals nutrient requirements are met during these upcoming months, we recommend that you consider MOPRO 16% Liquid Protein fed free choice.

MOPRO 16% Liquid Protein is a High Energy Feed which has been specifically designed to economically carry more cattle per acre while increasing gains on pasture without grain. Our stable guaranteed vitamin and mineral package has proven helpful in the prevention of pinkeye, thrush, and ringworm while improving general herd health and conception rates Good pasture along with MOPRO 16% Liquid Protein supplies the most economical feeding program for grazing animals during the growing season.

Hunterdon County 4-H Clubs meet in New Jersey

FLEMINGTON, N.J. — Over 100 4-H'ers from all over Hunterdon County participated in the County Presentation Contest held at the St. Paul Lutheran Church.

"This is the largest turnout we have ever had," said Ray Nichols County 4-H Agent. The presentations varied in topics from Making Jelly Rolls to Snakes and Stock Cars.

Qualifying with Excellent ratings for the state contest to be held at Cook College on June 26 were:

Ericka Zipfel, Clothing Construction Terms; Linda O'Coonor, Cleaning & Caring for a Flute; Hunterdon Hayshakers 4-H Club, Square Dancing; Brad McFall, Herpetology; Margaret Buchanan, Wool Types and Grading Wool; Ruth Stehr, Pattern Envelope Back. All were from Flemington.

Lisa Davis, Equine Education, Jeff Rendano, Never Say Yuck; Jackie DeVries, Flare for Fashions and Jackie Lewis, Add a Little Spice to Your Life, all from Lebanon, New Jersey.

From Whitehouse Station, Patti Vowinkel, Dress For Success; and Tammy Woske, An Incredible Three Week Voyage.

CHERRYVILLE HOMEMAKERS

FLEMINGTON, N.J. — Four Excellents and two Very Goods were received by the members of the Cherryville Homemakers 4-H Club at the County Presentation Contest.

Betty Benedik, Cathy Pries, Ruth Stehr and Ericka Zipfel received excellents, while Very Good ribbons were awarded to Debbie Hughes and Shirley Lefebvre.

Those now eligible for the State Presentation Contest, to be held in June at Cook College are Ruth Stehr and Ericka Zipfel.

A bake sale was held at Acme Markets in Flemington recently, and members participated in the Spring Homemakers Day Fashion Show at the Beaver Brook Country Club.

RAY BASTEDO MEMORIAL FUND PROPOSED

FLEMINGTON, N.J. — The creation of a memorial fund in memory of Ray Bastedo, long-time resident of Hunterdon County and founder of the first 4-H Horse Club in the county, was proposed by the Hunterdon County Horse and Pony Association at its meeting on March 24 at the Extension Center.

Bastedo, who passed away in January, was always interested in horses and young people.

The Horse and Pony Association plans to work through the 4-H Youth Development Program to use the fund to send a few children from 4-H Horse Clubs to the week-long 4-H Summer Camp each year, starting this summer. The goal is to raise $1500 to provide an annual "campership" for several youngsters.

Individuals or groups wishing to support the Ray Bastedo Memorial Fund should send their contributions to Marge Van Ness, R5 Box 108, Hope Farm, Flemington, NJ 08822. Please make checks payable to the Hunterdon County Horse and Pony Association.

SUPER STEERS 4-H CLUB

FLEMINGTON, N.J. — The members of the 4-H Super Steers Club met recently at the Hildebrandt residence in Oldwick.

A thank you note was received from the WOR Children's Christmas Fund for the club's participation in this service project. Demonstrations for the next Beef Council meeting are to be presented by Jake Matyas of Califon, Kim Shepperd of Milford, and Jennifer Kenney of Long Valley. The Angus Bowl has also been scheduled for this date.

A committee, Jake Matyas, Jennifer Kenney, and Kenny Blemmings of Califon, was set up to plan the club's activities for the 4-H Day at the Mall Program, to take place in May.

Hunterdon County 4-H Clubs meet in New Jersey

FEATHERED FRIENDS 4-H CLUB

FLEMINGTON, N.J. — The Hunterdon County Feathered Friends 4-H Club held their April meeting at the Woske residence in Whitehouse Station.

The main topic for discussion was a club bake sale, which is to be held on May 24 at the Garden State Sentry Hardware Store in Whitehouse Station.

Presentations were given at the meeting. Two of the club members, Tammy and Wendy Woske were participants in the County Presentation Contest held recently. A one-day-old Crested White Duck was brought to the meeting by Lorrie Nief of Flemington.

The next meeting is scheduled for May 12 at the Woske home in Whitehouse Station.

GOAT GANG 4-H CLUB

FLEMINGTON, N.J. — A meeting was held recently at the Van Duyne residence in Sergeantsville by the members of the Goat Gang 4-H Club.

Margaret Buchanan, a member of the Hunterdon County 4-H Sheep Club, showed the members how to fill out their record books for the County 4-H Awards Judging. She also told them what awards were available for them.

Upcoming activities in which the club plans to participate are the 4-H Day at the Mall and the 4-H What Not Sale. Two films about dairy goats and showing dairy goats were shown at this meeting.

Plans for the May 10 Mall Program and the June 7 What-Not Sale will be finalized at their next meeting, to be held at the Peck residence in Stockton.

VETERINARY SCIENCE 4-H CLUB

FLEMINGTON, N.J. — The April meeting of the Veterinary Science 4-H Club was held at the Extension Center.

A committee for 4-H Day at the Mall has been formed. Club members plan to bring in their own Veterinary Science instruments and write up a description of them for their display. Also included in the display will be pictures of their animal projects to show that "4-H is learning by doing".

A demonstration on the Golden Comet Chicken was given by Patrick Eckrich of Milford.

The club display for the 4-H Day at the Mall will be set up at their next meeting on May 8 at the Extension Center. New members are welcome.

CENTAURS 4-H HORSE CLUB

FLEMINGTON, N.J. — The Centaurs 4-H Horse Club met in April at the home of their leader, Betsy Spencer of Lebanon.

The members attended a Handicapped Riders Clinic recently. The members learned how a handicapped person adapts to riding a horse. On Saturday, the members went to New Bolton Center, an equine veterinary hospital.

Their next meeting is set for May 5 at the Spencer residence.

SUNSHINE DAIRY GOAT 4-H CLUB

FLEMINGTON, N.J. — The Sunshine Dairy Kids 4-H Club, a newly formed goat club, met in April at the home of one of their leaders, Joan Dinkelo of Stockton.

The club is going to participate in the 4-H Day at the Mall Program in May. A Grooming, Fitting and Showmanship Clinic for the members has been planned for sometime in July.

New Officers in the club are: Keith Morre, treasurer; Tracy Harrington, secretary; Dawn Dinkelo, club reporter and Steven Dinkelo, in charge of refreshments and clean up. Donald Moody is a co-leader of the club.

The next meeting is scheduled for April 27 at the Dinkelo residence.

HORSE IMMUNIZATION CLINIC

FLEMINGTON, N.J. — A Horse Immunization Clinic open to all horse owners will be held this Sunday from 12 noon to 1:30 p.m. at the Round Valley Youth Center on Route 629 in Clinton Township.

The Clinic is sponsored as a service to both 4-H and non 4-H Horse owners who would like to save money while having important veterinarian services provided. The Clinic will provide a Coggins Test, Equine Encephalitis and tetanus toxoid shots, according to Jacqueline Lewis, chairman of this clinic, which is sponsored by the Round Valley Riders 4-H Horse Club. For additional information, call Lewis at [illegible]735-8440

4-H DAIRY GOAT COUNCIL

FLEMINGTON, N.J. — The Hunterdon County 4-H Dairy Goat Council met at the Extension Center recently.

An election of officers was held, and the results are as follows: president, Penny Peck of Bloomsbury; vice president, Chris Peck of Stockton; secretary, Mary Skerbish of Clinton; treasurer, Jim Allen of Califon; representative to Garden State Dairy Goat Club, Greg Keller of Hampton; and council news reporter, Donna Compton, of Frenchtown.

Some of the upcoming events in which the Council will take part include: 4-H Day at the Mall, set for May 10; the 4-H What Not Sale on June 7; and 4-H Camp to be held at Beemerville during the week of July 14.

The next meeting is scheduled for May 8 at the Extension Center.

CLOVERETTES 4-H TWIRLING CLUB

FLEMINGTON, N.J. — The Cloverettes 4-H Twirling Club held their meeting recently at the Extension Center. Some of the members participated in the County Presentation Contest.

A trip to Great Adventure is planned for the club on May 17. Members will be leaving from the Hunter Hills Apartment Complex in Flemington at 9 a.m. sharp, and plan to leave the park at 5 p.m.

Members of the club will be practicing their twirling routines for the 4-H Day at the Mall Program, which is to be held on Mav 10.

Game Commission names four, including farmer, to board

HARRISBURG — Two new members have taken their seats on the Pennsylvania Game Commission, and two incumbent members have been confirmed to continue serving with the agency.

The new members of the commission are Donald R. Craul, Lewisburg, and Paul E. Hickes, Huntingdon. Craul replaces Andrew C. Long of Shamokin, and Hickes replaces C. Clair Winter of Everett.

Incumbents who will continue to serve on the eight member commission are E. J. Brooks of Lansdale and Elmer M. Rinehart of Stroudsburg.

Craul, a tree farmer-nurseryman, was an agronomy major at Penn State, where he played football and basketball and was a member of Beta Theta Pi.

He was in sales and management positions with Armstrong Cork Company in Lancaster, New York, Boston, Syracuse, Detroit and Philadelphia for nineteen years before devoting full time to his Christmas tree-nursery operation involving hundreds of acres in Tioga County.

Craul has been a member of the board of directors of the Pennsylvania Christmas Tree Growers Association for over fifteen years, has served as chairman of various committees in the organization, and was president of the group for four years.

He is a member of the Pennsylvania Farmers Association, is the Christmas tree industry's representative to the Pennsylvania Council of Farm Organizations, is the Christmas Tree Growers Association representative on the Agricultural Advisory Council, is serving his second three-year term on the board of directors of the Pennsylvania State University Agriculture Alumni Society, is a member of the Nittany Lion Club at Penn State, belongs to the National Rifle Association, is a member of the Pennsylvania Nurserymen's Association, the National Christmas Tree Association and the Susquehannock Sportsmen's Club.

The 37th annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Christmas Tree Growers Association will be held at his plantation, Maple Hill Farms, near Wellsboro this summer.

Hickes holds a bachelor's degree in business administration from Juniata College and a master's degree from the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration.

He has been a general contractor in Huntingdon County all of his adult life. He is a life member of the Western Pennsylvania Conservancy, a life member of the National Wildlife Federation, a life member of the National Wild Turkey Federation, is a member of the National Rifle Association, the Smithsonian Institute, the Pennsylvania Forestry Association, and is involved in Masonic organizations.

Brooks has been a member of the Game Commission since 1969. He served as president of the organization from 1971 until 1973, and again was president of the commission in 1979.

Rinehart has been a member of the commission since 1972. Presently the secretary of the commission, he had served as the president of the agency from 1975 until 1977.

Long had served on the commission for two terms. He was first appointed to the body in 1953, serving until 1961. During that time, he served as vice president of the commission from 1957 until 1960.

Long was renamed to the commission in 1970. During his second period of service, he was vice president of the commission in 1971 and 1972, and then served as president from 1973 until 1975.

Winter had been a member of the commission since 1972. He was named vice president in 1976, and served as president from 1977 until 1979.

The terms of Brooks and Craul will expire in 1985, and the terms of Rinehart and Hickes will expire in 1987.

Grangers oppose gasoline fee

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The National Grange announced here Wednesday had strong opposition to the President's Gasoline Conservation Fee on imported crude oil.

Edward Andersen, Master of the National Grange, said the fee is designed to raise the price of gasoline by 10 cents a gallon. Unless action is taken, the fee will go into effect on May 15, 1980.

In a letter to the President, Andersen stated that farmers and rural people would be hit especially hard by the impact of the import fee. He said rural people must travel further than others for goods and services and farmers are currently hard pressed by low commodity prices, increased production costs, scarcity of credit and high interest rates.

The increased cost of gasoline will also add to the cost of transporting, processing and marketing food which in turn will be passed on to the consumer, said Andersen.

The Grange is calling on the Congress to pass a joint resolution vetoing the Gasoline Conservation Fee or prohibiting the expenditure of funds to implement the Fee or an amendment to the Trade Expansion Act limiting the President's authority in this area.

bulk storage bins keep feed fresh

- Made from fiberglass, the lasting answer.
- Color molded permanently into fiberglass to remain attractive and new-looking.
- Fiberglass is practically dent-proof. Stands up to long periods of hard use.
- Contents stay fresh because fiberglass absorbs little or no heat.
- Because there is very little condensation on the inside, moisture cannot alter the contents of material being stored.
- Fiberglass is rust resistant. Acids and salts can't hurt it.
- Steep-slope symmetry plus a large 26" diameter hopper keeps material pouring freely without bridging.

FABRAL CORPORATION METAL ROOFING AND SIDING

Fabral roofing and siding panels are custom-cut to length according to job specifications. This saves on material, erection time and labor costs. Most panels can be overlapped in segments of 6" or 8" to minimize longitudinal cutting. Fabral panels are available painted or in natural galvanized steel or aluminum. Painted panels have a baked on finish that is weather resistant and one that will retain its original beauty for years.

FAIR RENTAL VALUES (FOR LAND) — At one time or another, most farmers find themselves in the position of being either a landlord or a renter. So, the problem of establishing a fair rental value for land is worth considering.

Land Only Rental

If you check with your neighbors, you'll find a wide range of values. Anything from $10 an acre land rental to $100 or more can be found in Southeastern Pennsylvania. The factors that determine these values are the use to be made of the land, the urgency for renting extra land, the fertility and ease of tillage, and the amount of competition for a given parcel. And all of these can be tempered by some traditions and precedents established in the community.

In order to arrive at land rental rates strictly from agricultural values, we can use two methods. First, as a percentage of its agricultural use value, and second, by capitalizing the investment value. Whichever method we use, the rental should be tied to the productive capacity of the soil. In either case, the rental figure per acre, per year is only a starting place for final negotiation between two parties.

Percent of Agricultural Use Value

Regardless of the prices currently being paid for farmland and on whatever basis they are justified, true agricultural value of land can be figured in only one way. That way is the net annual return from crops produced on it. On a dairy farm, the maximum return is realized from corn and alfalfa. The net annual return from an acre of good land growing corn and alfalfa is currently about $160. This is derived using actual figures compiled over the last several years from the Pennsylvania 5 Acre Corn and 5 Acre Alfalfa Contests. Since contest fields are generally above average, we can assume this figure is pretty high. A more accurate average is probably $100 net return from corn and alfalfa. (The range could be from $50 to $200 — calculations will have to be based on your value.) Decide for yourself what portion of the net return per acre can be paid out in rent

Remember that the tenant assumes all risks of yield and price.

Land Rental Based on Capital Value

From the viewpoint of the landlord, this methods seems reasonable, but good judgement must be used in setting a value on the land. The following calculations are based on annuity tables and reveal the actual annual return needed to justify an investment in land.

Example #1 — If you borrow $1000 at 12 percent interest to purchase one acre of land for farming purposes, the land must NET $133.88 annually in order to amortize the loan in 20 years. Even 30 year amortization requires $124.14 a year net. $1,500 an acre land will require a NET return of $200.82 to pay a 12 percent mortgage. Caution: nobody can afford that kind of rent at present prices for corn and alfalfa!

Example #2 — Land bought 20 years ago for $400 an acre on a 5 percent mortgage can be paid for at $32.10 an acre. This is often the type of land that is offered for rent.

Example #3 — 150 bushel corn land with corn at $2.50 a bushel is worth approximately $1500. 100 bushel corn land is worth about $1000. 80 bushel land is worth $650. Using 5 percent as an accepted rental percentage rate, 150 bushel land would be worth $75 per acre, 100 bushel land, $50 an acre and 80 bushel land should rent for $32.50. This example is only a guideline.

Change yields and prices and its a whole new game. Throw in the factors for competition and how badly you need land and consider the local precedents already set, and you're ready to negotiate a deal.

N.J. passes legislation to hike hunting fees

TRENTON, NJ — Newly-enacted legislation has increased the price of a New Jersey general hunting license from $10 to $13.50 per year.

In addition to the general license fee increase, the new law increases the fee for bow and arrow hunting from $10 to $15 per year Special deer permits which formerly cost $5 will now cost $10 a year.

Those who formerly purchased a rifle permit for $3 will now pay a fee of $5 per year.

The price of the New Jersey pheasant and quail stamp, which formerly was $5, has now risen to $15.

And the trapping license, which used to cost $10, will now be priced at $20 per year.

For those who are 14 and 15 years of age and those who are 65 to 70 years of age, reduced license fees are available. The general license fee for those persons will be $7; the bow and arrow hunting license will be available for $8, and a trapping license can be purchased for $10.

In 1973, Pennsylvania license fees were raised to their present levels. A hunting and trapping license for persons 12 through 16 years of age and for persons 65 years of age and older costs $5.25; for a person 17 through 64 years of age the license is available fo $8 25

Install any time

Another reason why all ring-drive silo unloaders are not alike: Whether your silo is empty, partly empty or full, we can install a Volumatic III silage distributor-unloader. Wide-stance hexapod 3-point suspension installation system lets you replace your present unloader with the ring-drive distributor-unloader others can't match in features or performance. So, why wait?

Plantings can help reduce noise

MEDIA — With cars, trucks, televisions, stereos and lawn mowers, modern technology has brought noise along with the convenience. According to James J. McKeehen, Delaware County Extension Agricultural Agent, plants can be an effective way to deflect, absorb, diffract and mask sounds and noise in the environment.

To understand how plants act as mufflers, you need to understand some basic facts about noise. Sound moves outward from the source in waves with the highest pitched having the shortest wave length. Sound may also be carried by the wind and its transmission is affected by precipitation and humidity. Sound waves also rise upward from the source. Noise levels can be reduced because of distance, air and ground absorption or when the waves strike objects such as buildings or landforms. Finally, lightweight flexible objects tend to vibrate more easily from sound waves and therefore absorb more sound waves than stiff, massive surfaces.

Trees, shrubs, vines and turf areas all absorb noise very well, especially many of the high frequency sounds. Many of the high frequency sounds have wavelengths not much longer than the average size of the twigs and leaves. The lightweight nature of the twigs and leaves allows them to vibrate easily and absorb more. There is also a secondary value from plants as far as noise control is concerned. The sounds created by the plants themselves as the wind rustles the foliage helps conceal and disguise offensive noise. The fruit and concealing abilities of plants attract noise-making birds and animals whose sounds also tend to mask other less pleasant noise.

The actual amount of noise reduction will depend upon the density and size of the planting. In an area where space is limited, keep in mind that a single tree is better than nothing. Many downtown shopping areas have reduced traffic noise for shoppers with street trees and other plants in the business district. In the residential areas of a community, larger trees not only provide welcome shade but also absorb the upward moving traffic noise from the roadway.

Plowing reduces veg rot diseases

BELTSVILLE, Md. — Some vegetable growers could benefit from putting away the fungicides and getting out the plow, say two USDA scientists.

This advice came after a three-year study in which plant pathologists, George Papavizas and Jack Lewis tested several nonchemical methods to control the pesky fungus, Rhizoctonia. The fungas is responsible for at least $5 million in annual losses to U.S. cucumber growers, and it also an important pathogen of beans, radishes sugarbeets, tomatoes, and other crops.

The tests which compared plowing with disking, the scientists cut cucumber fruit rot in half; in other tests, they doubled the stand of snapbean plants. In both tests they simply turned the soil to a depth of 8 to 10 inches (20 to 25 cm) before planting.

Deep plowing was as effective as two fungicides (Difolatan and Bravo) used in plots which were disked to a depth of two or three inches rather than plowed. Switching to the plow might reduce disease on other rot-susceptible vegetables such as tomatoes, say the scientists.

Rhizoctonia solani survives on crop residues which are disked into the surface layer of the soil, explained Papavizas. Disking--the general farm practice--actually provides nutrients for the fungus. But deep plowing buries the crop residues and fungus into an unfriendly environment and because of low oxygen and high carbon dioxide, the fungus pathogen is virtually "smothered," he said.

Disease control was boosted another 20 to 25 percent in the plowed experimental plots when the researchers used two species of soil-inhabiting fungi that attack the Rhizoctonia fungus.

Even in the disked plots the two organisms, when incorporated into the Rhizoctonia-infested soil, gave as much control as fungicides applied at two to three times the recommended dosage, said Lewis.

Both of the effective organisms, Corticium and a strain of Trichoderma, were laboratory-grown, and preparations are not available commercially. They were applied into the seed furrow in the bean plots because Rhizoctonia attacks the tender seedlings causing root rot and damping-off. In the cucumber plots, the fungi were lightly raked into the soil between the rows two to three weeks after planting. Cucumbers get fruit rot by direct contact with infested soil.

Experiments were carried out in silty-clay loam at the Agricultural Research Center in Beltsville, Md., and loamy sand on Maryland's Eastern Shore.

Fruit rot (also called soil rot and belly rot) is one of the most serious diseases of cucumbers in the southeastern United States. Warm, humid conditions in the south coupled with high-density planting make an ideal "growth chamber" for Rhizoctonia. Further, the practice of planting the same crop year after year enhances the fungus' survival, thereby cutting down on the effectiveness of fungicides, says Lewis.

Similar conditions contribute to severe disease in snapbeans on Maryland's Eastern Shore. Farmers there may harvest two bean crops a year. The first crop grown in the cooler weather is relatively disease-free because Rhizoctonia hasn't recovered from the winter kill. But when the first crop's residues are disked into the soil and the temperature and humidity rise, the fungus grows rapidly and "clobbers the second planting," Papavizas said.

Unfortunately, plowing may increase erosion while burying organic matter deep in the root zone, Lewis noted. However, it never failed to reduce diseases and increase plant stand in three years of experimentation, he said. "Even on sandy soil we got three times more yield in the plowed area than in the disked areas," he added.

Four testing programs offered by Penn State UNIVERSITY PARK — Four testing programs are available from the College of Agriculture at Penn State. These include soil testing, forage analysis, plant evaluation, and diagnosis of plant diseases.

Of these services, the most timely for spring is soil testing. Such analysis of lime and fertilizer needs is available to farmers, greenhouse owners, golf course superintendents, nurserymen, and home owners – anyone who owns land.

"Whether you have 10 acres of corn, 5000 square feet of lawn, or a 20 by 20 foot garden, soil testing can help you," says W. Wayne Hinish, coordinator of this program in the College of Agriculture.

For a small fee, mailing kits are available for submitting soil samples. The kits may be obtained at county Extension Service offices or from the Merkle Soil and Forage Testing Laboratory at University Park, Pa. 16802.

Soils are tested for pH (acidity or alkalinity) and for corrective liming requirements. Phosphorus, potassium, and calcium content are also determined. Recommendations - for limestone and fertilizer, along with the test results, are returned to the individual.

Sides being drawn in Allegheny Forest dispute

KANE — The Allegheny National Forest and its natural resources are the rope in a tug-of-war which is pitting conservationists against preservationists.

On the one hand are the natives of the Northwestern Pennsylvania area where the forest currently is located. On the other hand are people from across the nation who feel the Allegheny tract is an unappreciated site which needs to be preserved in its present state forever.

At stake are hundreds of acres of fine cherry timber and a potentially lucrative oil and gas field. Both are located in the Allegheny Forest area.

IT'S OUR 25th YEAR
Lancaster Farming

Vic Westerberg, former legislator from McKean and Cameron County is lobbying to keep the Forest from being declared a Wilderness Area. This, in its pure sense, would exclude any development at all in the Forest.

No roads would be built. Down trees would not be salvaged. No hunting or fishing would be permitted.

The Sierra Club generally favors that approach, although its lobby has agreed to allow hunting and fishing in the proposed wilderness area, apparently to keep those factions in the Wilderness camp.

Each side has its bill in the U.S. Congress. Peter H. Kostmayer, District 8 Representative, has HR 5488, the Wilderness Bill.

Kostmayer is from Bucks County in Southeastern Pennsylvania.

Representative William F. Clinger, Jr., District 23, has HR 6006 which basically gives seven islands in the Allegheny River to the Wilderness Area and keeps the rest of the Forest open to forest management for harvesting timber or other resources.

Clinger is from Warren, in the center of the Allegheny Forest area.

In Kostmayer's corner are the Sierra Club and others who feel the Forest should become a Wilderness Area.

In Clinger's corner are most of the local people in the Forest area.

Westerberg said the National Forest is a great boost to the local economy.

He pointed out that Cameron County is owned 95 percent by the government and only 5 percent by private landholders.

In McKean County the ownership ratio is about 50-50.

He said the Forest puts timber up for sale at bid and part of the revenue generated goes to the local second class townships.

Funds are spread out on a county-wide basis so every township gets some money for schools.

In addition, the logging roads which must be built are left behind to serve as fire roads.

Residents of the area fear provisions of the Wilderness Area which would allow fires to burn virtually unchecked, Westerberg said.

Also worried about the outcome are the loggers who derrive most of their imcome from the national forest. Below them in the economic chain is a whole host of suppliers, machinery manufacturers, and the like.

Economically important to the timber jobbers are the excellent stands of hardwood, especially the black cherry in the Hickory Creek area.

The Wilderness faction sees the area's greatest resource as the timeless beauty of a natural area growing up the way nature intended it. They feel exploitation of timber or petroleum resources would only ruin the scenic, wild beauty.

The oil and gas in the Tracey Ridge section have not been exploited. The preservationists say they don't want to see heavy equipment dragged in over the land.

They proposed horse-drawn equipment. "The only drilling we'll ever see is with a helicopter that makes no noise," Westerberg said.

Congressman Foley of Washington state proposed taking a bit of land and establishing a framework for a roadless area. His proposal would take only a bit of the land and then guarantee the local people there would be no more taken.

Sierra Club members, who said they wanted no more land, would not buy the release language.

So, the battle wears on.

"It bodes ill there and anywhere," Westerberg said.

So, both sides tug at the Allegheny National Forest. The prize is thousands of acres of excellent woodland. The remaining question is which faction has the political muscle to pull the other over the brink and win the day.—CH

4-H State Capital Days highlight citizenship activities

HARRISBURG — Young adults from the Commonwealth's 67 counties took the opportunity to broaden their knowledge of the functions of state government recently during 4-H State Capital Days activities here.

While in Harrisburg they joined with 4-H members from across the state to learn more about the operations of the government and to discuss citizenship projects that will help strengthen local 4-H programming.

While in Harrisburg, they received a guided tour of the State Capitol Building, visited their local legislators in their offices, and participated in educational workshops geared to increase their understanding of the legislative process.

They visited one of the state agencies and were guests of their county delegates at a legislative breakfast. Frank Bortz, 4-H spêcialist with Penn State points out that State 4-H Capital Days is one of the highlights of the 4-H citizenship program.

Seven Lancaster County youths were part of the program. Those taking part were Joann Brenneman, Mt. Joy; Roger Garber, Mt. Joy; Hal Enders, Mountville; Crystal Meck, Refton; Sue Howell, New Holland; Ken Beck, Ephrata and Laurie Sweigart, Ephrata.

Two 4-H'ers from Lebanon County participated in the event. They were: Greg Allwein, Lebanon and Beth Ann Shiner, Myerstown.

From Berks County, six members participated. They were: Steve Imes, Fleetwood; Corinna Moyer, Rehrersburg; Danielle Yoder, Hamburg; Jayne Malsbury, Rehrersburg and Barbara Schroeder, Kutztown.

The three representatives from Bucks County were: Tom Reynolds, Richboro; John Burke, Churchville and Elliott Franklin, Chalfont.

Schuylkill also had three representatives: Daryl Dissinger, Schuylkill Haven; Denise Carl, Saint Clair and John Williams, New Ringgold.

Montgomery County youth attending the activities were: Joe Angelo, Gwynedd Valley; Jeanne Underland, Philadelphia; Beverly Jones, Collegeville; David Anderson, Hendricks; and Coleen Kinsky, Lansdale.

Speaker at the legislative breakfast held for the youth was Arthur Nesbitt, president of NASCO International, Inc. and national 4-H alumni winner.

The Milk Check

TOM JURCHAK
County Agent

Triplicate

For the third consecutive month you gave yourself a blend price in Order 2 so nearly the same that it almost looks like you don't want to get any more money for your milk.

Even though Class I prices have improved nine cents in those three months and Class II prices have remained very nearly the same, you always increase production just enough to wipe out the different and wind up with the same blend price.

It was $12.25 in December and January and now it's $12.24 for February. Allowing for the 29 days in February you still jumped your average daily production by 700,000 over January to drop your Class I utilization to a new low in Order 2 of 45.8 per cent — the worst for any February in the last 30 years.

If that's a sample of what you have planned for this Spring you may beat your all time record low of 38.6 per cent made last April during the New York Teamsters Union strike. Your Class I sales have stayed the same during this period, around 13 million pounds a day, but your increasing production in the last three months, a total of 2.6 million pounds a day, has dropped your Class I utilization from 51.2 to 45.8 per cent.

Of course, all this isn't necessarily bad. If you feel you're making money at these prices, and from the increasing production most dairymen must feel that they are, then produce all you can.

However, just be sure that your operation is on sound financial ground or you may be digging your grave with a feed scoop.

Certainly, handlers and some co-ops are looking for more milk. But their reasons for wanting more may be different from your reasons for producing more.

And it isn't only an Order 2 problem. Production is increasing nationally at a rate that may put you, this year, within two billion pounds of the all time record made 16 years ago.

It's causing industry-wide concern and meetings are already being held to decide how to handle the problem if the flood develops as expected with the coming of Spring.

Youth attending the State Capital 4-H days were: Joe Angelo, Gwynedd Valley; 4-H Coordinator, Nancy Kadwill, Collegeville; Jeanne Underland, Philadelphia and Beverly Jones, Collegeville. Back row: State 4-H Program Director, Maurice Kramer; David Anderson, Hendricks; and Coleen Kinsky, Lansdale.

The satisfaction that comes from doing a good job of farming

It's a great feeling to know that you are the master of your farmlands . . . that when you treat your soil right, it will treat you right. Liming is one of the most important factors in keeping your soil in the highest productive range. A good pasture with a pH of 6.5 or higher, for example, will make 300 to 400 lbs. of beef per acre and produce up to $100 gross income per acre. This means with the help of lime, profits from pastures can compare favorably with feed or grain crops.

Guss answers 'What's new in dairy goats'

BY PAT KAUFFMAN

LANCASTER — "The dairy goat industry is at least 30 years behind the cow industry." With these words, Sam Guss summed up his thoughts on finding a proven herd sire.

"The problem is that no one knows where the good sires are. While the great does can be found on their milk production, the great sire may be in some back yard," Guss continued. He emphasized the need to use classification as well as more modern techniques to determine genetic potential.

Guss was in Lancaster recently to address the Dutch Country Dairy Goat Association. His topic, What's New in Dairy Goats, included discussion on research and advances in dairy goat husbandry.

On the common problem of abscesses, Guss noted that recent research clearly indicates that the organism which causes the abscess can penetrate normal skin and produce an abscess in as little as 6 weeks. He noted that there is a newly developed blood test, that when ready for general use could do alot to stem the transmission of the disease at goat shows and exhibitions.

Guss emphasized sanitation as the strongest method presently at disposal to stem disease problems in dairy goats. Young animals, he stated should never be housed with adults. "In Johnnes Disease, abscesses and coccidiosis, if the kids are taken from their dams at birth, only about 10 percent will become infected. At least for the first four months, the kids should be housed separately."

He noted that the feed and water facilities of the animals should at no time be subject to contamination from fecal droppings. This one area of concern could be the one where the most gain could be realized. Parasite cycles could be controlled more readily by limiting initial infection than by chemical warfare.

Guss noted that the good goat veterinarians are not always where you would expect to find them. He cited several examples where the goat owners found an advantage in taking their animals to small animal vets rather than the large animal veterinarians. "A vet that sees only dogs and cats finds a goat a pleasant diversion and will often take extra time and effort to see that the proper methods are used," he offered.

When questioned on specifics in controlling parasites, Guss stated that pasture rotation at 2 week intervals along with a drug worming program conducted at 2 week intervals rather than the more common 1 month interval seemed to be most effective. He cited Sudan grazing during the early morning and evening hours and alfalfa grazing during the dry hours of the day as probably the most effective use of pasture for goats.

In feeding goats to reach their genetic potential, Guss invited the crowd to make use of their locally successful dairy farmers. He noted that a ruminant whether sheep, goat or cow is fed as a ruminant. And that with the great strides made in the formualation of dairy feeding programs, the goat owner would be wise to find someone who practices challenge feeding or equally advanced feeding techniques and learn them from him.

The one area of caution Guss noted was the feeding of urea. When feed containing urea gets damp, goats will not like the smell of ammonia it releases and will not eat it. In addition, he noted that many times goats are fed higher proportions of grain than cows per body weight and that goat owners would be more likely to run into urea poisoning.

Beet pulp was cited by Guss as a good substitute for silage. Silage he noted is difficult for the goat owner to acquire, and often goats will not eat it.

On the specific topic of coccidiosis, Guss noted that if accurate samples were taken from goats in all herds of 5 or more animals, he would expect virtually all herds to show some evidence of coccidia. While the organisms are common, the damage they do is largely limited to young animals. Crowding, dampness, and contamination coupled with the stress of weaning are the culprits here.

Noting recent problems with animals bringing sore mouth into a herd when they return from a show, Guss recommended a program of vaccination. "Sore mouth causes a horrible mastitis in lactating animals if any virus finds its way into the teat end," he stated. He cautioned the group to be extremely careful when giving the vaccine as it can cause a very serious disease in humans.

In managing problem deliveries, Guss told the group that while most vets are under the mistaken impression that waiting is the preferred course of action, he has found that the cervix closes quickly in a goat and the result can be not only dead kids, but a dead goat. "If you notice a bubble and discharge in the morning, don't let the doe go until noon," he warned the group.

While he listed a group of wormers which look promising in the future control of internal parasites, Guss lamented that they have not yet been cleared by the government.

Game Commission seeks 60,000 antlerless harvest

HARRISBURG — The Pennsylvania Game Commission's proposal to authorize the issuance of 410,600 anterless deer licenses this year is designed to produce a harvest of about 60,000 whitetails, game management officials said this week

Last year the Game Commission authorized the issuance of 423,950 anterless deer licenses, in the hope that hunters would report a harvest of 62,000 whitetails. The actual reported harvest of anterless deer last year was 55,930

This year the Game Commission is proposing to increase the allocations of anterless licenses in 32 counties, and to decrease anterless license allocations in another 32 counties The agency is proposing to keep the anterless allocation in one county at the 1979 level

While there usually is a strong correlation between the number of anterless licenses allocated and the number of deer taken, as well as resultant adjustments to the size of the total deer herd, such is not always the case

Lancaster County's allocation is down to 4850 licenses; Berks, 6500, Dauphin, up to 3900; Lebanon, up to 2500; Chester, 6000; York, 7250; Potter, down to 13,150

Normally, an increase in the allocation of anterless licenses results in an increased harvest of deer, and a lowering of the total population number

However, this year's anterless license allocations are designed to keep deer herds at the same level as last year in 20 counties. These allocations should permit the herd to increase in size in 29 counties, while the population of whitetails should be reduced in 16 counties.

Paradoxically, in some counties the number of licenses this year will be decreased, but the number of deer in the county will be further reduced. Also, in some counties the allocation will be increased but the herd will be permitted to grow in total numbers

The seemingly contradictory situation results from combinations of factors affecting deer numbers. Some factors as reported vs actual harvest, sex ratios, age structures, percentages of yearling females, survival and productivity rates, hunter success rates, out-of-season losses, etc , all enter into the picture

By knowing the reported and actual removal rates, the age-sex structure of the herd, productivity figures and a few other basic pieces of information, the Game Commission is able to calculate the number of deer, by sex and age, present at any given time of the year in every county of the state

The key to permissible population numbers is the condition of the deer herd and the over-winter carrying capacity of the range

Studies have shown that about 40 deer can over-winter in a square mile of forest that is in the seedling-sapling or brush (under five inches in diameter) stage of growth In the pole timber stage of forest development (five through eleven inches in diameter), a square mile of forest can support only about 10 deer in typical winter weather In the saw timber stage (over eleven inches in diameter), about 20 deer can be supported per square mile

By knowing how many deer there will be before the hunting season, and by subtracting the number of deer that can be supported through the winter, the number of deer that must be removed by hunters can readily be calculated.

The number of anterless deer that need to be harvested will be the difference between the number of bucks that will be taken and the total number of deer that need to be removed

It is known how many anterless deer licenses need to be issued to remove one deer in every county. The figure varies from county to county, and from one year to the next.

In some counties, an average of 3.73 licenses issued will result in the harvesting of one deer In other counties, it may take an average of 23.88 licenses to harvest one deer. The statewide average is 6.8 licenses for each deer taken In twelve counties, over 10 anterless licenses have to be issued to harvest one deer.

Thus, the number of licenses issued in any county (or the state as a whole) may not be meaningful, even from one year to the next, unless all of the factors involved are taken into account.

Pencil becomes primary planting tool

BY DICK ANGLESTEIN

MANHEIM — Jim Kettering, Colebrook Rd., R7 Manheim, is using a pencil and pocket calculator as much as a plow and planter to put his corn crop in this year.

In these times of rising costs of production inputs, including skyrocketing interest rates, this meant many planting preparation hours spent seated at a desk before he even climbed behind the wheel of the tractor to turn the first ground.

"I did much more figuring and calculating this year than I ever did before," Kettering explained.

"My basic goal, just as I'm sure it was with many other growers this year, was to try and get the most production with the least possible cost, but still not skimp on anything important.

"I wanted to cut costs, but I didn't want to cut to the point that it would hurt the yield potential."

Beginning last year, not too long after the crop was in the bin, Kettering started taking a look at the already rising production costs

"For last year's crop, I put in 22 tons of 6-30-11 starter fertilizer," he said.

"Back in December when I went to buy this year's starter fertilizer, I found that 18 tons cost me the same amount as the 22 tons had cost last year That cost included the early order discount, too."

So Kettering went back to take a second look at his soil test and decided to cut back his starter fertilizer use by about 25 percent.

"Previously, I'd apply fertilizer a bit on the high side," he said.

As he loads seed corn into hopper of planter, Jim Kettering, R7 Manheim, terms current season as one that required close planting and preparations.

"I'd include a little bit extra for insurance But this year, I'm following the soil test recommendations to the letter."

In addition, Kettering is shooting for a 150-bushel yield potential this year In the past he's aimed a bit higher for approximately 175 bushels an acre

A consistently high Lancaster County placer in the five-acre corn club, Kettering is not to be considered a production economizer, either.

"When I saw the way the costs were heading," he explained, "it became essential to sit down and figure as close as possible.

"I feed 90 percent of my corn through hogs and steers and saw the need to economize. A cash grain farmer would have to watch even closer this year."

Kettering also made some changes in his plowdown fertilizer

Last year, he plowed down 500 lbs of 32-0-10 and this year he switched to 600 pounds of 22-0-8

"My total nitrogen use last year was about 172 to 175 lbs an acre," he explained

"This year, I cut back exactly to the soil test needs and am applying about 142 lbs. an acre."

There are many other costs for Kettering which have shown dramatic increases from one planting season to another.

Among two that really stand out are interest rates and the cost of his fuel.

"I can remember that interest rates were 9 percent at planting time last year," he said.

"Now, that rate stands at 17 percent, just about double."

His diesel fuel now costs 94.4 cents a gallon Last year, it was approximately half that amount, too

Kettering, together with his father farms about 400 acres, more than half of which is rented ground.

"Over the last three years, land rents have gone up considerably," he adds.

"I've heard of some rents

Still to come as part of rising production costs will be fall harvesting and drying costs on the Kettering farm at R7 Manheim.

topping $100 an acre in the county "

Additional cost increases, although not as dramatic, were noted by Kettering in his seed corn and spraying materials

"I hate to see weeds," he said

"I believe this is one corner you shouldn't cut, though If you rob here, it can really hurt the yields "

But he found that it paid to shop around for his herbicides and insecticides

"All it takes is the telephone and some time to call around," he explained

"You can find quite a range in price between different products that are of comparable good quality and some bargains can be found by shopping around."

There are other costs that must be figured into the crop, too

Kettering spreads and plows down about 15 or 20 tons of steer and hog manure an acre Then too, there will be the fall harvesting and drying costs

This week as Kettering looked back from one planting season to another, he found only one set of figures that just about remained constant.

The price of corn was within just a few cents a bushel of being exactly the same

Also, he looked back on a still-earlier crop year and recalled an equally troubling memory

Back in 1976, his yield in the five-acre corn club competition was 209 8 bushels an acre It was second highest in the state.

"That was on some rented ground," he said

"After that, the land grew five houses and it will never grow any corn, again."

Many hours are spent by Lancaster County corn grower Jim Kettering at desk making calculations before the first ground is turned for planting.

Farm Talk

Jerry Webb

One of the important changes taking place in rural America these days has to do with women and the part they play in the farm buisness.

Traditionally, farming has been a man's game with the farm wife reaping only survivor's benefits. The usual farm wife of a decade or two ago spent most of her time around the farm home doing the usual household chores, perhaps tending the garden, and helping her husband by running to town for parts and supplies or maybe driving a tractor during the very busy harvesting season. But it was still his farm. He made the decisions, paid the bills, and otherwise operated the farm while his wife handled the family affairs.

Women are waking up these days to the realization that such an arrangement is not all that satisfying and it also has some serious legal implications For instance, a wife who can't prove that she's made any financial contribution to the business or drawn any salary from it, has trouble convincing Uncle Sam that she deserves more than the usual survivor's benefits.

Farm women are also discovering that they can now go to work and never leave the farm There are important jobs they can do besides feeding a few chickens and taking care of the book work.

Many of them are realizing they would rather work on the farm with their mate than go off to some paid city job. And so enterprises are being added, farm structures reorganized to give women financially rewarding parts of the overall farm business.

The Department of Agriculture is launching a study to find out just what is happening with farm women. It's called "The Farm Women's Project" and it's headed by Carol Forbes, a lawyer in the Department of Agriculture who formerly served as legal counsel to the House Agriculture Subcommittee on dairy and poultry.

She also owns a farm in Alaska. A random sampling of some 4100 farm homes is taking place this Spring with the National Opinion Research Center of Chicago handling the details

Forbes says farm women work as hard as farm men to keep the business functioning And she thinks the government, including the Department of Agriculture, have pretty much ignored the wife's feelings, attitudes and needs.

Here are some questions that will be asked

Do the voting requirements for commodity referenda discriminate against farm women?

Are farm women treated without prejudice when they apply for Farmers Home Administration loans?

Is there adequate representation of women on USDA's various national and local advisory committees?

Are there federal or state laws or any USDA regulations that prevent women from becoming involved in USDA programs and services?

Since this is a random sampling, only a few thousand women out of a few million will be contacted. But others can still make their feeling known by writing to Forbes, who is director, Farm Women's Project, Room 1548, South Building, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250.

Forbes feels strongly that women's attitudes need to be worked into the policymaking apparatus, and once the surveys are completed she will make recommendations to the secretary about possible administrative changes and legislative action

A lot of farm women aren't waiting for that report to make their feelings known More and more they're attending and speaking up at farm gatherings And some of them are there as more than farm wives. They are there as women farmers

The Census Bureau identified 133,000 farm women in 1977 who are classed as independent farm owner operators And you can bet that figure will continue to grow Meanwhile, many other women who used to be classed as farm wives are taking on new status as they become involved in the actual operation of the farm business

There isn't much work on the modern farm that can't be done equally well by men and women. It will take time to change attitudes, but it is happening

Women are gaining wide acceptance as hired farm workers, and wives seem to be making headway as legal and participating partners in farming units. And what's wrong with that? Why should a woman who lives on a farm have to go to town to find a job? And why should a farmer pay wages to a hired man while his wife waits anxiously for his call for help?

Liberated and employable women are finding their place in all phases of society. There's no doubt about that. The backbreaking work that excluded women in the past is pretty much gone from farming.

Only the tradition remains and that is rapidly disappearing.

Berks Goatherders to hold picnic

FLEETWOOD — The April meeting of Berks Goatherders was held at the home of Stauffer and Barbara Reifsneider, R4 Fleetwood.

Approximately 20 families were in attendance. These represented the Kids with Kids 4-H club and the adult club.

The program was a presentation of information relating to udder health and a milking demonstration given by Barbara Reifsneider Those 4-H children and adults who are raising their first doe kids had an opportunity to learn proper milking technique.

The next meeting will be held Saturday, May 17 at 10:30 a.m. at Triple Creek Farm operated by Steve and Claire Dav.

The program for the May meeting will be Fitting and Showing and will be followed by a picnic lunch and a mock goat show in the afternoon.

Anyone interested in joining Berks Goatherders may do so by sending a check for $5 payable to Berks Goatherders. Mail membership payment to Barbara Reifsneider, R4042, Fleetwood, PA 19522.

N.J. state Holstein sale averages $1219

BY CURT HARLER

PHILLIPSBURG, N J. — Sale average at the New Jersey State Holstein Calf Sale last Friday was lower than in past years, in part reflecting a continuing reluctance by farmers to commit big money on any purchases.

The sale average of 86 Holstein calves and bred heifers was $1219

Top selling animal was Makarevich Willow Kitty, consigned by the Makarevich Brothers, Columbia, N.J She sold for $7600 to Charles Augur of Maine.

Kitty, born December 3, 1978, was sired by Willow Farm Rockman Ivanhoe, a high PD sire

Her dam is a Bootmaker daughter who classifies as Excellent-92 The dam s two year old record was 20,390 pounds milk and 705 pounds butterfat in 330 days

This year she is milking at over 100 pounds per day. She is contracted to a major stud and has a full brother in stud.

Top selling cow from Pennsylvania was Harlene Job Gumdrop, who was consigned by Harold Fabian, Bethlehem.

Gumdrop sold for $1550.

Among other price leaders was Tranquility Transmitter Irma, who sold for $2600. She was consigned by Freeborn Brothers, Allamuchy, N.J.

Edwin Thompson, Jr. and David Walton, Newtown, Pa. consigned Tower-vue Gay Babe to the sale. When the bidding stopped she brought $1700.

Highly touted FMS Top of the Ridge Linda sold for $1400 From Floyd and Marie Schwab's Top of the Ridge Farm, Ringoes, N J , the calf was out of a cow with over 20,000 pounds milk

Linda's dam is FMS Leadsmen Elevation Laurie, with a record of 20,720 pounds milk as a two year old

Her dam, in turn, was still churning out records of 18,142 pounds milk as a 10 year old

The Linda calf was by Edeal Pinonia Matt Tippy, another high PD bull

Keystone Job Paula, consigned by Don Seipt, Easton, and Keystone Farm, brought $1350

The sale, which was sponsored by the New Jersey State Holstein Association, regularly attracts bidders from all over the United States and from as far north as Ontario, Canada.

Most observers credited the hesitant bidding to the general economic climate and not to the quality of the animals in the sale, which in fact was up to its normal standards.

Lower cow prices have been reflected at sales in Pennsylvania and New York in recent weeks, as well as at the New Jersey show.

The price drop has surprised some observers who say the dairy industry is the only segment of agriculture which is not extremely depressed by the current economic situation

Co-chairmen for the New Jersey Holstein sale were William Teets, Lebanon, N.J., and Frank Gibbs, Allamuchy, N.J

The sale managers were Charles and Horace Backus, Mexico, New York

YOU'VE HEARD THE TALK.

There's a better way to dry grain It's called CHILLCURING™ because it means CURING without heat. Here's what the talk is all about

THE GRAIN

Every kernel of grain is alive when it comes out of the field It is a seed, able to grow because it has the ability to take on moisture Likewise, it can be kept in a state of preservation by removing the moisture already in it

But by heating the grain to dry it, the seed life is destroyed

By removing heat and moisture from the grain, it becomes dormant, and stays alive Then it can ripen to full weight, losing only water while keeping valuable protein starches and sugar

THE SYSTEM

It's simple Grain goes from the field right to the bin With the unique AIRFRAME™ and AIRFLOOR™ the grain rests on a solid bed that allows maximum ventilation

Clean dry air is the best curing medium for the grain GRAINLAMPS™ provide electric sunshine, cleaning and drying the air beneath the floor, before it passes through the grain

Fans force air under the floor Rising through the grain this dry outside air carries away moisture and heat

At the peak of the bin a jumbo 40 turbine, the WHIRLCOOLER™ puts nature to work for you Wind and rising air keeps it turning, venting the system naturally

A special HARVESTAT™ Control System monitors the curing process A simple setting controls the GRAINLAMPS™ to make use of free, natural air

THE FACTS

1. You can't beat Nature HARVESTALL GRAIN CHILLCURING™ uses the same elements that ripen and preserve grain if left to itself free flowing air and infra red rays (sunshine)
2. CHILLCURING™ has been tried and proven in 17 states on over 3000 farms The research is in CHILLCURING™ WORKS!
3. The CHILLCURING™ system uses only the electricity to power fans and lights, using about 1½ KW hrs per bushel Compare that cost to other systems that use increasingly expensive fuels to get disappointing results
4. The grain goes from the field to the bin and stays there till you need it Save time and money at harvest with the one step HARVESTALL CHILLCURING™ and storage system
5. If you're in the market for grain storage, you owe it to yourself to look further into HARVESTALL GRAIN CHILLCURING

Yost is L.D.'s Star Farmer

HUMMELSTOWN — At their annual awards banquet, held on April 24 at the high school, the Lower Dauphin Future Farmers of America announced the selection of Tammy Yost as the Star Chapter Farmer

Yost, who was chairperson of this year's banquet celebrating 20 years of vocational agriculture at Lower Dauphin, also received the special chapter award for leadership and the Dekalb Award for leadership, scholarship, and community activities

A senior at Lower Dauphin, Yost lives with her parents, Vernon and Janet Yost, at R1 Hershey Her parents were elected as this year's Honorary Chapter Members, along with Jay Book, a teacher at the school.

Yost has been in the FFA since her freshman year, and served as the Chapter treasurer in 1979 She said she would like to run for a State FFA office next year, and hopes to be a candidate for the dairy princess crown.

She keeps busy helping out on her uncle's dairy farm, where she lends a hand with milking about 70 Holsteins. She said she would like to go on to college and get her degree in dairy science

Yost said she'll be gone for a short time this summer She will be one of 25 students who will be traveling to Kansas as part of a 4-H exchange.

The chapter's Star Agribusinessman is Todd James, R5 Elizabethtown

The son of Zale and Donna James, Todd said he would like to go to college and eventually farm Although he doesn't live on a farm now, the junior at Lower Dauphin said he finishes about 8 Duroc swine each year.

The Star Greenhand Degree went to Duane Herr, R1 Hershey

The son of Robert and Ruth Herr, the Lower Dauphin freshman explained that they raise milking goats on their small farm. This year's Star Greenhand is a member of the parliamentary procedures team, and raises goats for both FFA and 4-H projects.

A special award was given to Kenneth Staver, dean of students at Lower Dauphin, in appreciation of his dedicated service to the FFA.

Chapter Project Book Awards went to the following·

Blue Ribbon

Todd James, R5 Elizabethtown; Ty Long, R1 Hershey; Zantha Weaver, R1 Hershey; and Debbie Capp, R1 Hershey.

Red Ribbon

Rick Cordero, R1 Middletown; Bill Capp, Jr , R1 Hershey; Bernice Finkey, R1 Middletown; Steve Aldinger, R1 Hershey, Todd James; and Craig Cassel, Hummelstown

White Ribbons

Ken Brandt, R1 Hershey; and Dave Bleacher, R5 Elizabethtown

County awards went to.

Clark Miller; Debbie Capp; Darryl Rode; Chris Strohecker; Todd James; Neal Leffler; Debbie Fleck; Mike Zeller; Clark Miller, and Leonard Waldron, Dauphin County Star Farmer.—SM

Ag structure study finished, new ag act to begin

WASHINGTON, D.C. — At the direction of Chairman Talmadge, the Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry has begun the preliminary work of developing new general farm legislation that must be enacted next year to replace the Food and Agriculture Act of 1977.

The starting point of this effort is a Committee study of the forces and influences that have shaped and affected the structure of American agriculture as it exists today. The study in part is a response to Secretary Bergland's initiation of a national dialogue on farm structure

But it also is intended as a legislative resource book on farm structure, both generally and with specific reference to major commodities, by the best authorities on agricultural policy in the United States.

The product of the study is included in the report, Farm Structure, A Historical Perspective on Changes in the Number and Size of Farms.

It is hoped that the study and the report will provide basic background information for the 1981 farm bill. As Chairman Talmadge states in the foreward· "This publication marks the beginning of the committee's task of writing that bill."

Copies of the report are limited. They may be purchased from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C., 29402. Price is $6, Stock number is 052-070-05283-0.

Pesticides require planning ahead

NEWARK, Del. — Everyone who uses pesticides should plan ahead to insure the best value from each dollar spent on pest control, says Delaware extension agricultural chemical specialist John McDaniel.

Review past and future cropping plans and the pests associated with them. Consider which pest problems are likely to occur in 1980.

Consider future uses of the fields, and whether a given pesticide applied in 1980 might upset plans for use of the field in 1981. Carry-over effects from certain herbicides may harm the next crop planted in a field. For instance, atrazine applied to corn in the spring may damage oats planted that Fall.

Several insecticides have label instructions that limit the crops which may be legally planted following the crop on which those insecticides were used. Choose pesticides with these points in mind.

After you've made your pesticide selections, shop around for the best buys. If you must accept early delivery, be sure to have a safe storage area. Find out whether your pesticides are harmed by cold weather.

Use the winter months to be sure your application equipment is in good condition. Have pumps rebuilt if necessary, and replace worn or chaffed hoses. Check pressure gauges and all valves.

Replace nozzle tips, even if they've just been spraying water. Be sure all nozzle tips bear the same number. The numbers are stamped on the ends of the tips. Align the tips at a slight angle to the boom so spray patterns overlap but do not interfere with each other.

Be sure applicators for granular pesticides are cleaned and rust-proofed. Replace worn gates, agitators, and drive mechanisms.

Calibrate all equipment before you use it. Measure pesticides when adding to sprayer tanks. Be sure the agitation is vigorous enough to keep pesticides suspended in the water. Before mixing two or more pesticides in the tank, check their compatibility to be sure there will be no physical or chemical problems.

Remember, McDaniel concludes, you have quite an out-of-pocket investment in pesticides. You are depending on them to do a job for you. If they don't do that job, the result is lowered quality and yield, adding up to even greater dollar losses.

Be sure to select pesticides thoughtfully and apply them carefully for best results at the least cost.

Agent explains complete fertilizer

NORRISTOWN — What is meant by a complete fertilizer? What is it made of? What part do the different elements play? Such questions are always popping up, and there is much confusion about them.

Montgomery County Agent, Paul Reber, explains that a complete fertilizer is one containing the three major plant foods, nitrogen, phosphorous, and potash. The mixture contains all of these plant foods in different percentages or rations, such as 8-8-8, 5-10-5, or 4-10-6.

The first number in each case represents nitrogen, the second phosphorous and the third, potash.

Generally speaking, nitrogen is the most important element because it gives plants a dark green color, promotes leaf and steam growth, improves the quality of leafy crops and produces rapid early growth. It is also the most likely to leach out of soils by rain.

This rate of loss depends on soil type. A coarse soil low in organic matter leaches faster than a heavier soil with high organic content.

Phosphorous (super-phosphate) stimulates early root formation and growth, thereby giving plants a good start, hastens maturity of crops and is especially important in seed formation.

Potash (muriate and sulphate) increases vigor and to some extent helps plants to resist certain diseases. It increases the plumpness of grain and seed and is essential in the formation and movement of sugars and starches in the plant.

This seems confusing but it points out the fact that it is difficult to make blanket recommendations for all crops because the kind and amount of fertilizer applied will depend upon the type of plant grown and the character of your soil.

Perry Saddle Up Club tours New Bolton

WEST CHESTER — The Perry County 4-H Saddle Up Club took a tour of New Bolton Center, the University of Pennsylvania's School of Vetetinary Medicine located in Chester County.

Twenty one members and six adults from the club were joined by scores of others who were taking advantage of the Open House held recently.

This large animal facility employs 250 staff members of which 70 are veterinarians and consists of 65 buildings which extend over 550 acres of rolling farmland.

The primary mission of the School is teaching, clinical care and research.

New Bolton serves as one of the nation's major veterinary medical referral centers. Animals come to the Center from the entire Eastern United States for diagnosis and treatment. Reported by Teresa Miller.

PURINA POULTRY GAZETTE™

VOLUME 1 NUMBER 1 — MAY 3, 1980

PURINA POULTRY SPECIALIST HELPS LOCAL CAGE LAYER OPERATORS SAVE $

JERRY McMILLAN PURINA POULTRY SPECIALIST

In November 1979, Jerry McMillan was appointed Purina Poultry Specialist for Central and Southeast Pennsylvania. Jerry brings with him a strong poultry background. Prior to moving to Hershey, Pa. where he and his wife Peggy live, Jerry was Poultry Flock Supervisor for Triangle Feeds of Camden, Indiana. As Flock Supervisor, he was responsible for all phases of management for 750,000 cage layers and 400,000 growing pullets. Jerry also understands how poultry equipment operates as he sold and serviced poultry equipment for Kitson Poultry Equipment of Morley, Michigan.

Jerry McMillan, Purina Poultry Specialist, examines the end product of Purina's Poultry Research - a high quality egg produced with least cost per dozen.

Jim Garber and Jerry McMillan Purina Poultry Specialist, update Bio-Mittent Lighting Program for the 120,000 cage layers on Jim's farm in Mt. Joy, Pa. Jim also raises 120,000 pullets on the Purina Pullet Growing Program.

PURINA'S BIO-MITTENT LIGHTING PROGRAM

All it takes is a 15 minute increment timeclock to realize great savings from this new program. The average 60,000 bird brown out house will experience a .1/lb./dozen savings just by using the lighting program. This amounts to 1.3 lbs./bird or a total feed savings of $6240. Electrical savings based on 3.5¢/killowatt hour of $975.00, Total savings of .12¢/bird.

DAILY WEIGHING OF EGGS

Weighing of eggs throughout the day is a good management tool. By monitoring these egg weights you can be sure that all birds are getting the full balance of feed and water required to produce eggs. Should 1 row be without water or feed today - it will show up in egg weights tomorrow.

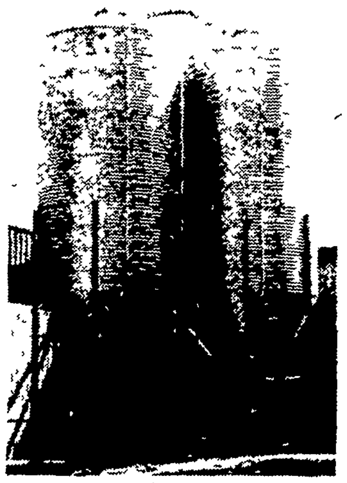
By periodic weighing of eggs the poultryman knows the quality of his product before it leaves his farm.

Jim Garber Weighing His Eggs

GOOD MANAGEMENT SAVES POULTRY $

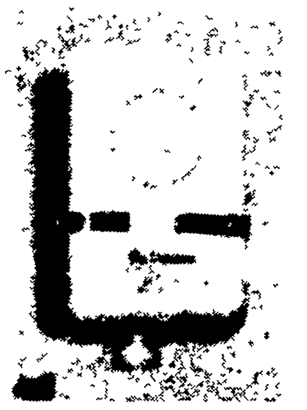
Since Jerry has first hand experience with 750,000 cage layers, he knows the real true worth of a good poultry program. "The real benefit of the Purina Poultry Program, says Jerry, "is that Purina Programs for saving money have all been both researched and field proven." Purina has spent more time and money studying the nutritional needs of the cage layer than anyone in the poultry industry. It is because of this research that Purina can truly offer the poultrymen the management programs to give him the least cost to produce a dozen eggs.

PURINA PRESENTS NUTRA-CYCLE® FEEDING PROGRAM



To reduce your total feeding cost by $3.00/ton, Nurta-Cycle® is designed to be fed after peak production and optimum egg size. All that is needed are 2 feed bins and good PRECISE management. Can you afford not to Save $3.00 a ton?

PURINA WINTER VENTILATION PROGRAM



Both research and field tests have proven that for every 1° you raise your inhouse temperature you will see a feed savings of ½% with NO effects on either egg numbers or egg size up to 80°.

We at Purina recommend that the daily average temp be between 75° - 80°.

At todays feed prices you can't afford to heat your poultry house by feeding more.

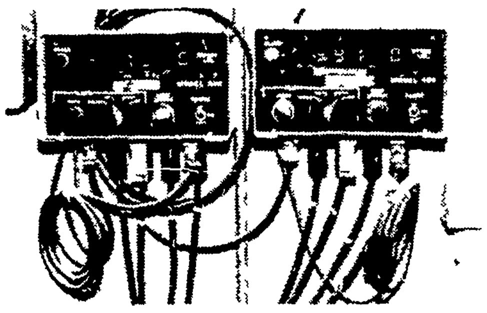
PURINA'S LIMI-FEED PROGRAM



With today's feed prices, can you afford to let your profits be eaten up? Our Limi-Feed Program is designed to save you feed $ without any reduction in egg size or egg numbers. By simply pre-determining how much feed the birds get each and every day you can achieve a better bottom line. With today's egg prices can you afford not to use the total Purina Program?
